

Timberlake Rites Set For Friday

Charles E. Timberlake, 53, prominent Raleigh Road merchant and farmer, died this morning at Franklin Memorial Hospital.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday at 3 p.m. from the Lousburg Baptist Church by the pastor, the Rev. Aubrey S. Tomlinson. Burial will follow in Oakwood Cemetery.

Surviving are his wife, the former Fannie Underhill; two daughters, Mrs. Albert Kline of Clemson, S. C., and Miss Martha Carol Timberlake of the home; his mother, Mrs. J. P. Timberlake, Sr., of Lousburg; three sisters, Mrs. Lucy Henderson of Franklin, Mrs. Lula Mae Cooper and Miss Christine Timberlake, both of Lousburg; 1 brother, J. P. Timberlake, Jr., of Lousburg, and two grandchildren.

The body will remain at Lancaster Funeral Chapel until it is removed to the church to lie in state for one hour prior to the service.

Pallbearers will be Rufus Place, W. H. Fuller, I. P. Wheeler, Jack Cooper, T. T. Kemp, and Linwood Bryant.

$58,000 In Capital Credits To Members

Wake Forest, N. C. - Wake Electric Membership Corporation mailed out $58,000 in "capital credits" to its 4600 members last week.

A "capital credit" shows what part of Wake's operating margin for the past year was paid in by each member, according to J. L. Shearon, Wake's Manager.

Shearon urged the cooperative's members to "take careful note of just what the capital credit isn't--as well as what it is."

He said the credits are "not cashable and cannot be taken as a deduction from future electric bills."

Shearon stated that the credits, which are being mailed in the form of a card, are for record purposes only and that they show the following information:

(1) The total dollars and cents each member paid for electric service in 1962; (2) what part of this total is the member's share (capital credit) of the co-op's operating margin for 1962; and (3) the total dollars and cents accumulated in each member's capital credit account for all previous years.

The term "capital credit" is used for good reason, Shearon said. Under Wake's bylaws, the members furnish patronage capital to the cooperative in the amount of whatever operating margins are realized from year to year.

"The operating margin is the excess, if any, of the cooperative's revenues over its expenses for a given year," Shearon said.

He explained that a member's capital credit is determined by the amount of money he has paid for electric service in relation to the percentage of the cooperative's operating margin.

"If a member paid $100 for power in a given year, and the cooperative realized a 12.6 per cent operating margin, the member would have earned a $12.60 capital credit," he said. Capital credit cards are mailed out every year to notify each member of the patronage capital credited to his account for the preceding year.

Under Wake's bylaws, these credits will actually be retired in cash, on a revolving plan (first credits earned, first credits retired), whenever the cooperative has acquired a sufficient amount of these credits for operating capital.

"Our members began their cooperative business with almost 100 per cent debt capital financing from REA," Shearon said. "The capital credits plan is the method by which they will slowly but surely substitute their own capital for that borrowed from REA."

He explained that the cooperative used member-furnished capital to expand its facilities and to repay REA loans ahead of schedule. "Either use, he said, "increases our net worth and improves our financial condition."

Since Wake Electric began operations in 1941, its 4600 members have earned a total of $421,333.83 in capital credits, Shearon stated.

There's A What Back Of My House?

74 year-old Eddie O. Williams an illicit whiskey still behind his of Route 3, Warrenton, voices surprise and doubt as ATTD Officers inform him that there is Williams in the raid.

2 Arrested After Liquor Still Found

A white man and a 74-year-old Negro were arrested this week and charged with possessing an illegal whiskey distillery five miles north of Centerville.

Donald Eugene (Tinker Boy) Jeffries, 22, of Rt. 4, Lousburg, was given a hearing before Federal Commissioner Reva Rothrock and released under $500 bond. Eddie O. Williams, 74, of Rt. 3, Warrenton, was not required to post bond. Officers found equipment used in the manufacture of the illegal whiskey at the back of Williams' home. The still was not in operation at the time.

A five-foot boiler, five 160-gallon barrels, a 300-gallon submarine stills were destroyed by the ATTD officers. Vance County ABC officers and the Warren County Sheriff's Department.

Following Bat Contact

Local Youth Must Take Rabies Shots

A 9 year-old Lousburg youth is undergoing a series of anti-rabies treatments because of the possibility that he was bitten by a bat Tuesday afternoon while playing in a neighbor's yard.

Larry Fuller, son of local radionist - newspaper columnist and Mrs. Clint Fuller, suffered the possible bite when he picked up what he thought to be an injured bird while playing in the yard of Senator and Mrs. W. M. Jolly.

A workman in the Jolly yard killed the winged mammal and became alarmed when an inspection of the youth revealed blood on his wrist. However it was not certain whether the wound was caused by the bat or by the play the boys were engaged in.

The bat, identified as one of the red species found to be infected with rabies in other parts of the state, was taken to the local Health Department and transferred to the State Board of Health laboratory Wednesday where Dr. Martin Hines, recommended the treatment be begun.

State Board of Health officials have issued a warning about exposure to any type of bat, pointing out that it is not necessary to even be bitten to become exposed as the bats can carry the rabies germs on their wings. They also recommend treatment in all cases where there has been a definite exposure.

Authorities explained that there is no sure way to determine if a bat is rabid or not. The very latest tests, a three part series that can take up to 21 days, is only about 50 per cent accurate, they said. So far the department has found only four of a hundred or more bats examined rabid. These were brought in from Salisbury, Durham, Butner and Hillsboro. Two of the four flew into moving automobiles and bit occupants. All are receiving the rabies treatment.

The winged red creacher sent in from Lousburg is the second from the Franklin County area. A bat fell out of a tree during the day at Hal Duke's near Ingleside last Thursday and was discovered by playing children. None of them touched it, however.

The one involving the Fuller youth is expected to undergo the first two tests immediately, with the results being announced by the week end.

Youth Claims Shooting Is Accidental

A 17 year-old Franklinton negro youth has been released under $200 bond on charges of assault with a deadly weapon in connection with the pistol wounding of George Henderson, about 35, also of Franklinton. Franklin Deputy C. P. Gibson said that John Richard Mann claimed the shooting was accidental. Gibson quoted the youth as saying he was fighting with two others and not being satisfied with the two-to-one odds "pulled his pistol and hit one of his opponents over the head."

The force of the blow, Mann claimed, caused the weapon to discharge and its .32 caliber slug hit Henderson, a spectator to the bout, in the groin.

The wounded man was taken to Franklin Memorial Hospital and later transferred to Duke. The combined shooting-boxing match took place in the vicinity of Parker's Place just south of Franklinton.

Hit-Run Car Identified?

Route 1 Man Charged In Hit-Run Accident

A Rt. 1, Lousburg man, John Ball, was arrested late Monday night on charges of hit-and-run and drunken driving.

State Highway Patrolman W. S. Ethridge said the car driven by Ball struck two cars on a rural paved road between U.S. 1 and U.S. 1-A earlier in the day. Drivers of the two cars struck by the Bell car, Clarence Scarborough of Youngsville, and Raeford Lowery of Rt. 3, Wake Forest, told the trooper they pullled completely off the road in order to miss the oncoming car. Their cars were sideswiped.

Ethridge, who was traveling near the accident scene, halted the Bell car, which had one light and damage to the left front end.

The patrolman said Bell admitted the incident. Bell was released under $200 bond.

Another Escapee Hits Snag, Is Recaptured

A fast - thinking would-be prison escapee almost made good in his attempt to leave a road gang near Mitchner's Cross Roads Wednesday afternoon and probably would have, too, except for a little hard luck.

The would-be escapee's luck turned bad when he accidentally ran into a group of officers who were investigating a break-in a couple of miles from the scene of his departure.

The group of officers, consisting of Franklinton Police Chief Leo Edwards, Officer Leslie Joyner and Deputies C. P. Gibson and David Batton, were in the process of investigating a robbery attempt in the vicinity of the Cox Veneer Plant just east of Franklinton, when they were surprised by the approach of an equally startled, sweat covered, and disheveled young man, identified from his clothing as an honor grade prisoner.

For a few seconds the officers just stared at the prisoner and the prisoner likewise stared at them. Then he said, "did you see anything of two of our men? they ran a few minutes ago and I'm trying to get to a phone to call for the dogs."

Deputies Gibson and Batton said that this being the case they would take their car and drive around to the opposite side of the area where the escapees were reported to have headed, while Chief Edwards and Joyner told the honor grader, identified only by his last name, Taylor, to get into the car with them and they would look in the other direction.

This seemed to take the man by surprise, but as there seemed no way out, he climbed into the car with the officers. Chief Edwards put in a call by radio to the Vance County authorities inquiring about the two missing convicts. Word came back that someone was in error. There was only one missing and he was an honor grader. A description of the missing man followed, fitting the man in the police car to a tee.

Chief Edwards radioed back that the missing man was in the car with him and a car was dispatched and the former honor grader was soon back in the Vance County camp, sadder perhaps, but no doubt a wiser man.

Vance Man Hurt In Collision

Robert Anstead, 30, of Henderson was taken to a Wake Forest hospital Tuesday suffering head injuries he received when the vehicle in which he was riding collided with another at the intersection of U.S. 1 and N.C. 96.

State Highway Patrolman E. M. Roberts said a car driven by David Thomas O'Neal, 16, of Rt. 1, Youngsville, crashed a stop sign and collided with the car driven by Anstead's father, Stamey R. Anstead, 55. O'Neal, who was charged with failing to stop at a stop sign and operating a car with improper equipment, told Roberts his brakes failed. Both cars were demolished.

Allotted 6 Tickets

A quota of 6 tickets to the third annual Vance - Aycock Dinner in Asheville has been received for Franklin County. It is announced by James D. Speed, Chairman of the County Democratic Executive Committee.

Some 1200 Democrats representing every county in the state are expected to attend the $25 per plate fund raising dinner on October 26.

Herbert Hyde, Asheville attorney, has been named as General Chairman for the events which will probably include a meeting of county chairman, a reception and the dinner to be held at the City Auditorium.

OES To Meet

William B. Barrow Chapter # 39 O E S will hold a regular meeting on Tuesday evening September 3 at 8 o'clock in the Masonic Temple on Jolly Street. All members are urged to be present.
