STATE COLLEGE ANSWERS TIMELY FARM QUESTIONS

QUESTION: How should I cook meat for canning?
ANSWER: There are several ways to pre-cook meat for canning. It is recommended that if meat is to be cooked before it is canned, that it should not be more than half done. "It can be browned quickly in a small amount of hot fat in a frying pan; it can be roasted in an oven; or it can be stewed or boiled. Do not add salt to the meat until after it is packed in the jars. It is also emphasized that a pressure cooker is essential in canning meats and that other methods are not safe."

QUESTION: What is the best period to rid cattle of lice?

ANSWER: Fall is the best season of the year to treat cattle for lice. If the cattle are treated while the weather is still fairly warm and before they are put in winter quarters, this will prevent infesting the barn with the biting louse. It is suggested that two treatments be made, about 14 to 16 days apart. The first treatment gets the grown lice and the second treatment the lice which were not hatched at the first treatment.

QUESTION: What can I use as a substitution for bone meal in the hog ration?

ANSWER: When the supply of bone meal began to get short, it was recommended that 10 pounds of ground limestone, 10 pounds of steamed bone meal, and five pounds of salt as a mineral mixture to be kept before hogs at all times. Since it is practically impossible to get bone meal, it is now recommended a mixture of 10 pounds of ground limestone and 2 pounds of salt.

Prizes were War Stamps.

Miss Crowder presented a gift in crystal to Mrs. Maurice C. Joyner who prior to her marriage this month was Miss Kathryn Foster.

The hostess served a sweet course after the game.

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

By W. O. Lambeth

Raymond Wood of the Edward Best Community has cut 140 bales of sericea lespedeza hay in two mowings from a three acre plot of sericea and expects to get another cutting this season. Mr. Wood is well pleased with the quality of the hay but says that it has to be cut when it is young and tender to get the best results.

H. H. Price, Colored Extension Agent, assisted technicians of the Tar River Soil Conservation District last week in preparing a complete soil conservation plan on the farm of Ben H. Canady, colored farmer of Franklinton. Route 1. Ben has recently purchased his farm through the assistance of the Farm Security Administration and is interested in an all round soil conservation program. He will retire the steeper hillsides to kudzu and sericea lespedeza. Three acres will be seeded down in meadow strips and five acres seeded to permanent pasture. Four acres of cut-over woodland will be spot planted in loblolly pines and a two acre stand of young pines will be thinned.

Arthur Kearney, colored tenant on the Jerry F. Williams farm near Franklinton, cut two acres of good kudzu hay last week.

The War Food Administration says that civilians will receive about 70 per cent of the prospective supply of canned vegetables, including soups, and 53 per cent of the canned fruits and juices in the next year.
