Confederate Memorial At Justice Services Friday

Pictured above is the Confederate Memorial located in the Justice Community of Franklin County. Special services will be conducted at the monument Friday afternoon at 4 P.M., sponsored by the United Daughters of the Confederacy, James J. Davis, Chapter No. 537. Rev. John Woody, Tar River Association Missionary will be the speaker. Confederate Memorial Day is observed on the 10th of May each year in North and South Carolina. The UDC will also hold brief services and place a wreath at the Monument here in Louisburg sometimes Friday.

Terry Sanford To Speak At LC Alumni Banquet

Former North Carolina Governor Terry Sanford will speak at the Louisburg College Alumni Banquet to be held Saturday evening, May 18, at 7:00. Mr. Sanford will speak following the installation of the graduating class into the alumni association.

Mr. Sanford, a native of Laurinburg, N. C., was graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill with the A.B. and LL.B. degrees. A former F.B.I. agent, he saw action in five campaigns during the Second World War as a paratrooper.

During Mr. Sanford's tenure in office as governor, the following programs and organizations were initiated: The Governor's School for gifted and talented children, The North Carolina School of the Arts, The North Carolina Advancement School, The Learning Institute of North Carolina, The North Carolina Fund, The State Board of Science and Technology, The North Carolina Good Neighbor Council. A national authority on education, Mr. Sanford's book, But What About the People, tells the story of what happened in the field of education during his four-year term as governor. Many of his programs have been copied by other states.

The Louisburg College Alumni Banquet on Saturday night precedes baccalaureate and commencement exercises to be held Sunday, May 19. Approximately 145 students will be graduated from the 181 year old institution.

Louisburg Lions Plan Horse Show

Lion Louis Day, a Rocky Mount jeweler, convened with the Louisburg Lions last Tuesday evening to boost the second Louisburg Horse Show to be held here Saturday, June 15.

Lion Day, who helped boost the first Louisburg Horse Show held last June and who helped to stage seventy-two identical events last year, gave several ideas to reap even greater dividends than last summer. He suggested a parade just prior to the Show, during which time the town would have an opportunity to see the horses before the Show. Naturally bands, scouts, and other groups would be asked to participate.

Another important point is to get as much food donated as possible. Wives could assist by baking a cake or some cookies. All should remember that this is in reality a community project.

Also, the Show should be publicized more. Why not publicize by having a couple of Lions appear on television. Last, the Lions should remember that this Show is not a project just for a select number of the Club but a project for every member.

Two visitors were present: Richard Smith, brother of Lion Wilton Smith and an employee with motor vehicles in Raleigh; and Ed Johnson, a salesman for Sales Metal Edge Co. in New York. Mr. Johnson resides in Greensboro.

Board Sets School Calendar, New Policies

The Board of Education, meeting here Monday, set the school calendar for the fall opening of county schools and covered a wide range of other business. The Board approved September 3 as the first day of the fall term and set August 28, 29 and 30 as Orientation days. Also included in the schedule is a holiday for teachers to attend meetings of their associations. However, the Board said this would be the final year for such practice. In the future only delegates will be able to attend during the school day and no holiday will be observed.

In a poll of schools on the question for this year, the count was about even when the number of teachers involved was considered. The Board had expressed a desire to comply with the wishes of the majority of teachers in the matter. When the teachers appeared to be split in their recommendations, the Board dictated that this would be the final year for the holiday.

In other actions, the Board studied and approved a tentative teacher allotment for the county schools, terminated the contracts at the end of this term for some teachers, accepted resignations from others and approved new contracts for still others.

Driver Education teachers were approved after a study was made of the driving record of each applicant and permission was granted to Supt. Warren Smith to place certain surplus items for sale at the county garage. A study of the lunchroom financial program was tabled for further information as was a request from the Farm Bureau that a nurse's training

Conyers Gets 4-6 Years For Secret Assault

Edward Louis Conyers, 58-year-old Franklinton, Route 1, man convicted on a charge of secret assault in criminal Court here Wednesday was sentenced this morning to not more than six and not less than four years in prison by Superior Court Judge Henry A. McKinnon, Jr. Conyers immediately appealed the sentence.

The case of Conyers, charged with an ambush shooting of his cousin Howard J. Conyers, 39, also of Rt. 1, Franklinton, was started Monday and went to the jury shortly after 11 A.M. Wednesday. The jury, made up of both men and women of both races, found the man guilty as charged on a secret assault count.

Judge McKinnon spent some time in his charge to the jury explaining in detail the alternative verdicts. The elder Conyers claimed self-defense in his plea. Reports of the incident, which took place last May 17, said

Stone Delays Decision

House Calls For Runoff With Cash

John W. House, Franklinton farmer and second place finisher in Saturday's Democratic Primary race for the District 2 seat on the Board of County Commissioners has formally requested a second primary. House will face incumbent Commissioner Richard H. Cash, now serving as Chairman of the Board.

House trailed Cash by 1,597 votes in Saturday's count as the incumbent collected 3,757 votes or 27 less than a plurality in the three-man race, which included Booster White, a Harris Township tobaccoist. House polled 2,160 votes and White had 1,624.

House placed second to Cash in 1964 in a six-way race. Cash collected 2,466 votes four years ago and House polled 1,119. There was no provision for a runoff in a County Commissioner contest at that time. New regulations, passed by the last General Assembly, now allows a second primary. The runoff will be held Saturday, June 1.

Franklin County native, Dr. Raymond Stone, who finished second in the state's five-man race for Superintendent of Public Instruction, said Wednesday that he will wait until the state vote canvas before announcing his decision whether or not to seek a runoff against Dr. Craig Phillips of Greensboro.

Stone, who attended Epsom and Louisburg public schools and presently serves as President of Sandhills Community College, polled 31.2 percent of the vote cast in Saturday's Democratic Primary. Phillips gained 39 percent.

"I will probably wait until after the official canvass is made by the State Board of Elections to announce a decision", Stone stated.

One other runoff possibility looms on the state level. Larry Zimmerman, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate is pondering the chances of calling for a runoff against Robert Somers, front runner in Saturday's balloting.

Stone and Zimmerman have until noon on May 18, to seek a runoff. House had until noon Monday to file a formal request with the county Board of Elections.

Gubernatorial candidate Mel Broughton declined to call for a runoff against Lt. Gov. Bob Scott Wednesday and George T. (BO) Hall, Franklin manager for Broughton expressed regret that his man did not decide to continue his campaign. Hall had reported from headquarters Monday night that he believed the decision would be "to go". On Wednesday, unity of the Democratic Party was given as the reason for Broughton's decision to join rather than contest Scott.

Hardie Considers Runoff

Although a reliable source reported to The Times Monday that there would be no runoff in the District Judgeship race, a news report released today says that Vance Recorder's Court Judge Thomas D. Hardie is considering calling for a second primary. Hardie ran fourth in the six-man race behind Warrenton Judge Julius Banzet. Claude Allen, Jr. of Oxford and Linwood Peoples of Henderson were the two front-runners. Allen polled 16,280 votes, Peoples had 15,746 and Banzet received 12,919. Hardie gained 10,038 or 2,881 less than Banzet.

If such a runoff is called for, it will take place on Saturday, June 1.

Farm Bureau Opposes Labor Bill

The Franklin County Farm Bureau Board of Directors voted Monday night in favor of a resolution to be sent to Congressman L.H. Fountain in opposition to House Bill 16014. The bill is an extension of the Labor Act to agriculture.

The group also voted to make marketing sheets available to members at cost and to offer assistance to the Board of Education in setting up a nurses training program in the county.

Orders for tobacco market sheets must be placed at the County Farm Bureau office by Monday, May 20th in order to get special prices.

House Bill 16014 would extend the Labor Act to include Agriculture, making it mandatory that farmers negotiate wages with a Labor Union if a majority of the employees vote to be represented by a union. While this is a "watered-down" version of an earlier bill, it is not felt that the bill is acceptable by farmers due to the perishable nature of farm products. The Board urges individuals to write to Representative Fountain and express their opinions.

Mr. B.C. Mangum, President of the N.C. Farm Bureau Federation, has made arrangements with the State Department of Instruction to make funds available under the Community College program for Nurses Training
