

Youngsville School To Open

Prof. M. K. Carswell, Principal announces that the Youngsville School will open Monday, Sept. 4th, at 8:30 a. m. There will be a meeting of all students and teachers in the auditorium at 8:30. Parents and patrons will be welcome, and are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

After the meeting students and teachers will go to their class rooms for classification and further instruction as to schedules and other plans of work. Students of grades one to seven will be given free use of basal text books. There will be a fee of 50 to 70 cents for supplementary readers.

High School students will be required to furnish their own books, or to rent all of the books. A flat fee of $2.40 will be paid by all who rent books. Students should take the rent money to school the first or second day of school. The whole $2.40 will be paid to the home room teacher, and each subject teacher will give the book she uses to the student who presents a receipt.

The school and county officials have been hard at work to improve this school, and help to improve and expand the school and community service. The building is being painted, the grounds improved and more service offered to the people. We may mention a few things: The P.T.A., during the past two years, has helped to pay off debts amounting to nearly $300. It has established, also, a Cafeteria; helped improve grounds and procure playground equipment for many of the children.

Another comparatively new service is offered by the Agriculture department of the school. In looking about the school we find that the agriculture teacher, Mr. F. C. Winston, and his class have made tables and other equipment for the library, cafeteria, playground and other places. Most of the farm boys have shown unusual interest and some have made outstanding records in their work: The agriculture class won the plaque given by the Rotary club last year to the outstanding class in the county. At the last meeting of the Young Tar Heel Farmers held in Raleigh, in July, Bervin Perry of Youngsville was elected State reporter, and awarded the Carolina Farmer degree.

This year it is planned to offer a commercial course in the school for part time students and for students of the tenth and eleventh grades who have the desire and ability to do the work. It is regretted that this course can not be offered free, as there will be charges for certain necessary expenses. Those interested in taking the commercial course should see the teacher, Mrs. Maude B. Schofield, or the principal of the school, and make arrangements to begin work at the opening of the school.

All students are urged to enter school on the first day, if possible. Parents are requested to make arrangements for their children to enter with as nearly complete supplies of paper, pencils and so forth as possible. The principal will be at the school building each Saturday at 2:00 p. m. to assist in any way possible, the patrons of the school, until September 2.

PREPARE ANNIVERSARY EDITION

E. P. DAVIDSON

J. W. ALDRIDGE

Raleigh, Aug. 17.—As a feature of State College's 50th anniversary celebration October 3, The Technician, campus weekly newspaper, will issue a 50-page anniversary edition containing pictorial and news highlights of the college's history and current administration. It is one of the most ambitious projects ever undertaken by a college newspaper in the United States.

Editor and business manager of The Technician for the approaching school year are pictured above. Both are spending the summer at work on the 50-page edition. Editor E. P. Davidson comes from Murphy. Business Manager J. W. Aldridge, right, is a resident of Hamlet.

A feature of the big edition will be an eight-page rotogravure section full of interesting photographs, old and new, of State College scenes and personalities. About 100 carefully selected photographs will be contained in the entire edition. Numerous feature stories will describe the college's growth and present accomplishments. The edition will be published September 29.
