Rev. H. B. Porter Preaches Bacca laureate Sermon President Wil cox Preached Sermon to X. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A.—Large Crowds Attend All Events—Many Graduate, Including One Young Man-All Events of a High Characte And Greatly Enjoyed.

Col. Wade H. Cooper, President of the Commercial National Bank, of Washington, D. C., delivered the Commencement Address at the Grad-Commencement Address at the Graduating Exercises of Louisburg College, held in the Louisburg Methodist Church, on Tuesday morning, May 24, at 10 o'clock. Col. Copper delivered a truly unusual address, centering about Abraham Lincoln, the great savior of our nation, Col. Copper said that he was indeed pleased with the spirit shown in the college here, and that with such a leader as it now has, he was confident that it would go on. He said that he was glad to be in such a state as this which has produced so many great men, some of which he mentioned, saying that North he mentioned, saying that North Carolina will not forget her heroes. any more than the world will forget its heroes. The speaker named some of the great heroes in different countries coming back to our own in the persons of George Washington, the founder of our nation, and Abraham Lincoln, the preserver of same. Col. Cooper said that to him, if a distinction can be drawn, Lincoln was the greater of the two. The speaker gave the opinions of different great men on the question of abolition of slavery, and particularly emphasised the fact that Lincoln was not in favor of it either before or during the great Civil War during which struggle his greatness was most apparent. Col. Cooper said that we may search all the pages of all the histories of all the heroes we would find only one savior of a great nation, Abraham Lincoln in a message to boys and girls Col. Cooper said that he would not fail to point out the trail to Lincoln's countries coming back to our own point out the trail te Lincoln's

Col. Cooper was introduced by President A. D. Wilcox, who presided ed during these exercises, and who at the close of the service expressed his thanks to the people of Louis-burg, Franklin County, and the Eastern part of North Carolina for the hearty support that they have given the college this year which has been thoroughly successful, and gives promise of a much better term for the coming school year. Dr. Wilcox ing to know that this very versatile said that students had come to the young man offered to the youth of college from outside states, including South Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, and Maryland; that he expected the enrollment for next year would be from fifty to one hundred of Sixteen dollars was to be paid would be from fifty to one hundred per cent larger than it was this year. He repeated some of the facts that repeated some of the facts that he stated in his talk to the Alumnae Association at the banquet Satur-day night, and added that out of nearly every team that has come to compete here at the college during he past year, some one member either stayed or come back or attend school here. At least ine students did this, one of them eing Fred Lowe, the first boy to er graduate from Louisburg Col-The program opened with Celebrates Home Coming Louisburg College celebrated her "tirst" Home Coming Saturday, May 21, with a good crowd present. The barbecue served at neon was largely attended, among the guests being Hon. Cameron Morrison, who was a visitor to Louisburg on that day. Hon. Morrison spoke to the crowd before departing.

At 2:00 o'clock a bronze tablet marking the spot where the "first" Louisburg College Building was erected, was unveiled by little Miss dents, and friends, to inscribe all that remains of what was once such a familiar feature and integral part of this campus—the Old Academy Building.

From 1802 to 1809 Matthew Dickerson, a Yale graduate, ran a boys school here. Mr. Dickerson died in 1809, and was buried in Franklin County somewhere. The location of his grave is unknown.

Speaking of the old academy building, Mrs. Parham went on to say: What memories must clins about it! What innumerable lives it has touched! What vicissitudes of fortune and change has it not witnessed; This old academy, char-tered in 1814 when an almost legen-dary John Bobbitt conducted here a school for boys. But the leger dary becomes the real with that on touch "one touch of nature" that "makes the whole world kin", for shortly afterwards a Miss Harriet Partridge opened a school here also. For a while the two continued on separate basis, but only until hebitt became aware of the uni Bebbitt became aware of the ununual charm of Miss Partridge. Then a partnership, both personal and scholastic, was formed, and its result was the institution that has come down through the years and

Senator Cameron Morrison Speaks

Hon. Cameron Morrison, United States Senator from North Carolina ade an especially strong speech to a Court house full of citizens of Franklin County Saturday afternoon in which he explained to the gener McNinch vote and his connection with the Trusts. In the first instance he knew of no reason why McNinch should not be confirmed except his political affiliation and since he was an appointee of Presi-dent Hoover and that the appoint-ment would go elsewhere, and in the interest of harmony in the Demo-cratic ranks, which included many who had supported Hoover, he vot-ed for the confirmation.

He treated the Tobacco trust argument against him as a joke, being ridiculous that he who had ing ridiculous that he who had fought the trusts for forty years could be affiliated. "If I felt that way I would join the Republican party" he stated. He told his hearers that if he had anything to do with the tobacco companies he would make them, confound them, pay you more for your tobacco.

Showing that it was the custom of the Republicans to appoint their friends to office when in power, he assured his hearers we will do the same when we are in power.

1809, and was buried in Franklin county somewhere. The location of his grave is unknown.

It will probably be very interesting the county somewhere. The location of Government showing how the tariff had closed the deor's of forprice of American products, how financial legislation and nipalation by the republicans had our banks, and the false economy legislation put over by economy legislation put over by republicans had brought on the higgest depression in the history of the United tStass. He clso explained how the Democrats had risen up and demanded the farm relief and how the Secretary of Agriculture had tried to keep the money from the farmer. It was the Democrats, not Hooyer and the Republicans, that the farmers had to thank for this.

He ended with a plea for the support of himself for the Senate with an earnest desire to continue the fight for the return of the government to the people. Showing that he had fought the Democratic battles, since before his manhood and did not want to retire now. He was anxious to keep on fighting.

His speech was longiting.

His speech was loudly and often cheered as he referred to the great battles he had and is engaging in, and was well taken by the many who heard him. The speaker was welcomed and presented by Mr. E. H. Malone, Chairman of the Democratic Execu-tive Committee of Franklin County.

Culmore, Ulster, Ireland, May 21. Amelia Earhart Putnam brought down her red and gold monoplane in a field on the Donegal side of Lough Foyle this afternoon and thereby became the first woman ever to fly the Atlantic alone.

She landed on the side of the ocean five years to the day after Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh arrived at Le Bourget, France, successfully completing the first solo flight across the Atlantic.

She had intended to go to Parts but it was mecessary to cut the flight short because her exhaust manifold guage was broken causing a little leakage. had burned out and the gas line

The lithe, blonde flier who took off from Harbor Grace, N. F., at 4:51 p. m., (E. S. T.) yesterday got a lift by motor to Londonderry five miles away where the first thing she did was to get on the telephone to report her success to London in order that her husband, George Pal-mer Putnam, New York publisher, know that she was safe.

Her plane was not damaged in the landing and she was unhurt.

"For a lot of the way," Mrs. Put-nam said, "I was flying through storm, mist, rain and a little fog. "To my friends in New York, I want to send this message:

"I am very glad to have come across successfully, but I am sorry indeed I did not make France.
"I am going to speak to my husband as soon as I can by the Atlantic telephone."

It was the flier's second airplane trip across the Atlantic.

Back in June, 1928, before her marriage to Mr. Putnam, she made the crossing, that time as a passenger.

"There is no comparison", said in replying to a question about which trip she liked better. "On this trip I was flying low the whole time and had to rely on my-self. I am afraid I am a bit deaf after the terrible roar of the engine in my ears all the time, but at any rate I have done it".

New York, May 21.-Amelia Earhart Putnam, trans Atlantic flier, has crowded enough activity into he 34 years to make careers for severa women, or men for that matter.

War nurse, commercial photogra pher, social worker, aviation co pany executive, magazine editor, teacher, member of numerous aviation committees are all part of her experience as well as her master of the art of flying.

She was the first woman to be granted a license by the Federal is an honorary major in the 381st Aero Squadron.
