

Mrs. Marshall Receives Performance High Grade

Mrs. Rose Woodard Marshall, who is employed by the Internal Revenue Service in the Greensboro District Office as a Secretary in the Intelligence Division, receives within-grade increase for high quality performance from Intelligence Supervisor, Charles A. Gibb. High quality increases are awarded to employees who perform the duties of their position at a substantial high level of effectiveness and may be expected to continue to perform in a manner that substantially exceeds normal requirements.

Mrs. Marshall has been employed by the Internal Revenue Service in Greensboro since 1961 and has been in the Intelligence Division since 1962. In addition to this high quality pay increase, Mrs. Marshall has received six other awards—two for Superior Work Performance and four adopted suggestions.

Mrs. Marshall was recently elected Secretary of the National Association of Internal Revenue Employees, Chapter 50, which covers North Carolina. She teaches a Sunday School class of Junior age boys and girls at Community Baptist Church in Greensboro and is President of the Women's Missionary Society at this church. She is a member of the Federal Secretaries Association of Greensboro.

Honor Roll

Cadet Leonard Forrest Wester, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Donald Wester, has been placed on honor roll for the semester grading period, according to a report received from Fork Union Military Academy, Fork Union, Virginia.

A B average is necessary for qualification for honor roll. Cadet Wester was also commended for scoring 99% on the semester examination.

CHRISTMAS ROMANCE

CHRISTMAS: the season of ribbons and wrappings—tinsel and mistletoe. And it's also the time of year when every woman wants to look and feel as radiant and elegant as the Christmas trimmings. One of the most feminine ways to add to the romantic atmosphere is with fragrance. It's one of the best-loved gifts by every woman, and it comes in so many forms: Le De Givenchy, for instance, offers many elegant bath accessories as well as the famous perfumes and eau de toilettes. There's a rich foamy bubble bath in powder form that contains pure milk solids so that it not only cleanses and scents the skin, but actually gives it a beauty treatment that leaves it silky smooth. Soaps, dusting powders, hand and body lotions are also available in this sunny, floral fragrance—and they're all so elegantly packaged that they actually rival the prettiest wrappings.

Louisburg Band To Play At Tarrytown Mall

The local Louisburg High School Band is slated to provide entertainment Monday evening at 9:30 p.m. during the Fifth Annual Christmas Music Festival at Tarrytown Mall in Rocky Mount, N. C. They will give a concert of popular tunes and Christmas selections under the direction of J. Robert Watson.

They will perform beneath the boughs of the Magic Christmas tree. By an electric process, the hundreds of twinkling lights adorning the tree change color in rhythm to the music, responding to each change in tone.

Over 80 choirs and bands from all over eastern North Carolina will have performed when the festival closes on December 23rd.

Shower Honors Mrs. Polly

Mrs. Sandra Hill Polly, November bride, was honored Saturday night, December 13th, with a floating miscellaneous shower in the home of Mrs. Harvey Murphy on Route 1, Youngsville by a number of her friends.

Upon arrival the honoree was presented a mum corsage. The hostesses also presented her with a four place setting in her chosen china pattern.

The serving table was covered by a white lace cloth. The centerpiece arranged in a German candle holder consisted of candles, greenery, white poinsettias, and wedding bells.

Punch was served by Mrs. Richard Hill, mother of the bride, and Mrs. Raymond Hill served cake squares. Other refreshments included strawberry confections, mints and mixed nuts.

The gift table was centered with a bride doll. Other arrangements in the Murphy home included candles and white poinsettias at different focal points.

Approximately thirty guests called during the evening.

Mrs. Mann Hostess

The Joseph J. Davis Chapter of The United Daughters of The Confederacy met December 16 with Mrs. J. W. Mann. Her home was decorated with lovely Christmas arrangements.

Plans were made to send messages of Christmas cheer to the twenty-five residents of The Women's Confederate Home in Fayetteville and to U.D.C. members who are patients in the TB hospitals in the state.

Mrs. Sidney White gave an interesting talk on the State of Maryland during the Confederacy.

And, what better time to discover the good eating enjoyment that can be yours during the festive holiday season.

California Dried Figs have been a traditional holiday favorite for many years and when used in this simple and quick recipe, you have a crowd pleaser that will add sparkle to your holiday entertaining. For special holiday breakfast and brunch to late evening entertaining, you'll want to serve Mrs. Santa's Coffee Cake and it's so easy to do when you keep several packages of luscious California Dried Figs within easy reach.

They are a wealth of energy and nutrition, packed with natural fruit sugar, vitamins and minerals. And, they are so versatile you can use them year 'round in dozens of different ways or "as is" right from the package for quick energy pickup.

Mrs. Santa's Coffee Cake

- 1 package hot roll mix
- 1/2 cup melted butter
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 cup finely chopped nuts
- 3/4 cup chopped California Dried Figs

Prepare hot roll mix according to package directions. After first rising, cut dough into pieces the size of walnuts and shape into balls. Roll in melted butter, then mixture of sugar, cinnamon and nuts. Put a layer of balls barely touching, in well-greased angel food cake pan. (If bottom is removable, line bottom and sides with foil.) Sprinkle with one-half the chopped figs. Continue layering until all dough is used. Top with remaining figs, nuts and sugar mixture. Let rise until double in volume; bake at 350° F. for 40 to 45 minutes. Turn upside down. Serve warm or cool. Garnish with candied fruits and figs if desired.

TRICKS FOR HOLIDAY TABLE SETTINGS: To use the wood finish of your table as part of the holiday party decor, use runners with napkins in the accent color.

Tricks For Holiday Table Setting

New York, NAPS -- For festive entertaining during the holidays every hostess wants to set a table that reflects both her personality and her good taste. Tricks with table linens can provide these keys to elegant holiday decorating.

Home furnishings experts report that a linen collection of interchangeable colors and textures can provide endless unique effects. A single set of china can be given an entirely different look by using it with table linens in two colors taken from the china's pattern—or in two shades of the same color. For instance, with a Wedgwood blue tablecloth with white napkins. Or you can contrast two shades of blue, one of which matches the Wedgwood. Or you might want to select the traditional colors of the holiday itself. For a table with its own beautiful wood finish, a heavy-textured green linen runner, a pot of red poinsettias and a pair of chunky red candles can provide a contemporary Christmas table setting. Change to a sheer-weave linen tablecloth and your table setting takes on a more formal personality.

For that late buffet by candlelight, try a heavy-textured cloth in a deep red with masses of red and purple anemones, and watch your china change its face again!

Or let yourself be guided by the color of the food. For example, cream of celery soup looks most appealing when it is set on a cool green cloth with green napkins. And you can also tuck a green and white print napkin inside the roll basket.

If you want to go completely dramatic, use a black cloth with hot pink or lemon-yellow napkins. Fold the napkins on the plate, rather than placing them to the side. Or, if you are using placemats rather than a full cloth, roll the napkins on the diagonal, then fold them in half and tuck them into the water glasses. At first glance, the napkins will give the impression of individual candlesticks.

The exciting aspect of linens is that they are not only elegant and festive but they are practical, as well. Belgian linen, which is deservedly known as "the aristocrat of fabrics," is fresh and lovely after laundering—but all linens require certain care techniques. It's important to know how to keep them looking new and how to make them last. Stains, such as gravy, catsup, coffee, egg, wine, many fruits and fruit juices, yield to an Axion pre-soak in cool or lukewarm water. And since bleach can be used on only pure white linens, authorities recommend the enzyme-active pre-soak for the natural shades as well as for all colored linens. They also advise pre-soaking stains on your linens as quickly as possible.

If you have linens that have yellowed or grayed since you last used them, the Axion pre-soak laboratories report that the enzyme action can help bring them back to brightness again.
