Additional plantings of alfalfa are being made in Transylvania County following success with small plantings made last year. P. A. Morgan of Cherryfield and Mrs. Judd McCrary of Pisgah Forest are making the new seedings.

M. L. White and C. W. Askev of Mt. Oliver, Bertie County, have each applied 100 pounds of magnesium sulphate to an acre of cotton to test the effect of the material on the crop, says R. D. Smith, assistant county agent.

But It's True

Mr. Mears was perhaps too fast for "Oswald," decided to put a fur coat on him. Mr. Kitchell explained later that his keeper friends so well that he just couldn't be dissuaded from following Mr. Kitchell's lead.

NEGRO BADLY SHOT WHEN MISTAKEN FOR ESCAPED PRISONER

Edenton, July 15.—John Johnson, 40-year-old Negro employe of a logging camp near here, was shot in the thigh last night when he ran after being ordered to halt by C. A. Cooke, member of a 29-man posse that has been combing Perquimans and Chowan counties for three Negro convicts who escaped from Woodville prison camp Monday.

Johnson, who was mistaken for one of the convicts by Cooke when he ran was rushed to a clinic, where physicians worked for nearly three hours removing buckshot from his legs. J. M. Tolar, superintendent of Woodville prison camp, expressed his regret at the accident. No charges were preferred against Cooke.

Timely Farm Questions

Answered at State College

QUESTION: How can I estimate the amount of silage necessary for my dairy herd?

ANSWER: Since the average cow will consume one cubic foot of silage each day it will be necessary to multiply the number of cows by the number of feeding days. The result will be the amount of silage required in cubic feet. One cubic foot of silage from a trench silo will average 35 pounds and this factor multiplied by the number of cubic feet required will give the amount required in pounds.

QUESTION: When should early molting be taken from the poultry flocks?

ANSWER: Remove as soon as molt appears or when production ceases. The flock should be carefully watched during July and August and all birds that go into a molt or that stop laying should be sold or consumed. Many mediocre birds stop laying late in August and the first part of September and these too should be removed from the flock. The birds that are still laying in these latter months should be carefully culled for breeding hens next spring as they will come back into lay earlier and will transmit their laying qualities to their offspring.

QUESTION: What is the best temperature for proper curing of tobacco?

ANSWER: The temperature changes with the various curing conditions and must be governed by the individual barn of tobacco. A temperature of from five to ten degrees higher than the outside temperature should be maintained in the barn until the leaf is fairly yellow. It should then be raised from four to five degrees each hour, depending upon the rapidity with which the green is fading, until a temperature of 120 to 125 degrees is reached. Hold this until the tips of the leaves begin to dry and then raise it from four to six degrees each hour until 135 to 140 degrees have been reached. After the leaf is dry raise the temperature from 5 to 10 degrees an hour until 180 to 190 degrees is reached and hold until the leaf stem is dry in all parts of the barn.

DON'T BURN HAY

Farmers who burn straw stacks not only destroy valuable livestock feed but they also destroy large amounts of fertilizer elements along with mulching material which might be widely used in erosion control and moisture retention on farms, according to William E. Adams, Assistant Agronomist of the Soil Conservation Service in the Tar River District near Franklinton, N. C.

Mature horses, cows and sheep which are merely being maintained, can live chiefly on straw roughage, for in every 1000 pounds of oat straw there are ten pounds of crude protein, 425 pounds of carbohydrates and 9 pounds of fat.

Straw spread over pastures and meadow strips and used as mulch on gullied and galled land is an excellent moisture conserver, according to Adams, for every 1000 is a waste of useful material, Adams points out.
