CHEMICAL WARFARE IS DANGEROUS BUSINESS OR—A WORD TO THE WISE IS SUFFICIENT

By Sgt. Art MacDonald

(The following article was taken from 'Tropical Daze' a magazine published by and for the Enlisted men of the United States Army Base in British Guiana.)

If you should decide that you'd like to drop around to the Chemical Warfare Headquarters one of these fine days, you might have an all-day job trying to find it.

These boys in the C. W. work are doing their job efficiently and earnestly, yet quietly. It's their business to see that you and I are well equipped, and are able to act intelligently and carry on coolly, in cases of emergency.

Sgt. Cary M. Howard, Jr., is the man in charge of the C. W. service here on the Base. He works under Capt. Paul J. Ritter and Lt. Donald M. Crooks, Base Gas Officer and Base Chemical Warfare Property Officer respectively. Working with Sgt. Howard are a couple of able men who also know what this business is all about, Tj5 Richard G. Timples and Pfc. Howard L. Carl.

The duties of these men are an important part of our total war program, and the purposes of their organization are manifold. The C. W. Service is charged with the supply, instruction, the repair and salvage of C. W. material.

It also trains troops in the ways of individual protection, as well as decontamination of contaminated areas; it teaches men the ways of using the weapons at their command, for both defensive and offensive tactics, and it cooperates with all branches of the Army and Navy in matters pertaining to Chemical Warfare.

Sgt. Cary M. Howard, Jr. entered service Feb. 6th, 1942, and from Fort Bragg he was sent to Edgewood Arsenal, Md., for his basic training in Chemical Warfare Service. In April he went to Beardsley Field, at Mobile, Ala., for further training. A month later he embarked for one of the British lend-lease bases in the Caribbean. After several months there he with a group was sent on detached service to one of the South American bases. Since his arrival at the Base he has made several flights across the Atlantic to other British possessions in the interest of Chemical Warfare.

Sgt. Howard, who has been spending several weeks furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Howard, here, returned last week to resume his duties in the Service.

would leave our domestic retail outlets free from unfair competition and introduce some of our foreign goods at extremely low costs to certain nations to which the War may not have brought them.

NEGRO EXTENSION SERVICE
By H. H. Price
Negro County Agent
Wilhelmina R. Laws, Negro Subject-Matter Specialist, in Home Demonstration work for the State visited the County for two days last week. The purpose of her visits was to give demonstration in the preservation of meat. She gave two demonstrations: one to the women's club in the Concord neighborhood and one to the women's club in the Perry neighborhood. Miss Laws demonstrated the canning of pork, beef and chicken by use of the steam pressure cooker. She also demonstrated a new method of cooking soy beans; what she termed the spout method. She is from the Negro State Extension Office, A. & T. College, Greensboro, N. C.

H. E. Satterwhite Rt. 2, Zebulon, N. C., in the Gethsemane neighborhood treated 26 peach trees in his home orchard for peach tree borers. He used a 15% solution of paradichlorobenzene. This preparation can be bought at the Farmers Exchange in Louisburg.

Z. C. Messenburg Rt. 4, Louisburg, in the Maplesville neighborhood is using a new of sweet potato curing and storage crate for his potato house this year. This crate has proved its worth in saving potatoes if handled correctly. Anyone desiring to see how it is built may stop by the Negro Extension Service office.

ANNOUNCEMENT
Principal Carl A. Harris announces the following schedule of planned activities with reference to the issuance of War Ration Book No. 4, at the Franklin County Training School.
In order that we may do a fair part of our school work each day, and yet serve the community as is expected of us, we ask that the people of the community come in accordance with the following schedule:
Each day from 12:00 Noon to 5:00 P. M. Oct. 25 Monday: Those persons whose last names begin with A-B-C-D-E.
Oct. 26 Tuesday: F-G-H-I-J.

close to the cost of the materials involved.
CONCLUSION
In time of war, as we know it today, the Army and Navy buy and use practically every kind of material that is necessary to civilian life. This first brings about shortages in consumers goods but in turn surpluses are very apt to result. My own suggestion to relieve the situation as it continues to develop is to include these surplus goods under Lend-Lease and after the War to get rid of the balance through direct foreign sales.
