RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

In memory of Brother S. Elmo Pearce who died June 2, 1939. "There is only a hurlin between us, Between the beyond and here; They whom we call dead have not left us Nay, they were never so near." Leaves have their time to fall, and flowers to wither, at the north wind's cold blast, but thou, oh Death! hath all seasons for thine own. Once again a brother Mason, having completed the designs written for him on life's trestle board, has passed through the portals of Eternity and entered the Grand Lodge of the New Jerusalem and hath received, as his reward, the white stone with a new name written thereon. AND WHEREAS, The all-wise and Merciful Master of the Universe, has called from labor, to refreshment our beloved and respected brother, AND WHEREAS, He having been a true and faithful brother of our beloved Order, therefore, be it RESOLVED, That Youngsville Lodge No. 377, A. F. & A. M., Youngsville, N. C. in testimony of her loss, be draped in mourning for thirty days, and that we tender to the family of our deceased brother our sincere condolence in their deep affliction, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, and a copy sent to the FRANKLIN TIMES for publication. IN MEMORIAM After a lingering illness, the spirit of Mrs. George W. Ford quietly passed away in the early morning of June 7th, 1939. Miss Lula, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stegall was born October 30th, 1854, in Louisburg, North Carolina. 'Twas here she spent most of her life, growing from childhood to beautiful young womanhood. She graduated from Louisburg College, and truly reflected glory on her Alma Mater. As the years slipped by she developed those innate qualities of kindness, sincerity, understanding, and with all a keen sense of humor, which drew to her many friends, true and lasting. In December 1879 she was married to Mr. George W. Ford. Perhaps this happy marriage was the beginning of a bigger and fuller life. The man of her choice measured up to every requirement of a gentle loving husband, as she became, with sweet dignity, a loyal, devoted wife. In the new home which they builded, abounded a gracious hospitality;—a welcome to visitors from far and near, as well as to friends. Children came to this home, and to Mrs. Ford this was her crowning joy, for motherhood seemed to form like a halo over her life. Lula Stegall Ford was fashioned for the best things in life,—and to her the best things came. Sorrows came too, as they must to all. Losing first her father, later her mother, both of whom she adored, even as she was adored by them. These sorrows, drew her nearer to the Master whom she faithfully trusted, and left no stain of bitterness in her heart. Mrs. Ford was one of the most cultured women of the town, her bright intellect and sunny cheerfulness, make her much sought after. After many years, the Death Angel entered her home again and took her faithful companion, the husband, in whose love she had been so secure. Soon after her beloved son, Ned, was taken. The going of these two whom she had loved and lost awhile, cast a gloom over her life and home which seemed too deep to fathom. Only the loving, tender memories, too beautiful to fade, could reveal the silver lining of the dense clouds, and bless her life through her remaining years. Then the Indian Summer of her life! Can one say this was the most beautiful time? Such full days, such well spent days! "After the bud and blossom, After the heat and the harvest of summer— There are none so perfect as the halcyon days Of Indian Summer." So gradually did those days pass into a woman grown old, so alert in every faculty of mind, so understanding of young people—and all people, so interested in current affairs, so much in touch with vital things, made it difficult to realize that "Sunset and evening star, And one clear call" would soon bring eternal peace, which came to her, like a benediction after prayer. It is to the daughters and grandchildren that the shadows fall deepest. But to them she leaves a wonderful heritage that will comfort and bless them all through the coming years. —A FRIEND. PROTECT SUMMER HOMES AND CAMPS FROM FIRE The pleasure and profit to be gained from summer homes and camps can be transformed easily into tragedy and loss by fire. These temporary homes, by their very nature, call for greater vigilance during week-end and vacation occupancy. The use of kerosene for lamps and stoves is a common source of fire. But if a few simple rules are observed, the danger can be greatly reduced. Fill lamps and stoves in the daylight so you can see what you are doing. Store kerosene and all other flammable liquids outside the house. Use a tank or drum that has a drip-proof faucet and keep a drip pan under the faucet. Never start or hasten a fire with kerosene or any other flammable liquid. If a portable kerosene heater is to be used, make sure it is one listed by the Underwriters' Laboratories. Don't make improper alterations of electric wiring. Guard against over-heating of stoves which are near woodwork; the us-
