Sewing Rooms

The editor had the pleasure of visiting the WPA Sewing rooms at Franklinton on Tuesday morning. He was very enthusiastically entertained by Mrs. John B. Yarborough, Supervisor of the Project, who explained the working procedure. It was interesting to see splendid system used in the handling, making and recording all work. The material comes to the sewing room ready cut and is gathered into single garments and carried through the sewing room where each machine or worker does a particular part of the work. Like the assembling of an automobile, being completed when passing the last of thirty-eight sewing machines, then they go to the button sewers and from there to the pressers and are finished for return to the office where they are packed ready for shipment. A complete check is kept on these garments from the time they are shipped to Raleigh for distribution.

It was a busy place in the sewing room where the hum of the sewing machines was ever sounding and the garments passing on to completion. Everything was precision, and when completed the garment was equal to any of a like class in any of the stores coming from the bigger factories. Each little detail was observed and followed even to the exact spacing of the rows of stitches and the width of the bands.

The garments made are of a great variety of useful wearing apparel for men, women and children, and for each season. Among some of them are aprons, bathrobes, dresses, gowns, pajamas, slips, step-ins, blouses, coats, combination skirts, suits, sun suits, B.V.D.s, shirts, overalls, pants shorts, undershirts, play suits, lumber jackets, etc.

On most projects the Federal government furnishes only funds for labor, but the sewing room is a production project and it requires more money to operate. For this reason it is necessary for the sponsors to furnish a part. The large equipment is furnished by WPA. In return for whatever the sponsors furnish the county is given garments in proportion to the sponsor's contribution.

This sewing room is located over Allen's Grill at Franklinton and is inviting visitors from all over Franklin County go in and see the work in progress. The number of women working in the sewing room at present is 42, and the largest number on the pay roll during the year was 47. The number of garments made during the year was 12,187. The workers are paid 24 cents an hour and can make a total of $31.20 per month, being allowed to make only 20 days. The total pay roll for the year was $15,191.63.

In addition to the regular workers Mrs. Yarborough is assisted by Mrs. Vallie Watkins, Floorwoman; Mrs. Joe Hayes, Clerk. The area Supervisor of sewing is Mrs. Nan G. Read.

The work was very interesting, the workers all seemed pleased and happy in their employment, and the entire project gave evidence of fulfilling a needed venture both to the recipients of the work, those engaged in the production and the sponsors. It is a treat to visit and see this interesting project in full swing.

Writing of this project, Mr. Harvey T. Bartholomew, County Commissioner from District No. 5, says: "I visited the Franklin County Sewing rooms very recently and had the opportunity to observe the procedure of the work from the start to finish of the garments."

"I was very much impressed with the splendid system and material results. The rooms were perfect in order, and had a business-like air, the women in line, neatly dressed, happy and very earnest in their work. The output of garments as to quality and quantity is very gratifying."

"We, as sponsors of this project, consider it one of the best WPA projects in our county, and are justly proud of their work and accomplishments. This is a production unit and a fine asset to the county as it brings into the county many times the value of the cash expended for it by the county."

"The Sewing rooms are located in Franklinton and will be open for inspection from 9 o'clock A. M. to 4:30 P. M. every day during Community Activity Week, May 20-25. All visitors will be cordially welcomed.

H. T. BARTHOLOMEW."

Fifty-four women attended a canning demonstration in the Home Economics Food Laboratory of Mills High School on Tuesday. The demonstration was on the canning of vegetables and was given by Miss Myron Clinard of the Ball Bros. Co. Miss Clinard canned snaps, beans, beets and carrots. She said she selected these three vegetables because they required the same time for processing or cooking. While these three were cooking in the pressure cooker she prepared tomato juice and canned it then prepared Sour Kraut. Miss Clinard prepared the kraut by shredding the cabbage, packing it firmly but not too tightly in the can, adding one heaping teaspoon full of salt to the quart then filling the can with boiling hot water and sealing.

The women present represented Home Demonstration clubs, WPA workers, NYA workers and Farm Security workers and the Home Economics group.

The fourteenth district of Home Demonstration clubs will hold its annual meeting at Gaston School in Northampton County, May 17. Dean I. O. Schaub of Raleigh will give the address in the morning. Mrs. Bernice Kelly Harris, author of purlane and a resident of Northampton County will talk in the afternoon.

HARRIS' ENDORSEMENT

Supt. G. B. Harris, of the Franklinton Schools, writes: "The care and condition of school laboratories is always an important part of school routine. Every school principal and teacher has long realized that from a sanitary standpoint that care of these places is very important. Then too, an important part of any child's education is the care of public property. A glance at walls of any public laboratory is enough to convince one that much is to be done along this line."

"Franklinton School for the past two years has been very fortunate in having two matrons working on the W. P. A. Matron Service Project which has rendered a very fine service here. Rest Room have been kept in an excellent condition. This condition is reflected in the morale of the school. In my opinion, this is one of the best services extended to the schools by government aid. "I might add also that through government aid the school has had helpful library service. Much improvement has been made since this service began."

"School and Public libraries are important factors in the educational progress of any community. Franklinton through its efficient librarians have better library facilities than ever before."

"I am asking you to inspect these two projects during 'This Work Pays Your Community' Week May 20-25."
