Teen Party Idea

Here's a hot party idea for a "real cool" hostess. Forget the last minute flurry of cooking hamburgers for the crowd. Let the guests cook their own burgers (kabob-style) on a table-top hibachi. Then, give the party a quick, refreshing lift with Banana Split 7-Up "Floats."

Burger Kabobs

Combine 1 lb. ground beef with 1 teaspoon garlic-flavored salad dressing mix and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Form into 18 small meatballs. Alternate on 6-inch metal skewers with onion wedges, green pepper squares and strips of partially-cooked bacon. Cook slowly over glowing coals. Serve in "hollowed out" frankfurter buns. Makes 6 servings.

Banana Split "Floats"

In each tall glass place: 1 tablespoon mashed banana, 1 small scoop each vanilla and strawberry ice cream and 1 tablespoon sweetened, sliced strawberries. Tilt glass and slowly pour in 1 bottle (7 oz.) chilled, sparkling 7-Up.

By Jean Zealand

Hi! This is Bettie Lavender reporting for Jean Zealand while she is on her senior trip. Speaking of senior trips, Louisburg seniors have just returned home after five glorious days in Washington and New York. As I understand, they all had a wonderful time but all were very glad to get back home. Another senior trip in the near future is Bunn High School. They leave Wednesday also for Washington and New York. Be sure to have fun and tell us all about it when you return! Heard the Junior-Senior of Gold Sand was held Friday night. Larry Lee and the Rebels entertained. Everyone seems to think the night was a great success. Joy Ward was elected prom sweetheart and the theme, the "Roaring Twenties," made the night complete. Want to tell us about it? Weren't the few but relaxing holidays just great? I sure did enjoy them but I do wish that they could have gone on forever. Wonder how many people agree? Seems as though Cindy Raynor and Kenneth Clark had a great time at Piedmont Dragstrip this past Sunday, only thing was it sure was hot and windy up there, wasn't it Cindy? Seen in town this past weekend for the holidays were Martha Chadwick, Charlie Ford, Johnny Williamson and Linda Radford. Sure was good to see you all again! Although this weekend was part of the Easter holidays not too much happened with all the college students gone and also the high school seniors, but didn't everyone look nice Sunday morning. So many people with new and colorful outfits just made the day. Be sure to send in all the news of your school activities to Jean! Thought for the day: What's the use in worrying, it never pays, so smile, smile, smile. -Anonymous.

Everybody benefits

when Rural Electrics go all out for service

America's consumer-owned rural electric systems are proud of their reputation for providing electric service wherever it is needed.

Recently, one electric co-op was called upon to erect poles and string lines across two miles of almost impassable marsh to an isolated consumer.

Applying rural electric ingenuity, the co-op hired a helicopter to set the 28 poles, weighing 1100 pounds each, and string the two miles of heavy wire. What would have normally been a five-week construction job was accomplished in two days.

Even more important, a whole new area has been supplied with reliable electric service. The power needs of job-producing new industries can be met, residents of the area can purchase electrical appliances for their farms and homes, additional recreational facilities can be developed for city dwellers, and our nation's program of rural area development has taken another step forward.

Working hard to provide service and develop the economy of our rural areas is a basic tenet of the rural electric tradition. Today rural electrics serve an average of 3.3 consumers per mile of line compared with the 33 consumers per mile of line served by commercial power companies.

Providing these scattered consumer-members with electric power takes extra effort and careful management but rural electrics know it's necessary to keep our country growing... And everybody benefits.
