Questions

Answered at State College

QUESTION: What are the best planting dates for corn, cotton and peanuts?

ANSWER: Dr. G. K. Middleton, professor of field crops at State College, has prepared a Spring Planting Calendar for the State, and he lists April 10 as the best planting date for corn in the Coastal Plain and Piedmont, and May 1 as the best planting date in the Mountains. For cotton, the best planting dates are April 20 in the Coastal Plain and April 25 in the Piedmont. Peanuts, a Coastal Plain crop, can be set from April 15 to June 1, but the best planting date is May 5.

QUESTION: What are the minimum rates of seeding to earn credit for seeding practices under the 1941 Agricultural Conservation Program?

ANSWER: The State AAA Committee, with the advice of the Extension Service, has set the following minimum seeding rates per acre for certain legumes and grasses: Lespedeza, 20 pounds sericea, 15 pounds scarified; alfalfa, 25 pounds; timothy, 15 pounds; red top, 10 pounds; sweet clover, 10 pounds hulled; white clover, 5 pounds; blue grass, 10 pounds; orchard grass, 25 pounds; and Dallis grass, 5 pounds.

QUESTION: When can tomato plants and sweet corn be safely set out in the garden?

ANSWER: Frost danger is usually averted if tomato plants are set out after April 10 to 15 in the Tidewater section, after April 15-30 in the Coastal Plain and Piedmont, and after May 1-15 but before June 15 in the Mountains. Sweet corn may be planted safely after April 1-15 in the Tidewater, April 15-30 in the Coastal Plain and Piedmont, and after April 15-May 1 in the Mountains. Sweet corn should be planted before July 15 in the Mountains to avoid fall frost damage.
