Justice Gets New Industry

An industry that will eventually employ between 80 and 90 people will locate in the Justice Community, it was announced Wednesday. The County Board of Education paved the way for the new industry when it approved the sale of the Justice School Building in a special meeting Wednesday afternoon.

The building was sold to George K. Harris, Justice merchant for $5,805.00. Harris had made the high bid without an upset bid earlier in the month. Harris announced that he would sell fifty percent of the property to J. C. Bowden, a fellow Justice merchant.

The two men will renovate the building for the new industry. W. J. Benton, Industrial Director for Franklin County, attended the special meeting with the owner of Spring Hope Garment Co., J. W. Morris, who will establish the new plant in this county.

Morris said, "I am very pleased to be coming to the Justice Community and appreciate the welcome that has been extended me. I will be in operation as soon as necessary renovations are made. It should be a matter of a few weeks." Morris, 39, is from Nashville and operates a plant in Spring Hope and wholesale grocery business in Nashville. He is married to the former Kathryn McDaniel. They have three children. Morris is a graduate of the University of North Carolina.

"The operation will begin small," Morris said. "We will hire from eight to ten people the first week and two or three thereafter. We expect to reach from eighty to ninety employees sometime after the first year."

Negotiations had been in progress between Benton, Morris, the Education Board and the Justice Community for several weeks. Citizens of the Justice Community, in a meeting a short time ago, were unanimous in expressing a desire for the Morris industry to locate there.

William J. Benton, in making the announcement, said the plant is expected to get into operation in May and will make children's dresses. Benton added, "I am real pleased with Mr. Morris' decision to locate in Franklin County. The plant will be a real boost to the economy of the area."

Benton was also high in his praise of the Justice Community's cooperation in helping secure the new industry.

This is the first industry to locate here since Benton took over as Director a few months ago. He has expressed his feelings that there is a bright future for Franklin County in the field of industry on many occasions and was obviously pleased to make the announcement of this new one Wednesday.

Series No. 3: House Of Representatives Duties, Salary Explained

The Times presents the third in a series of eleven articles dealing with the public offices subject to the Democratic Primary on May 30th. The series is intended to inform our readers and does not make any endorsement of any candidate, incumbent or challenger.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

The House of Representatives is probably one of the offices to be voted on May 30th, that most people have at least a general idea as to its duties. Basically, it does just what the name implies. The holder of the office does represent the people of the county in the legislature in Raleigh.

The legislature meets every other year in regular session and a Representative's term of office is for two years. He is paid $15.00 per day for 120 days in salary plus $12.00 per day expenses for the same period. Any service beyond the 120 day limit is without compensation. Representatives also get seven cents a mile round trip for travel expense.

The Representative, as a member of the General Assembly is charged with making all the appropriations for the State government and its subdivisions; to raise revenue in the form of taxes to pay the expense of government and to pass general laws under which our citizens live.

The seniority system in the General Assembly follows that of the U. S. Congress. Members with previous experience receive the more important Committee appointments. It is also the duty of the General Assembly to pass local laws governing the principle affairs of county government. In summary, the duties are to reflect the wishes and desires of the people they represent.

In the May Primary, Franklin County has three outstanding men in the race for Representative. They are, James Speed, who has served in the 1961 and 1963 terms; Norris W. Collins, who has served as county commissioner for several years and James T. Moss, popular Youngsville farmer and one of the Nations Outstanding Young Farmers. Each is now waging a vigorous campaign for the votes of Franklin County citizens.

The next in this series will appear Tuesday.

Welfare Building Opened

After a number of years of planning and waiting, the long range plans of the Franklin County Board of Commissioners have been completed with the moving of the County Welfare Department into its new home on Bickett Boulevard last week.

The land, which was known as Pruitt Hill, was purchased several years ago by the county, with plans to build a Health Center, a Board of Education office building and a Welfare building. The completion of the Welfare building last week is the culmination of these plans. The new building cost $40,132.66, of which the county paid $18,282.66. The difference of $21,850 was paid by the Federal Government. The new Welfare building was built by Clancey and Theys, Contractors of Raleigh.

The total cost of the three buildings is near $100,000 plus the original cost of the land. The new Welfare building is equipped with modern furniture with a large reception room entrance.

The Health Center was the first of the three buildings to be built in 1952. The Board of Education office was completed in 1962.

Mrs. A. J. Holton, a member of the staff, drew the original plans for the building, consisting of a floor plan and general design. An architect drew the specifications and working plans.

Flattery is one way some people pave the way of life, but it often costs one more than it is worth.
