How To Harass Your Hubby

New York (NAPS)--Whether you're a blushing bride or well-versed in wifely ways, getting in your husband's hair may be easier than you've realized. These seven husband-heckling hints are guaranteed to irritate even the most patient mate.

1. Keep harping on how much more money your friend's husbands are making. In this competitive day and age, all your favorite breadwinner may need to drive him on to a vice-presidency--and an ulcer--is a determined wife behind him, pushing. Never miss an opportunity to make him feel less successful than other men he knows. You want to give him incentive, don't you? And when he spends more and more evenings working late at the office, and more and more weekends on the golf course with "business contacts" --well, you'll know you've inspired him.

2. Don't let a day go by without "haggling." Whenever he makes a statement or suggestion, it's your duty to challenge it. The subject isn't important as long as it's clear to him that he can't make a decision on his own. He'll learn to respect your efficiency in running the household. When you become proficient enough in this area, you may even be able to tell him how to handle his job. As you offer these words of wisdom, keep reminding him that you're only trying to be helpful. Otherwise he may forget.

3. Make him feel like something less than a hero when you're out. "Praise in private, pan in public" is a good rule to follow if you want to transform hubby into a "hen-pecked Henry." Pretend he isn't there until he says or does something with which you don't agree--then correct him in front of all his friends instead of waiting till you get home. He may be pleased that you're on your toes. Let him, and everyone else, know that you can shift for yourself, too.

SS Class Roller Skates

Youngville -- Mrs. H. H. Reddick, teacher of the Intermediate Girls Sunday School Class at the Youngville Baptist Church, carried members of the class to Raleigh on Saturday afternoon April eighth for an afternoon of roller skating.
Girls who went were Janet and Harriet Pearce, Katie Ann and Nancy Lindsey, Rhonda Gayle Strickland, Mary Lu Brown and Carol Mitchell. Mrs. E. J. Pearce assisted Mrs. Reddick by taking part of the class. Ricky Reddick and Jimmy Moss went along with the group.

Thanks
We would like to take this opportunity to express our deepest thanks for every act of kindness and every expression of sympathy shown us in the loss of our beloved son and brother. May God bless each of you in a very special way.
Mrs. Noble Burnette and children.

Open doors for yourself, and always light your own cigarettes.

4. Always look haggard in the evening, so he'll know what a hard day you've had. Wild hair, no makeup, and an exhausted expression on your face won't remind him of the attractive girl he married, but you may earn his sympathy. And pity is akin to love--so they say. Never put on a pretty dress to greet his arrival, or use a cologne or perfume in a man-pleasing scent. Tajl, a heady oriental fragrance, available in perfume oil, after shower mist, soap or bath powder, is composed of exotic ingredients like Patchouli from Sumatra, Sandalwood from India--and Jasmin, which to the Oriental, symbolizes "sweetness in a woman." But, sparing the thirty minutes or so it might take to relax in a hot bath and create a little "mystery of the Orient" isn't for a busy girl like you.

5. Your in-laws aren't perfect--why not let him know it? After all, it's only his family you're complaining about. Remember, you married him, not his relatives, and it's up to him to take your side if you can't get along with them. Ignore the fact that your remarks make him mad. It's time someone told him the truth about his domineering mother and snobbish sister, isn't it? Your frankness will guarantee many hours of interesting debate, and prevent your home from becoming one of those dull places where everyone just sits around and watches television in peace and quiet.

6. Cast him in the role of "heavy" with the children. If you raise a hand against them, they may grow up to resent it. However, you can avoid these unpleasant parental responsibilities by passing the buck to Pop. Refuse to have anything to do with disciplining the kids. The words, "Just wait until your father gets home" are enough to make any child cower, and make hubby feel like the true head of his household.

7. The honeymoon is over, so act like it. That monotonous rut you've gotten into, the forgotten anniversaries, the lack of time for just the two of you to be together--it's all a normal part of married life, isn't it? Very likely--at least if you've been heeding the hints in this story. Accept the inevitable. After he's worked so hard to please you, he'll probably be too worn out to enjoy any new experiences you could plan anyway. Ritualizing romantic occasions with candlelight, soft music and flowers? Turning yourself into a "desert flower" with a dab of inexpensive perfume or conjuring up exotic images with the scent of Tajl? That's fine for kids who are going steady, but not for "old marrieds" like you.

On the other hand, if you're

About Your Home

Foliar feeding of plants is not a new thing. In fact, many smart gardeners have been feeding their plants in this manner for as long as five years.

It has some very real advantages over the old type of feeding. It is less expensive and less work. Also, it is possible to spray for black-spot and most insect pests in one operation.

With foliar feeding, each plant is fed in proportion to its leaf surface. The general rule in ground feeding is to give each plant a handful of commercial fertilizer. This way the little plants and the big plants often get the same amount of food.

Another advantage of foliar feeding is that the plants tend to absorb some of the insecticide and fungicide added to the plant food sprayed on them. They become somewhat toxic and thus kill many plant pests instead of merely running them away.

You can start spraying your plants every five days after danger of frost is past. After growth appears, cut back to every ten days. During mid-summer, every two weeks to three weeks is plenty. You can continue until very early fall.

The best time of day for spray feeding is the morning. Be sure to cover all of the leaf--underside as well as the top.

still a bit of a romantic at heart, you may throw these words of advice to the winds and do just the opposite of what this story suggests. Then, chances are that your hubby will never forget to say "Happy Anniversary, dear"--and you can bet he'll mean it!
