Mrs. Valentine Entertains, Honoring Mrs. Ben H. White, of Norfolk and Louisburg
 On last Friday afternoon Mrs. Wiley Valentine entertained at bridge honoring Mrs. Ben H. White, a recent bride. Mrs. Valentine's old country home was lovely with orange marigolds in odd containers around which were sprays of ivy that added to the unique arrangement carrying out completely the color scheme of orange and green. In the living room amidst the huge bowls of marigolds were dotted here and there miniature containers of dwarf marigolds with sprays of ivy going from one to another. On the old time mantle were sprays of ivy twined in and out among crystal holders containing tall white candles. Here three tables were set for playing.
 Receiving at the door was Miss Fannie Mae Valentine; Mrs. Wiley Valentine introduced the guests to the honoree. Upon entrance, Mrs. White, attractively gowned in midnight blue with white trimmings, was given a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.
 Very early in the afternoon, the guests were served orange fruit punch poured over green ice cubes.
 At the end of three progressions of contract, Mrs. R. E. Timberlake, Jr. was given a box of Old English Spiced Soap for high score, Miss Rachel Wheelless was given a guest size of Coty's powder and perfume. Miss Regina Carter received travelling prize, Dutch novelties. The honoree, Mrs. White, was given Cape Cod Crystal Goblets.
 Cards were removed and orange and green covers were laid for refreshments. Lights were cut off and the tall white candles were lighted. The hostess assisted by Miss Fannie Mae Valentine, a sister, and Mrs. Brooks Privette; a niece, served an ice course consisting of orange cake iced in green and lime and orange sherbert. On each plate each guest found a miniature Cape Cod Piece of crystal tied in green and orange.
 Those attending were: Mrs. R. E. Timberlake, Jr., Mrs. Amanda Holding, Mrs. Durward May, Miss Mildred Winston, Miss Regina Carter from Youngsville; Miss Gertrude Winston of Louisburg; Miss Rachel Wheelless, Mrs. Ben Wheelless from near, Louisburg; Miss Allene Bass from Momeyer; Mrs. Brooks Privette, Bailey; Mrs. Bruce Sykes and Miss Fannie Mae Valentine, Spring Hope, and the honoree, Mrs. White from Norfolk and Louisburg.
 Mrs. White was formerly Miss Nellie Ruth Hicks from Severn, N. C. Mr. and Mrs. White are teachers-of Franklin County, and both are members of the Edward Best School in Franklin County.

Timely Farm Questions
 Answered at State College

QUESTION: How should the pullet flock be culled?
ANSWER: According to C. F. Parrish, State College extension poultryman, the pullet flock, if it has been fed and housed properly, should be ready now to begin laying. The only culling possible in this kind of flock is the elimination of the very small deformed pullets and those with small combs, an indication of slow sexual maturity. This weeding out of the runts is perhaps the safest culling that can be practiced with pullets at this season. Of course, the older birds may be culled throughout the year.

QUESTION: Can AAA cotton marketing cards be transferred from one person to another?
ANSWER: Cotton marketing cards are personal property and should not be loaned to any other person for the purpose of signing or selling cotton in his name. The AAA warns that future payments may be withheld if there is evidence to show that these cards have been misused. These marketing cards should be shown to the ginner, since he is required by law to make complete and accurate reports on all cotton ginned, giving the grower's name and the serial number on his marketing card.

QUESTION: What are prospects for good quality small grain seed this fall?
ANSWER: A. D. Stuart of State College says North Carolina has one of the best supplies of quality planting seed in years. Certified seed growers this fall will have approximately 37,000 bushels of wheat, 41,000 bushels of oats, 22,000 bushels of barley, and 4,000 bushels of rye to supply the State with its demands for pure seed.
