

DRY STORAGE KEEPS SEED CORN FERTILE

Seed corn should be stored in a dry, well ventilated place over the winter if it is to produce a good yield of high quality corn the following season.

Carelessly stored seed may so deteriorate during the winter that it cannot produce a good stand of corn, warns P. H. Kime, plant breeding agronomist at State College.

The ears of seed corn should not be thrown together in a pile, he added, but should be stored in such a manner that the air can circulate freely about each ear.

Given a chance to dry out thoroughly before cold weather, the seed will be able to withstand heavy freezes without injury.

Kime pointed out that a satisfactory hanger can be made with woven wire and a couple two-by-four uprights. The meshes of the wire should be just large enough to permit the ears to pass through easily.

The uprights should be erected a convenient distance apart, with the broad edges set at right angles to a line drawn between the two posts.

Place a length of the woven wire on each side of the uprights in such a manner that the complete rack resembles a double woven wire fence, with the meshes opposite and four inches apart.

The ears of seed corn can then be stuck through the meshes of both wires, where they will remain until ready for sowing.

Sometimes it is advisable to warm the storage room at first to facilitate the curing process, Kime stated, but be careful not to raise the temperature above that of a comfortable living room, as too much heat will impair the germination power of the seed.

The man who finishes as he goes along will at least accomplish something.

TRUSTEE'S RE-SALE OF LAND

By virtue of the power of re-sale conferred by that deed of trust executed by J. M. Harris and wife Pearl G. Harris, to William H. Ruffin, Trustee, January 15, 1926 recorded in Book 259, page 399, Franklin Registry, and by authority of the power of sale granted in a certain paper writing substituting a trustee in the above named deed of trust, executed by Mrs. Mary Ellen Gilliss, widow, to W. L. Lumpkin, substituted trustee, which instrument is dated October 2, 1935, and recorded in Franklin Registry in Book 324, page 428; default having been made in the payment of the indebtedness thereby secured under said deed of trust, and demand having been made for foreclosure by the holder of the indebtedness secured thereunder, the undersigned will, on

Refreshing Relief

When You Need a Laxative
Because of the refreshing relief it has brought them, thousands of men and women, who could afford much more expensive laxatives, use Black-Draught when needed. It is very economical, purely vegetable, highly effective. . . Mr. J. Lester Roberson, well known hardware dealer at Martinsville, Va., writes: "I certainly can recommend Black-Draught as a splendid medicine. I have taken it for constipation and the dull feelings that follow, and have found it very satisfactory."
