

IN WASHINGTON

WHAT IS TAKING PLACE BY

ROBERT R. REYNOLDS, UNITED STATES SENATOR

Of the many developments during the first week of the final session of the Seventy-fifth Congress, two stand out. They are the constructive message of President Roosevelt and the action of seven Southeastern Governors, including Governor Hoey of North Carolina in endorsing a wage and hour bill. This latter is particularly significant in light of the fact that opposition to the much misunderstood wage and hour bill has come from the South.

Some of the misunderstanding has been due to methods of administering the measure and in this connection the Governors expressed confidence that the President and the Congress would work out and "provide satisfactory administrative machinery." The action of the Governors gives new emphasis to an important paragraph of the President's message deserving of widespread attention. He said:

"Government has a final responsibility for the well-being of its citizenship. If private cooperative endeavor fails to provide work for willing hands and relief for the unfortunate, those suffering hardships from no fault of their own have a right to call upon the government for aid; and a government worthy of its name must make fitting response."

Another paragraph of the Presidential message strikes directly at sectional opposition to the wage and hour bill. It says: "I have spoken of economic causes which throw the nation's income out of balance; I have spoken of practices and abuses which demand correction through the co-operation of capital and labor with the government. But no government can help the destinies of people who insist on putting sectional and class-consciousness ahead of general weal. There must be proof that sectional and class interests are prepared more greatly than they are today to be national in outlook."

This statement by President Roosevelt is particularly important at a time when sectional issues are raised in connection with important legislation. Members of Congress now realize that the farmer has been given advantages through legislation designed to raise the level of farm prices and thereby increase farm income. Business and industry has been assisted through loans and increased output and sales by means of both Federal loans and Federal expenditures. The upper strata of labor—the organized groups—have been aided with legislation that strengthens its bargaining position.

Obviously, something must be done for the low-paid workers who toil long hours and often under sweatshop conditions. This is where the wage and hour bill would be a help. And it should be emphasized that farm labor, employees of local merchants and many other groups would not be affected. Only those industries and businesses in interstate commerce would be included in Federal regulation of wages and hours. In fact, strictly local businesses would be helped through increased purchasing power in the community.

The Man Who Claims To Be The Original JESSE JAMES, In Person

Jesse James at The Louisburg Theatre

Jesse James, the original Missouri outlaw who was supposed to have been shot by Bob Ford on April 3, 1882, has returned to the realm of the living after a hide-out of fifty-one years, and will be seen in person at the Louisburg Theatre in Louisburg Tuesday, January 18th.

Explaining that the historical "picture-on-the-wall" shooting was a frame-up, James says that he, his brother Frank and Bob Ford plotted to get rid of Charles Bigelow, an outlaw who had been committing crimes and leaving indications that it was the work of the James boys. When Ford shot Bigelow, Jesse immediately rushed into the room and changed guns and other marks of identification with the slain man, and escaped into the hiding that was destined to out do Rip Van Winkle. During his seclusion, James earned a quiet living as a dealer in cattle and race-horses, spending most of the time in Colorado, and passing under the name of "Jim Williams."

When he decided to return to public life, Jesse James obtained assurances in Washington that charges once in effect against him were no longer in force because there were no living witnesses. Accompanied by a delegation of early settlers who had identified him, James also paid a visit to the governor of Missouri and was told that when the $10,000 reward was paid to Bob Ford, the case was officially closed as far as the State of Missouri was concerned.

In his appearances at the Louisburg Theatre, James will recount his high-lights of his most interesting experiences and will describe his escape in detail.

In addition to Jesse James in person, the Louisburg Theatre will present Hank Farris and Ann Alexander, cowboy entertainers, in their famous Australian whip-cracking and fancy roping act.

The screen attraction will be Ann Sothern and Jack Haley in "Danger Love At Work."

Extreme Discourtesy

That Raleigh is "hot" because of the Chapman speech at the Jackson Day dinner at Raleigh is shown in W. Tom Bos's correspondence to the Greensboro News pendency to the Greensboro News:

Raleigh, Jan. 10.—Raleigh got madder and madder today as it cogitated a full 48 hours on the Jackson day speech of Oscar L. Chapman, assistant secretary of the interior, who ignored Senator J. W. Bailey in his home town and touted Senator Bob Reynolds very highly.

Beginning with our Bob in Washington, the resentment made the national rounds and came back to Raleigh, gathering momentum with each circumlocution and reaching Raleigh with every decoration. Much of the madness, euphemistically called anger, is furnished by the out and out anti-Roosevelters who put up as much of the Jackson day dinner as the proponents of the feast did, but there was plenty irritation to be found among the orthodox administrationists, who bestirred themselves a year ago in repulsion of the stupid Senator Tydings Victory dinner speech, and found themselves embarrassed by a similar performance by one of their own.

The real reason for the heat in today's developments is a conviction that the "slur" was intentional. In music the "slur" is a short curve connecting notes which are to be sung or played to the same ictus, or "performed without a break." In the vernacular a slur is a "trick," a cheat, an imposition, an intimation, an innuendo. It cannot be said that Secretary Chapman slurred Bailey "or performed without a break." It was one of the worst "breaks" that any politician in recent years has "performed." And there are some signs that Our Bob was "in the know."

Yields of 1,000 to 2,000 pounds of Burley tobacco have been reported by Yancey County growers this season. W. O. Briggs, of Jacks Creek sold 1168 pounds of good tobacco produced on seven-tenths of one acre for the sum of $282.

MR. GEORGE M. CRUMBAUGH, successful tobacco planter.

THE men who really know tobacco—the growers themselves—pick Camels as their favorite cigarette, according to George M. Crumbaugh. If you are not already a Camel smoker, begin now to enjoy Camels—the cigarette that is made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCO, Turkish and Domestic.
