Baptist Churches To Hear Missionaries

Thirty-five missionaries will assist the churches of the Tar River Baptist Association in Schools of Missions the week of March 10-15. "Two years of careful planning has preceded these schools, and the churches anticipate a revival in missionary concern," stated J. Parker McLendon, Associational Missionary, who is serving as Director for the Schools of Missions.

Each participating church will be host for a visiting missionary, and the speaking schedule will be arranged so that each church will hear seven different missionaries representing associational, state, home, and foreign missions.

Associational missionaries and persons serving through the varied ministries of the Baptist State Convention will participate.
Home Missionaries serving under the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention will come from Texas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Kentucky, Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

Foreign missionaries to Nigeria, Southern Rhodesia, Korea, the Philippines, and Brazil will represent the major fields being served through the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Each participating church will have missionary speakers for the worship services Sunday morning and evening. The week-night services will consist of mission study classes for all age groups followed by a joint
