Make Sure THAT YOUR COTTON GETS ENOUGH POTASH

PROFITS from cotton dwindle when the crop cannot get enough potash. Cotton rust is potash starvation. Decreased yields, more wilt injury, and poor quality lint and fiber result when soil and fertilizer do not supply plenty of this important plant food. Experimental work has shown that the value of the crop can be reduced as much as $25 per acre due to lack of potash.

A recommended application at planting time is 400-600 pounds, per acre, of a fertilizer containing 6-10% potash. At chopping time, more can be added in a nitrogen-potash top-dresser containing the equivalent of 50-100 pounds of muriate of potash.

Ask your county agent or experiment station how much potash your soil will supply and how much to add to carry your crop through to profit. Then make sure that your dealer sells you a fertilizer containing enough potash to supply what you need. You will be surprised how little extra it costs.

Write us for further information and free literature on the profitable fertilization of crops.
