

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

THE RADIO DUEL

Washington, March 19.—The net effect of General Hugh Johnson's broadcast attack on Senator Huey Long and Father Charles Coughlin has been to bring both of those figures into more conspicuous positions under the lime-light, and to increase the number of those who listen to them. That is the general consensus of Washington opinion which looks at everything in terms of politics. It is being wondered whether the General helped or harmed Mr. Roosevelt by his blunt attack upon the two.

Whether the General spoke with or without Presidential authority or foreknowledge is one of the current Washington mysteries. Some folk say the President put him up to it. Others are certain that the President didn't even know that the General was going to open up. The result, however, has been to bring forth more pungent criticism from both Senator Long and Father Coughlin, attacking not only the Administration but, in Senator Long's case, the President himself.

Changes Tactics

Senator Long announced a few weeks ago that he had quit drinking, and those who have been observing him say that is true. And he has been surprising those who have been accustomed to hearing only vituperation and abuse from his lips, by talking, both on the Senate floor and over the radio, like a man with a serious message to deliver. His "share-the-wealth" program is calculated to appeal to millions of uneducated voters.

Father Coughlin, also, has seized the opportunity to become more specific about his own ideas of how to pull the country out of its economic hole, and there is some worry here that great numbers of voters are listening to the "radio priest" and taking his talks seriously.

The effect of all of that sort of thing on the Nation at large is that it sets Congress and Executive to worrying about how to placate the voters who are supposed to be influenced by such folk as Long and Coughlin, without sacrificing the support of the more conservative element.

New Perspective

The realization has been gradually seeping in that cooperation between business and Government has got to become a reality if there is to be any actual recovery. It is also being realized that the expected stimulation to business by the expenditure of money on public works hasn't had the effect of "priming the pump" of recovery.

Those realizations are having their effect in the consideration of the President's work-relief plan, and also in the matter of the extension or modification of the NRA.

The swing in Congress away from the plan for putting all of those now on relief at work on Government payrolls appears to be growing stronger. Business interests are almost unanimously opposed to it, mainly on the ground of economy. It would cost less to continue the cash dole than to carry out the work-relief project. Also, the powerful Federation of Labor lobby seems to have killed the basic principle of the President's plan, of paying less than the prevailing rate of wages on the relief work. How the whole business will turn out is still a matter of conjecture. It demonstrates that the present Congress is doing some independent thinking, especially in the Senate.

NRA in Eclipse

Every day that passes without some definite action by Congress for the continuance of NRA lessens the chance that this recovery measure will be continued in effect after its expiration on June 16. It seems certain now that all business inside the limits of a single state will be excluded from the operation of any codes after that date. There is a strong movement on foot to leave inter-state business uncodified except such as are natural monopolies or affect the natural resources of the nation.

The President and the Federation of Labor are exceedingly anxious to have minimum wage rates and maximum labor hours legalized as far as they can be enforced, but they are facing numerous Federal court decisions that any such regulations are unconstitutional inside of a state. The latest of these is by a St. Louis judge in a case involving hours and wages in the clothing industry. It is taken almost for granted here that the Supreme Court will uphold all of such rulings when the cases come before it.

Money Situation

The President remarked the other day that prices were not yet high enough. That was taken in financial circles to intimate that he was preparing for a definite inflation of the currency. He denied that. But a few days later the Treasury announced that it was using $642,000,000 of the Government's gold profit from the devaluation of the dollar to retire all National Bank notes and all outstanding Panama Canal bonds and some other issues. This move is not inflationary in itself, but it clears the way still further for extensive credit inflation when and if the time comes.

Meantime Senator Patman's bill to pay the veterans bonus at once in full with printing-press money is being pushed strongly, and inflationary sentiment is growing in the House of Representatives.

Relieved Of Double Liability

In the interest of relieving the stockholders in the First-Citizens Bank and Trust Company of double liability on their stock holdings in that institution, Mr. A. G. Small from the Examining Staff of the State Banking Department was in Louisburg and Franklinton, N. C., on March 18th.

The Legislature on last Friday passed the Lindsay Bill (H. B. No. 185) and it was immediately ratified. It makes the following provisions for relieving stockholders in State banking institutions of double liability:

1. Publication by the Bank in a newspaper having general circulation in the community where the bank is located, once each week for four consecutive weeks prior to May 1st, 1935, of the bank's intent to seek such relief.
2. Mailing written notice to each depositor and to each other creditor prior to May 1st, 1935.
3. Sworn affidavits from a bank officer that such notices have been mailed and sworn affidavits from the publisher on each insertion of the advertisement, that such publication has been made.

On the completion of these proceedings and the forwarding of such affidavits to the Commissioner of Banks, State banking institutions can accomplish this relief to their stockholders by July 1st, 1935.

When announcement was made Friday afternoon that the Lindsay Bill would become a law, Mr. Hood, the Commissioner of Banks, immediately organized the State into twenty temporary districts, and planned to send twenty men from his staff into the field immediately to explain the measure and aid and assist the State banks in taking immediate advantage of its provisions. His forces worked far into the night on last Friday preparing forms, affidavits, advertisements, etc., and beginning with Monday of this week each and every Bank, and each and every branch bank will be visited by these representatives.

It is Mr. Hood's earnest desire that every North Carolina banking institution be listed on July 1st, 1935, free from double liability on their stock issue. We must re-establish a market for bank stock.

The Lindsay Bill provides that banks previously organized or relieved through the provisions of the Aycock Bill, an enactment of the 1933 Legislature, can take advantage of the same methods of procedure outlined above, and have released to them the North Carolina or United States bonds pledged in connection with that act, and at the same time obtain relief for their stockholders from all double liability.

DAVID GEORGE PEARCE

David George Pearce, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Pearce was born December 1, 1874 in Franklin County. On September 22, 1900 he married Miss Mable Thomas daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Thomas. Mr. Thomas was for a number of years the owner and publisher of the Franklin Times. From this wedlock fifteen children were born. Thus in brief are a few facts of interest of a man who thru all his life made for himself a place of usefulness and honor among his fellows.

David Pearce came from a distinguished ancestry. His family connections on his paternal side traced back to the Jeffersons of Virginia. Major Charles Allen of Revolutionary fame, and the Farrowes. On his maternal side he had equal pride with kinship to the Outlaws. David Pearce was a man well born.

During his lifetime David George held many places of trust. In his early manhood he was manager of the local dispensary. The town of Louisburg elected him on the police staff, a place he served with distinction to himself and benefit to his town. Later he became the official cotton weigher for the local market. In this job he also served with honor and fairness to those with whom he worked.

In the year 1922, Mr. Pearce suffered a paralytic stroke of which he never recovered. For months thereafter, he seldom knew the ease of physical pain. Yet, during all these months, he bore his affliction with courage and fortitude. Some years later he had a second stroke. This came near making him a complete invalid. But no words of complaint came from his lips. He suffered his agony in silence. Carried his afflictions with hopefulness. Several weeks before his passing, he suffered a third stroke. He had not the strength to overcome this last, and passed away on February 25, 1935.

David Pearce thru his entire life carried himself worthy of his honored forebearers. With his ancestry compotatory with Washington, the Jeffersons, Allens, Outlaws, and Farrowes, he was eligible for membership in all the patriotic organizations within the County. Yet he was not a man who boasted of his tradition or kinship. He was honest, kind, and good. True to his friends, faithful to whatever trust was committed to his hands.

David George Pearce was a life-long member of the Methodist Church in Louisburg. He was noted for his quiet loyalty in support and attendance.

On February 22, David took his departure from this earth to join that limitless host of redeemed.

POLICE COMMISSIONER SOLVES CROP MYSTERY

The reason some crops are weak and poor when on the other side of the fence they are thick and luxuriant has been solved to the satisfaction of Police Commissioner B. W. Walker of Barnwell, S. C. He says good crops are always grown when American nitrate of soda is used, because of its high nitrogen content and purity.

According to Police Commissioner Walker, farmers who use American nitrate of soda are helping themselves by following Dr. Charles H. Herty's recent advice of "Southern fertilizers for the Southern farmer."

For these reasons use and recommend who thru all the ages have lived in the faith, held sacred their personal honor, been a friend to man, dealt honestly and well with all men.

His devoted wife and fifteen children are saddened by his going. Yet, they know he lived by precept and example the way of truth and honor as a pathway for them to travel.

Because David George Pearce was who and what he was, I am glad to have called him my friend.
