H. C. AYESCUE BEING TRIED FOR INCEST

Judge G. V. Cowper, Presiding At The April Term of Franklin Criminal Court —Grand Jury Makes Report

The regular April term of Franklin Superior Court convened Monday morning with His Honor Judge G. V. Cowper, of Kingston, presiding, and Solicitor W. Y. Bickett ably representing the State. The Grand Jury drawn in February was in session and heard a most able and practical charge in which Judge Cowper stressed the idea that every citizen has a right to think and do whatever he wishes to do, until it begins to interfere with the rights of others. Referring to the Constitution he quoted "we hold these truths to be self-evident" the rights of man, "that all men are created equal." He didn't think the last reference meant equal, except in opportunity so far as government is concerned, to life, liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. It is the object of government to protect these rights, he said. He informed the jurors that it was their duty to find probable cause, and not to try cases, for the purpose to see that those entitled to be tried should be sent on to court, and those against whom was not sufficient evidence to justify a trial be not sent up to occupy the time of the court. He advised them that it would be wise to get back to the fundamental parts of this government. The charge, while varying largely from others, was regarded as the wisest and most directly to the question of the relation of the Courts to the public and the public to the Courts that has been heard in this Court House in a long while.

The docket was taken up and disposed of as follows:
J. V. Pridden pleaded guilty to failure to support his child and was given 8 months on roads, to be suspended upon paying the doctor $25 and to the Court $10 per month for his child, and the costs. He was allowed to see child three times each month by giving its mother one day's notice.

Talmadge Burchett was found not guilty of reckless driving, hit and run.

H. C. Ayescue, incest, in process of trial.

2. That the common jail of Franklin County has been inspected and examined by the Grand Jury and found to be in good condition, except certain improvements which have been heretofore recommended by the Grand Jury have not been completed, and it is highly recommended that the Board of Commissioners give this matter their immediate consideration.

3. The County Home was visited and the home is being kept in a very sanitary and good condition. The inmates are well pleased and it appears that the home is being properly managed and supervised.

4. The North Carolina State Highway and Public Works Prison Camp was visited and inspected and found in excellent condition.

5. The Grand Jury inspected the courthouse and the offices and in so far as they were able to ascertain, it was found in good condition and the offices properly conducted by the officials of the County.

6. It was reported to the Grand Jury from several communities that there is now existing minor law violations, such as disorderly conduct, and the Grand Jury called the Solicitor of the County Court before its body and requested certain action to be taken, and each violation was reported in detail and it appears that proper action will be taken to correct the existing evils.

The members of this Grand Jury wish to thank His Honor, G. V. Cowper, Judge Presiding over this session of the Court, for his instructions and the courtesies shown us during this term of Court, and also we wish to thank William Y. Bickett for his performance and assistance during this term of Court.

Respectfully submitted,
Julian K. Weldon, Foreman.

LOUISBURG BOARD NAMES PRESIDENT

Dr. Walter Patten, Former Public Relations Agent, To Head College

Louisburg College trustees, meeting in Edenton Street Methodist Church, Raleigh, voted to accept the resignation of Dr. D. E. Earnhardt as president of the school and unanimously elected Dr. Walter Patten, public relations agent for the college, to succeed him.

Dr. Earnhardt's resignation will become effective at the end of the school year, May 23, and Dr. Patten will take office immediately. Dr. Earnhardt submitted his resignation on April 3. He is completing his third year in the office. Before considering a successor, the board of trustees heard a motion by E. H. Malone, speaking "not only as a trustee but on behalf of Louisburg College," that the board ask Dr. Earnhardt to withdraw his resignation. The motion, seconded by the Rev. W. V. McKee, of Fayetteville, was adopted unanimously.

In response, Dr. Earnhardt spoke of "my love for the college and my faith in its future," said he accepted the presidency of the college to meet an emergency created by the sudden death of the Rev. A. D. Wilcox. "The work has accorded me great pleasure and many fine contacts," he declared, "and although I appreciate the spirit of the board, I feel that having dedicated my life to the preaching of the Gospel, the pastorate offers me the field for the best service."

The board voted to accept the resignation "with deep regrets and appreciation for the splendid service" of Dr. Earnhardt. The trustees decided to act immediately on selection of a successor so that he might have an opportunity, before the close of the school year, to gain full knowledge of operation of the school.

After discussing a number of prospective nominees, the board decided that Dr. Patten "not only qualifies in scholarship and executive ability but by reason of his knowledge of the needs of the college, and is ideally suited to succeed Dr. Earnhardt."

Dr. Patten has served a number of churches in North Carolina and as presiding elder, and is regarded as an outstanding Methodist minister.

During Dr. Earnhardt's administration the college enrollment has increased from 271 to 441; 25 new dormitory rooms have been added; 180 acres of land has been added to the college property, and a poultry farm, a dairy farm and a truck farm have been established. Salaries of teachers have been increased 25 per cent.

The college debt has been reduced from $190,000 to less than $20,000.

WEBB AND FURGERSON FOR MAYOR

Nine Out For Commissioners—Only One of Originally Elected Board In Race—Primary Tuesday

As the time for filing for the privilege of running for the nomination for the several town offices closed on Tuesday night it was learned that two filed for Mayor and nine for Commissioners. In the Mayoralty race Mayor W. C. Webb, Louisburg's present efficient official, will be opposed by McM. Furgerson. This race is creating some political comment in the fact that one is classed as a Democrat while the other is classed as a republican. The town election however makes no distinction, but is and has always been operated as a non-partisan election. In fact Mr. Furgerson has served the town as a Commissioner in former years.

In the Commissioners race there are nine seeking the six places to be filled, only one of which, Mr. W. B. Barrow, was among those elected two years ago. P. W. Elam, C. R. Sykes and F. H. Allen, members of the present Board, were appointed to fill the vacancies caused by the deaths of W. E. White, L. L. Joyner and F. H. Allen, Sr. The new candidates are R. C. Beck, C. A. Ragland, F. R. Pleasants, W. G. Lancaster and W. J. (Pete) Shearin. All of these gentlemen are among Louisburg's most successful and prominent citizens and any of them elected will make excellent officials.

The primary will be held on next Tuesday, the polls being held open in the Court House and is hoped a large per cent of the voters of the town will go out and take a part in selecting the officials for the town the next two years.

The attention of all our readers is directed to the announcements of candidates in this issue.

LOUISBURG BAPTIST CHURCH

Dr. A. Paul Bagby, pastor spoke on "Three Approaches to Truth" basing his three approaches upon the inscription Platte had written on the Cross, "Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews." This title was written in Hebrew, Greek and Latin, giving three avenues to truth. The Hebrew represents the intuitive approach. It was a language of authority to the Jew—this voice of the soul. The accuracy of intuition depends on how we have used this power. The Greek represents the scientific approach. There will be and are changes in the scientific method of securing the truth but it remains that truth is truth. The Latin represents the practical approach. "If any man will to do he shall know."

This week has been set aside as a Week of Consecration. Mission study of South America and inspirational messages by the pastor make up the program for each evening. Tonight the pastor speaks on "Am I a Christian?" Ask yourself that question, and come to hear the pastor's answer.

Morning worship at 11:00 A. M. The pastor will bring a message on "Lovest Thou Me More Than These?" Evening worship at 7:30 P. M. Subject: "Saul."

FIRST TOBACCO

Dare County, land of surf bathing, waterfowl and fish, is rapidly becoming a farming country, especially on Roanoke Island and on the mainland across Croatan Sound. Joseph M. Bratten of East Lake has received the first tobacco allotment ever allowed in the county when he received three acres for 1939.

Farley Speaks To Young Democrats

Hon. James A. Farley, U. S. Postmaster General, in an address before the Young Democratic Club at Washington, D. C., Wednesday night, said in part:

You have a large stake in the outcome of next year's Presidential election. It is an old American custom, as each succeeding election comes around, for solemn political orators to warn the voters that the approaching crisis is the most momentous to face the Republic since the time of George Washington. I like to avoid exaggeration. Yet I think everyone will agree that it is impossible to over-emphasize the gravity of the present world situation. The man who occupies the White House during the next few years will be compelled to carry a burden of almost super-human proportions. He will be called upon to make decisions upon the outcome of which will rest the destiny of his own generation and the destiny of generations that come after. In such a situation, a profound duty rests upon those of us who are actively engaged in politics to exercise the utmost care in choosing our course of action.

By the process of catching on to the Roosevelt coat-tails, the Republicans hope to slip by and capture the great prize in 1940. We should bear in mind that they are masters at the art of intimidating the voters by raising up straw men and predicting calamities that never will occur. They also do fairly well at promising benefits that fail to materialize. They used the "full dinner pail" to capture one Presidential election, and several years later they increased the ante to "To chickens in every pot and two cars in every garage". I assume they will be equally generous in their promises next year.

The "Outs" in American politics have a tremendous advantage over the "Ins". They enjoy the luxury of criticizing the efforts of the Administration in power without being called upon to demonstrate what they would do under like circumstances. The volume of criticism directed against the Roosevelt Administration has swollen to huge proportions because the Chief Executive has had the courage to act with vigor and foresight in the face of perils, both foreign and domestic, that could be met in no other way. It is a common human trait for individuals to enjoy the sound of their own voices.

The opponents of the Roosevelt Administration have been vocal for so long that they mistake their own cat-calls for the solid weight of American public opinion. They made the same mistake three years ago.

It is well to recall that the opposition party always has the advantage until the time comes to nominate a candidate. In the old days the Republicans had a simple formula that very often worked amazingly well. They merely nominated a figure-head, fastened him securely to a pleasant front porch, and then sent forth an army of compelling orators to herald the glad tidings that a new Sir Gallahad was about to enter the White House, under the stabilizing influence of the G.O.P.

That method is now out of date—thanks to the development of modern means of communication and transportation.

The Republican nominee selected in 1940 will face the unpleasant prospect of standing under the spotlight to tell the voters in his own words what he proposes to do about the complex problems of public life.

A political party, to be successful, must have a platform that appeals to the electorate. Your platform is the splendid record in office of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. To those who scoff and jeer at his accomplishments—a habit quite fashionable in some quarters—your answer is plain and to the point: There is no man now living who could have carried the nation through the storms and dangers of the past six years as well as he has done. Confronted by problems of appalling magnitude, hampered and hindered by those who should have offered help and encouragement, the Chief Executive has lifted his country from the bog of depression and pessimism in which he found it, to the high road that leads to peace, prosperity and progress. He has won the great triumph by substituting courage for caution, action for apathy, and statesmanship for petty politics.

From his predecessor in office, President Roosevelt inherited a mass of economic wreckage and a disheartened people. He found it necessary to restore the fabric of industry and commerce, to correct old wrongs and abuses, to revive the normal channels of trade in a disorganized and disordered world. He found it necessary to carry on a host of emergency activities on top of the arduous duties which always burden the man in the White House. He has done the job ably and well, and again I repeat that no one of his critics could
