

FARLEY SPEAKS TO YOUNG DEMOCRATS

have done it half as well. The right to criticize the President has its roots deep in the American system of government and no one who sincerely believes in democracy would lift a finger to curb or abate that right. Very often it serves a useful purpose. Yes I should like to point out that many of the most vocal critics should thank their lucky stars that the man at the helm in these trying times has been Franklin D. Roosevelt. Had the destiny of the country been in weaker hands, these dissatisfied individuals might have found themselves far worse off than they are today. Does anyone contend that if the Republican candidate of 1936 had been elected to the White House, the United States would be better off than it is today? Does anyone seriously contend that he was equipped to perform the exacting duties of the Presidency better than the present Chief Executive?

Every nation in the world has felt the menace of chaos and social upheaval in this changing period, and no nation has come through the crisis in better shape than the United States of America. We were fortunate to have a leader who sensed that this age was touched with destiny and the vision to meet the situation before it was too late. I submit that the basic reforms of the Roosevelt Administration will never be undone.

What are the things for which President Roosevelt has consistently fought and labored? He said it was wrong for the farmers to live on the verge of poverty and he has done everything in his power to lift the buying power of agriculture. He said it was wrong to compel worthy men and women to work for less than a living wage. He said it was wrong for speculators to gamble without restraint with other people's money. He said it was wrong to abandon the unemployed to their own luckless fate. He said it was wrong to let the old folks face the twilight of existence without security or financial independence. For all of these great evils, he has sought the remedy, and in doing so, he has won the hearty acclaim of every right-thinking citizen in the land.

President Roosevelt has given new hope and encouragement to millions because he has consistently raised a mighty voice in their behalf. He has restored the old vision of America as a land of opportunity and fair dealing for all. He has revived the moral standards of the nation and let it be known that the welfare of the humblest citizen is the just concern of government.

This is the record on which we stand. This is the permanent platform of the Democratic Party and this is the message which you and I and every single worker in the party organization must bring home to the electorate between now and next election day. Tell the voters that the ideals of Jefferson and Jackson still live in the works and accomplishments of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Let us keep the faith and do our part and we need have no fear of the outcome in 1940. Let us rest our case on the great good sense of the American people.

Unless they were born that way, it's just about impossible for a man to be dignified, or for a girl to be charming.

HOWARD DELIVERS SERMON AT BUNN

On Sunday afternoon, April 16, at 3 o'clock in the Bunn High School auditorium the Rev. Charles B. Howard, Professor of Theology, at Campbell College, preached the baccalaureate sermon to 39 seniors who will receive their diplomas on Monday night, April 24.

Mr. Howard brought to the seniors an inspirational message on "The Game of Life" using as his text Timothy 2:2-5. He compared the Game of Life to baseball as he brought out the fact that people must play that game according to certain principles, just as one plays baseball.

He made this comparison more specific by four points: "First," he told the seniors, "you must play the game fair. Above all, be honest in all your activities." Mr. Howard reminded them that it was better to be honest and lose than to be dishonest and get by.

"To play the Game of Life you must play hard," continued the speaker. He entreated them to fight and fight hard at the game and to always appear cheerful to the outside world even though troubles might appear to make that difficult.

"A good player," he went on, "must know and obey the rules." In baseball the nine men learn how to play and then play.

As a last reminder Mr. Howard brought out this fact to the seniors, "you must always obey your Captain." He illustrated this point by the baseball player who although he hesitated at first, obeyed his coach and made it possible for the home to win. "Your Captain," he brought out, "is Jesus.

Obey Him—Always." Mr. Howard pointed out that if the seniors would play the Game of Life fair, play it hard, know the rules, and obey the Captain just as a baseball player plays his game the Game will be won.

Before Mr. Howard delivered his sermon, Miss Faustina Shearon and Miss Helen Edwards sang "Still As The Night."

Wilbur Lamm, a former student at Bunn and now a student at Campbell College, introduced Mr. Howard to the audience.

LOUISBURG COLLEGE NEWS

(By Richard Auger)
Last week the Louisburg College Players presented "Skidding" to the largest audience that has witnessed such a performance in the club's history. E. B. Roberts, of Wake Forest, was a lovable and convincing "Andy Hardy" and received ample support from the rest of the cast: Margaret Cox, Cary; Margaret Trigg, Wilmington; Emmette Harrison, Hamlet; Samuel Arrington, Hollister; Alice Cahill, Winston-Salem; Evelyn Earnhardt, Louisburg; Lester Stallings, Hobbsville; Alma Becton, Eureka; and Harold Davis, Warrenton.

The Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. met jointly for the first time since Spring Holidays last week. A splendid program was given, climaxed by a speech on "The Significance of Easter" by Dr. A. Paul Bagby, Minister of the Louisburg Baptist Church.

The Louisburg College Orchestra made their debut at the Louisburg College Auditorium last week during the presentation of "Skidding" by the Louisburg College Players. Leader Byerly is a graduate of the University of North Carolina, did post-graduate work at the University of Rochester, specializing in music. Featuring his trombone and the silver-voiced vocalism of Eunice Collins, the orchestra has a full schedule for the near future.

The Louisburg College Dean's List for mid-semester consisted of the following:
J. Ransom Bain, Four Oaks, N. C.; Frances L. Brown, Gatesville, N. C.; Lillian Cope, Middlesex, N.

C.; Ruth Grey Harris, North Marlboro, N. C.; Ethel Holton, New Bern, N. C.; Robert Luis, Cuba; Martha Windley, Bridgeton, N. C. These have a standing of half A's and half B's.

FAVORABLE
Prospects continue to favor increased egg production and increased production and marketing of poultry this year as compared with 1933, reports the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

AGAIN
For the third consecutive month a decline has occurred in local market prices for farm products, bringing the price index to the lowest point since July, 1934.
