

NOTICE

In the 5 years of our ownership of the Hannah Davis farm there has been 3 attempts to fire the timberland. Therefore, $500.00 reward will be paid by the Virginia Materials Corporation for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person or persons starting a fire on this property either through negligence or intentional.

You don't have to know everything to know something, but you have to know something to know that you don't know everything.

It is never too late to start saving a few dollars, and we believe they will come in pretty handy some time in the next five or six years.

4-H TV Science Club Holds Meeting

The first meeting of the 4-H TV Science Club comes to order in front of the home television sets in Franklin County, Monday, January 20, at 5:30 P.M. over station WUNC-TV Channel 4.

According to the Franklin County Extension Staff, this will be the first meeting of a 4-H TV Science Club.

Any boy or girl who would like to become a member of the TV Science Club should contact their local 4-H leader or the County Agents, County Extension Office at the Agricultural Building, Louisburg, North Carolina.

During this 10 week series, boys and girls will have an opportunity to learn about the science of fire, animals, astronomy, plants, archeology, physics, behavior, microbiology, meteorology and chemistry. The youngsters can conduct east-to-do experiments designed to help them understand some of the basic principles in these sciences.

On Drug Testing

Dr. William Bean of the University of Iowa Medical Center testified to a Senate committee that drugs should be tested by medical or governmental groups "independent of any hint of involvement" with drug makers.

FWW Head Start Set For Full Year

Participates in National Language Development Experiment

Columbia, South Carolina - The Franklin-Vance-Warren Full Year Head Start Program is one of 6 centers across the nation participating in an experimental language development program. The research, directed by the University of South Carolina in cooperation with Tulane University and the University of Texas, is designed to determine the effectiveness of various ways of teaching language skills to pre-school children. Five different approaches are being compared and evaluated.

The investigation will be completed in June 1969, and the results are expected to have significant implications for later head start and kindergarten programs.

The Franklin-Vance-Warren Program was included in the study because it met a number of criteria related to age of the students, class sizes, and administrative organization.

But just as importantly, according to Dr. George Lackey of the University of South Carolina and Mrs. Rosanne Gmuer, Associate Principal Investigator for the study, was the high degree of professional competency and enthusiasm on the part of the Program staff.

"Mr. Cornell J. Manning, Project Director of Full Year Head Start Program and Mrs. George Gerber, Education Director, could hardly have been more cooperative and eager to perform research in this critical area," stated Mrs. Gmuer. Dr. Lackey noted that a number of the Franklin-Vance-Warren program teachers had volunteered to come to the University of South Carolina from two to three weeks for special training in teaching language skills to pre-school children. "Certainly," said Dr. Lackey, "we are pleased to have the Franklin-Vance-Warren Program staff participating in our investigation."

Those teachers participating in the investigation are Mrs. Mollie Cheston, Mrs. Clementine Perry, Mrs. Edna Fogg, Mrs. JoAnne Dunn, Mrs. Vardine Rodie, Mrs. Leora Davis, and Mrs. Elnora Morehead.

Mrs. Carolyn Corbett is a monitor for the investigation and her function is to visit each class on a regular basis in order to assist each teacher in utilizing the various teaching methods to their fullest extent.

The investigation began in October with several of the Henderson teachers attending a training session at the University of South Carolina. There, with other teachers from the Southeast, the Mid-South, and the Southwest, they received special training in the teaching of language skills. At the same time, children in the F.V.W. Program were being administered several tests of language skills. After receiving instructions for almost six months, the children will be tested again in order to ascertain improvement. At that point the most effective teaching methods will be evident. The results of the study will be made public in the late summer or early fall of 1969.

Gun Law In Effect

As of December 16th, all interstate sales of firearms and ammunition, other than those between licensed manufacturers, dealers and collectors became federal crimes. The most restrictive national gun control law ever enacted was signed by the President October 22.
