Off The Record Comments

I hear that one of our well known county gentlemen, quite prominent in agricultural circles, is thinking of taking up fox hunting.

Seems that he recently had a chance to go fox hunting on a new cadillac and he turned down the opportunity.

The way I heard this tale is as follows: This gentleman was walking down the street in Louisburg when he heard some one call to him, "Hey, come on and lets go fox hunting."

Upon hearing this invitation being offered, by means of an extremely feminine voice coming from a nice new cadillac, he looked around to see who was being invited. It just so happened that there was no one else on the street at that moment; so when the offer was repeated he decided that it was being made to him, which was indeed the case.

He naturally surmised that if he was being invited to go fox hunting there was probably some good friend of his in the car who was getting the girl to do the yelling out the car window.

With this idea in mind, he called back, "O.K. I'm ready, where are we going?" or some such acceptance speech and walked on over to the car.

You can imagine his surprise when he got over to the car to find out that not only were the complete strangers to him, but the car contained several girls, without a man in sight.

I haven't been able to find out exactly how he did it, but they say you have never in your life seen anybody back track as fast as he did. Not even that dog with the transplanted eye.

I understand the girls were dead serious about it. They were on their way to some high faluting fox hunt down around Southern Pines, saw this Franklin County gentleman, and decided they liked his looks, and picked him as the one they wanted to go fox hunting with.

Maybe they just thought that he looked like a sport or perhaps he looked foxy, but what ever the case he didn't go.

Sure wish I had been there with my camera.

They say he got away from there so quickly that he didn't find out who they were, where they were from, or anything.

Someone called my attention to the fact that an ad appearing in a certain newspaper on Thursday Feb. 21, page 8, was some what-unusual. Of course, I wouldn't think of naming the paper. It was a theatre ad which was advertising the fact that "The Raven" would be playing at that certain theatre on Feb. 28, 29, and 30th.

Now I will admit that this came as a big surprise to me, because I figured that this newspaper had always gone by the same calendar that I did and mine brings February to a close on the 28th.

That "Rocky," always trying to change things. Well, maybe the city council figured that the month needed two extra days. I'll admit that these snowy ones are hardly worth counting.

Rescue

The Louisburg Rescue Service was forced to fight through blinding snow to the aid of a man about 5 miles south of here just after 7 o'clock Tuesday night.

Their patient, Ricks Harris, was given oxygen, and taken to Franklin Memorial Hospital.

Bachelor Has 170 Boys

Montreal, Quebec, Canada - A 63-year-old bachelor has a "family" of 170 boys ranging from 10 to 18 years old.

Vernon McAdam, executive director of the Boys Clubs of Canada, also operates a home for boys who have come from broken homes.

Some 4,000 boys have passed through the home in the last 46 years, and 95 per cent have turned out successfully.

Legalistic Lady

Five year-old Thomas was extremely fond of carpentering. Attired in his carpenter's apron and carrying his tiny kit of tools he approached his sister Margaret, aged seven and inquired if there wasn't something he could build for her.

Margaret regarded the tiny workman with an indulgent eye and loftily replied: "Well, I would like a doll's house, but I don't want to employ child labor!"

SPORTS ROUNDUP

BY CLINT FULLER

LOOKING BACK AT THE TOURNAMENT

After so much basketball the past several weeks, it is kinda hard to realize that Tuesday and Friday nights are now open for other things. We miss it. There is always a let-down after the tournament not unlike the day after Christmas. I know that the many youngsters that play on the teams, recognize the feeling.

There is a bit of sadness for those that are seniors and will not be around when the season opens next year. And, we think there is some emptiness within their parents that have followed them on the long trips to the games. They too, will miss the personal interest they have had in the games. However many have become real fans and will continue to enjoy the games even though their own is no longer playing.

Space would not allow us to make any comment on the tournament in last Tuesday's column. So we'd like to make a few here before we put another season to rest.

We agree with Friend Thilbert that it was the most orderly we've seen. Everything certainly went along nicely. We didn't have as many close games as we thought we would have. We were pleased to see Epsom and Edward Best win since they have not won in a number of years. We think this is good for the program. We got a big kick out of watching the fans across from our booth. Their antics were better than the action on the floor for the most part. You could detect their hope when their team was leading and their despair when the score was widened and their favorites were about to lose. We enjoyed seeing so many familiar faces, even though we had trouble fitting them with names as past players were in attendance at most of the games.

Interest continues to grow. With the College Tournament going on here at the same time, there were still capacity crowds every night. On Championship night, folks were waiting to get in the gym at five o'clock that afternoon....two hours before game time.

THE ACC TOURNAMENT

Once again, it is time for the Atlantic Coast Conference to decide on their champion. With Duke just 18 points out of 348 of being the Number One team in the entire nation, they still must play the likes of Clemson, South Carolina, etc. to prove themselves worthy of meeting some like team at College Park, Md. later this month.

We'll not argue the merits of this system. We're happy we have our usual tickets in West Apex, and will be able to see it. There has been a real scramble locally for tickets, and they have been harder to come by this year than in any previous year to our knowledge.

We've never had a connection. However, even those that have boasted of one over the years, will be home listening to the games this time.

If it hadn't been for a friend, we'd be doing the same.
