GRADUATE SCHOOL FOR NEGROES

Durham, N. C., July 3.—Announcement of the faculty for a graduate school at North Carolina College for Negroes in Durham marks not only a new era in higher education for the Negro race in the state but also represents the friendly spirit of goodwill and cooperation that exists between the races here.

Incidentally, the graduate school is also the state assembly's unanimous answer to the decision of the U. S. Supreme Court, which ruled that Negroes are entitled to graduate work in the State. Its establishment, however, comes as the direct result of a well-planned movement started some years ago by progressive leaders of both races to cope with a problem that had been fast coming to the front.

ties to the Negro youth of the state.

Dr. James E. Shepard, president and founder of the college, has voiced high praise for the spirit of mutual friendship between the races that has made this program possible.

President Shepard also points out that educational opportunities of the first magnitude are now open for the first time within this state to Negroes seeking advanced training.

From Carolina, Dr. Edgar W. Knight, Dr. A. M. Jordan, and Dr. H. R. Douglass, of the department of education, have been secured for the fall, winter, and spring terms respectively.

sociology, respectively. Dr. A. S. Pearce of the Duke department of zoology, will have charge of that course at N. C. College, while Dr. D. C. Allen, assistant professor of English at Duke, will conduct the classes in English literature.

In addition to the graduate school of education, schools of law, pharmacy, and medicine are in prospect.

During recent years, N. C. College has made unprecedented expansion. Many new buildings have already been erected to provide for its increasing sphere of service, and five more are now in process of construction.

The present faculty includes many eminent Negro educators, and more will be added as time progresses. Latest addition is Dr. W. Edward Farrison of Bennett College, who will head the English department.
