"Seventy-five days have now assed since a lynching occurred in Franklin County and no in-dictments have been made against any one," Judge Parker reminded the grand jury in his charge Monday, stating further that "it is inconceivable and no excuse for lynching in North Carolina. The courts are clothed with the power to enforce the law and pro-tect the citizens". Following ne told the jurors whose duties he had minutely explained and im-pressed upon them, that they had sworn to do their duty and that just as they judge in the question of this lynching just so will they toward the left flank of the judged in the great eternity.
