most to the second floor. Over 7,000 cords of pulp wood was washed down the current from one paper mill.

The Roanoke crest was not expected until tomorrow between noon and 8 o'clock, and all along the river valley families were moving into higher towns.

One home at Roanoke Rapids was washed completely from its foundation, and others were swamped. At Weldon scores of homes were awash to the floor level.

Bridge, road and telephone washouts completely isolated Caledonia and its 400 prisoners, who saw $75,000 worth of lowland crops wash away earlier.

Scotland Neck residents put out in boats to rescue several families reported stranded on a "neck" in the river in Northampton County.

Weldon lost its water supply and saw Shaw's Island completely covered; the Weldon Manufacturing Company there being swamped.

Forty thousand pounds of Austrian Winter peas were received in Louisburg Monday, August 19, by the Franklin County Agricultural Conservation Association for the farmers of Franklin County to assist in earning soil building practices and will be available for delivery upon application at the County Office in Louisburg.

The Roanoke River rose to 54 feet at Weldon—a foot above the "great flood" of November, 1877, and two feet above the highest official recording, made in March 1912. The fourteenth day of rain promised to send the river even higher.

John W. Newsom, 24, and Jack Hale, 30, were drowned at Weldon when the current washed them from a highway they were attempting to wade.

Five feet of water swept over U. S. 301 south of Scotland Neck, and the Roanoke Swamp threatened U. S. 258 north of Scotland Neck. Working since Friday midnight, 100 convicts are building a levee to protect a three-mile fill on U. S. 258 across the swamp.

A record of 9.57 inches of rain at Tarboro in the past 72 hours pushed the Tar River toward the expected 30-foot peak. At 1:00 o'clock yesterday, the Tar measured 23.4 feet. (The Tar reached 33.2 at Tarboro in 1919.)

Caledonia Prison Farm, Aug. 17—"Old Man" Roanoke River gained the upper hand on 400 State Prison convicts here today, surging forward and upward, and sending to higher levels all persons in its threatened course.

The record-breaking flood waters of the river burst through the upper end of the nine-mile dyke protecting the prison farm this afternoon, and poured down upon the lowland crops.

Earlier in the day, a series of four dynamite charges blasted a hole in the eastern dykwall encircling the farm, as State Highway officials sought to relieve pressure on the directly-struck upper bank and spare the 100-year-old protective barrier from complete destruction.

Nine miles of the dyke touches the raging Roanoke waters, and behind this earthen wall lays a stretch of 2,200 fertile lowland acres, that were only this morning green with clover, corn, vetch, lespedeza and other feed crops. With the dynamite charges, a ten by four feet hole was torn in the levee, and tons of yellowish water roared through. But this was not sufficient to save the western side.

Thirteen boys and girls representing eight 4-H Clubs in the county will leave for A. T. College, at Greensboro, Monday August 26, to attend the State 4-H Club Short Course. These members will take part in varied activities for the entire week.

These delegates represent 4-H Clubs in the following communities: Copeland Perry, Concord, Rocky Ford, Cross Road, Little Mill, Perry, Cedar Rock and Gethsemane.

Only 8 Negro 4-H Clubs are in the county at the present time, but more will be organized during the coming year as was announced by J. E. Tuck, Negro County Agent.

Approximately 1,200 applications have been received from low-income Nash County farm families for mattresses under the new Federal-State cotton surplus disposal program.

A careful check of cotton fields in all sections of Halifax County reveals an excellent crop with practically no boll weevil infestations, reports Farm Agent W. O. Davis.

Increased industrial production for national defense is expected to create a sound improvement in domestic demand for farm products, reports the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

A total of 2,214 persons were injured in traffic accidents in North Carolina the first half of 1940.

Farm News about the AAA and other EXTENSION WORK From the County Agent

The County Agents' Offices and AAA Offices in Agricultural Building will be closed on Wednesday afternoon, August 28, for the last week of the Summer Schedule.
