PLANS BEING MADE FOR FARMERS' WEEK

Farm and Home Week will be held at State College this summer from July 29 to August 2 and the central theme of all discussions will be, "Conservation of Rural Resources."

Under the plans being made, there will be no sectional meetings for men as in the past but all of the time will be taken with general discussions on present day questions. The women will have their regular short course under the direction of Miss Ruth Current and joint meetings of men and women will be held each evening in the Riddick Field Stadium.

Charles A. Sheffield, now at Washington, will continue to act as general secretary of the Farm and Home Week and will return to the college in ample time to make full preparations. He will be assisted by David S. Weaver of the college staff.

At a recent meeting attended by the presidents and vice-presidents of the Farmers Convention and of the State Federation of Home Demonstration Clubs, it was planned to again invite all farm organizations to hold their annual gatherings at the college during the week. There will also be a conference of rural ministers.

Discussions will center about the AAA programs, present and future, soil erosion, rural electrification, rural rehabilitation, conservation of forests and wild life, TVA work and the like. It is also planned to have a large number of exhibits and demonstrations.

The evenings will be devoted to dramatics, community sings, games and inspirational addresses. Last year over 5000 men and women attended the farm and home week exercises and it is expected that more than this number will register at the 33rd gathering this summer.

The Players

The following members of the Louisburg College Dramatic Club have this year become members of "The Players"—an honorary division of the club, and are now entitled to wear the Players' emblem: Louise Brown, Hollister; Nell Davis, Whiteville; Marguerite Lipscomb, Washington, D. C.; Wilhemina Smith, Bailey; Agneen Tharrington, Enfield; R. H. Edwards, Jr., Goldsboro; Fred Hoyle, Zebulon; and Stuart Godfrey, Clarksburg, W. Va.

The head of the Dramatic Department, Miss Virginia Peyatt, introduced the point system by which members become Players, and it is now a distinct honor to merit admission to this division of the club.

The Louisburg College Players, under the direction of Miss Virginia Peyatt, will present the annual commencement play Monday evening, May 27th, in the old Opera House. Their performance this year will be "Skidding", a comedy in three acts, by Aurania Rouveral. The Players are especially well cast, and it is expected that this performance will be the best of the season.

The cast includes: Louise Brown of Hollister; Natalie Gould, of Manteo; Marguerite Lipscomb, of Washington, D. C.; Ruth Hurley, of Elizabeth City; Gretchen Davis, of Stantonburg; William McFayden, of Raeford; Stuart Godfrey, of Clarksburg, W. Va.; R. H. Edwards, Jr., of Goldsboro; Fred Hoyle, of Zebulon; and Jimmy King, of St. Paul.

A soiled and dog-eared recommendation is worse than none.

"Les Miserables" New Screen Drama

March, Laughton Chief Actors in Hugo's Famed Man-Hunt At Louisburg Theatre Sunday, May 26th

Fredric March and Charles Laughton play fugitive and pursuer in the most celebrated of all fictional man-hunts in Darryl Zanuck's 20th Century production of Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables," at Louisburg Theatre Sunday, May 26th.

March is seen as Hugo's ill-starred young hero, Jean Valjean, who spends five bitter years on a French prison ship for stealing a loaf of bread and then becomes a fugitive from justice by violating his parole. Laughton is Javert, the fanatical detective, whose devotion to the letter of the law drives him relentlessly along the reformed ex-convict's trail.

Sir Cedric Hardwicke, the distinguished English stage and screen star, shares stellar honors with the pair as the benevolent Bishop Bienvenu, whose faith starts the degraded galle slave on the road toward a better life.

Richard Boleslawski directed "Les Miserables" from a screen play by W. R. Lipscomb.

Rochelle Hudson, Frances Drake and John Beal are featured in the supporting cast which also includes such popular and distinguished players as Florence Eldridge, who is Mrs. Fredric March in private life, Jessie Ralph, Ferdinand Gottschalk and little

Marilynne Knowlden, who played Madge Evans as a child in "David Copperfield."

"Les Miserables" is a Joseph M. Schenck presentation, released through United Artists.
