Little Things Count

Putting into practice "it's the little things that count," members of Chatham County Extension Homemakers Clubs have collected their sewing scraps for the past five years. Through their efforts more than 300 pounds of scrap fabric have been delivered to McCain and Dorothea Dix hospitals and the rest home in Pittsboro.

Patients use the donated scraps to make quilts, toys and some small gift items, relates Flossie M. Whitley, home economics Extension agent.

Barn Is Workshop

"I look forward to going to the barn each morning," Mrs. Grady Jordan, Columbus County homemaker told Mrs. Elaine N. Blake, home economics Extension agent. For the barn is Mrs. Jordan's furniture refinishing workshop.

In the past seven years, the homemaker has refinished nearly all the furniture in her house and has assisted and instructed other in redoing over 200 pieces.

Her friends and neighbors talked her into going into business for herself.

She says "I was willing to do it if people would pay for the time involved." So far, Mrs. Jordan has had as much furniture to refinish as she has had the time to give, Mrs. Blake relates.

Seniors Lend Hand

Senior homemakers in Rockingham County no longer sit idly at home. Instead they share their knowledge with other women by developing hobbies of their own and by learning new skills, says Mrs. Zedie V. Jackson, home economics Extension agent.

One such citizen, Mrs. Jennie Tucker, Ruffin, Rt. 1, has joined other women in eight mattress making workshops. She has made 12 urethane foam mattresses.

Through such a workshop program, families in the county have been able to obtain fine quality bedding at a price they can afford, Mrs. Jackson notes.

Mrs. Tucker received satisfaction from the workshops too. "When I keep busy and active I feel better," she admits. "I don't have time to think about myself. And when I share with others what I have learned, I feel that I am needed."

Sews A Fine Seam

"Sewing a fine seam" is nothing new to 11-year-old Shirley Goodnight of the Concordia 4-H Club, Rowan County. Shirley has been sewing since she was in second grade.

But this year she outdid herself by making 67 garments, reports Betty Scott, assistant home economics Extension agent. These garments ranged from skirts, blouses and dresses for herself to bedroom shoes for gifts.

Shirley told the agent she learned many new skills this year. She added that she enjoyed planning, constructing and using the garments she had made.

DECORATING TRICK—A tall off-size window is given subtle decorating treatment in a bedroom that combines the old and the new effectively. The trick: vertical blinds of white cotton against an all-white background. Made with Tontine shade cloth, the blinds add linear definition while providing light and privacy control. Floral-printed cotton covers the antique brass bed.
