FOREIGN.

London Gazette Extraordinary.

WHITEHALL, June 26.

"A Bulletin of which the following is a copy has been this morning received by Secretary Sir Robert Peel, one of his Majesty's principal Secretaries of State:—

"Windsor Castle, June 26.—It has pleased Almighty God to take from this world the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

"His Majesty expired at a quarter past 3 o'clock this morning, without pain.

"H. HALFORD.

"M. J. TIERNEY.

In the course of Friday evening, before nine o'clock, the physicians intimated to their royal patient their inability to give him further relief, and their opinion that his last moments were rapidly approaching. To this communication his Majesty replied, "God's will be done!" and in a few moments after, he asked, "Where is Chichester?" The Bishop of Chichester was instantly summoned to the royal chamber, and at his hands the dying sovereign received the Sacrament. During the administration of this rite his Majesty was much less troubled by the cough than he had been previously, and afterwards it gradually subsided, and towards mid-night he sunk into a state of apparently quiet repose, which continued until about 3 o'clock, when he became rather restless, and feebly wished to have his head placed in a more elevated position.

Previous to this, all the attendants had retired, except Sir M. J. Tierney and Sir Wathen Waller; they instantly attempted to afford his Majesty the relief he requested; but they had scarcely commenced the attempt when his Majesty suddenly motioned them to desist, and, placing both his hands upon his breast, he ejaculated, "O! this is not right!—this is death!—Oh, God!—I am dying!" These were the last, and the only distinct words he uttered after receiving the Sacrament; and from this time his dissolution came on so quietly and so gradually that the physicians had some difficulty in ascertaining precisely at what moment he ceased to exist.—In the meantime the Bishop of Chichester, and all the principal members of the royal household, with the pages in immediate attendance were called in, and, in their presence, without the slightest indication of suffering, his Majesty calmly expired. The principal persons present were the Bishop of Chichester, the Physicians, the Marquis Conyngham, Sir Andrew Barnard, Sir William Keppel, Sir William Knighon, Sir Wathen Waller, Lord Strathven, and Colonel Thornion, and when the physicians had announced that his Majesty had ceased to exist, they retired—leaving the pages in attendance to perform the necessary attention to the Royal corpse under the superintendance of the physicians.

The body was removed from the bed to the couch on which his Majesty usually reposed throughout his illness, and covered with a fine linen sheet—turned down so as to expose a part of the bust; and in this state it was submitted to the view, not only of the whole of the domestics of the Royal Household, but to the out door servants from the stables, their families and acquaintance, and the Royal tradesmen resident here. They were freely admitted from about five o'clock in the morning until after eight, by which time several hundreds of persons had availed themselves of the opportunity of not only seeing their deceased Sovereign, but of taking him by the hand; and, according to the concurrent account of many of them, that hand was warm and pliant three hours after death. It is said this exhibition of the royal remains was strictly in accordance with a wish expressed by his late Majesty on the evening preceding his dissolution.

Immediately after the decease of the King, the servants of the Conyngham family were sent off to the seat of Mr. Denison (the brother of the Marchioness,) near Dorking in Surrey; and the ladies of the family, between eleven and twelve o'clock in the forenoon, followed in the same direction—leaving the Castle by the private entrance, and going round by the long walk and so away into the great road through Bishops-gate.

Sir Henry Halford, as soon as the Royal corpse had been properly attended to, left the Castle, and proceeded direct to Bushy.

About noon Lord Mountcharles came down from London, and, by virtue of some of the offices he holds took possession of the keys his late Majesty's valuable wardrobe, &c.

In the evening about eight o'clock, his Royal Highness, the Duke of Cumberland, arrived at the Castle, and accompanied by some of the members of the Household, visited the remains of his Majesty. After which, his Royal Highness immediately returned to his residence at Kew.

On Saturday evening, the Lord Chamberlain issued summonses to Sir Henry Halford, Sir Matthew Tierney. Mr. Broddie, and Mr. Nussey, to attend at the opening of the body of his late Majesty. After the performance of Divine service on Sunday morning, those gentlemen arrived at the Palace from town, as did also Sir Astley Cooper, by whom the operation was to be performed. Mr. O'Reilly also arrived at the palace.

These gentlemen having all assembled, Sir Astley Cooper performed the operation of opening the body, for the purpose of ascertaining the cause of his late Majesty's disease. The operation occupied two hours, and the result fully justified in every particular the expectations of the late King's physicians, both as to the complaint, which has proved fatal to the King, and its melancholy result. The heart was considerably enlarged, and adhered to the neighboring parts. Some of the valves were ossified, and some water remained in the chest. The immediate cause of the sudden demise was occasioned by the rupture of a vessel near the stomach. This organ contained some ounces of blood, and more was found in the bowels.

When the operation was concluded, & spices introduced into the body, it was then closed.

Four of the late King's Pages were present, in addition to the above named six medical gentlemen, viz., Messrs Whiting, Kinnaid, Batchelor, and Loades.

The Accession of William IV. His Majesty William IV. arrived at St. James' Palace a few moments after twelve o'clock on Saturday, and appeared to be in excellent health. The King entered the State-room, in which the throne is placed, about one o'clock. His Majesty was habited in an Admiral's uniform, and took his station at the throne. The whole of the members of the late King's Privy Council, who had arrived at the Palace, were assembled in this apartment. His Majesty read the following declaration, viz:

"I am convinced that you will fully participate in the affliction which I am suffering on account of the loss of a sovereign, under whose auspices, as Regent and as King, this country has maintained during war its ancient reputation and glory—has enjoyed a long period of happiness and internal peace—and has possessed the friendship, respect and confidence of foreign Powers.

"In addition to that loss which I sustain in common with you, and with all who lived under the Government of a most beneficent and gracious King, I have to lament the death of a beloved and affectionate brother with whom I have lived from my earliest years, in terms of the most cordial and uninterrupted friendship, and to whose favour and kindness I have been most deeply indebted.

"After having passed my life in the service of my country, and having, I trust, uniformly acted as the most faithful subject and servant of the king. I am now called upon, under the dispensation of Almighty God, to administer the Government of this great empire. I am fully sensible of the difficulties which I have to encounter; but I possess the advantage of having witnessed the conduct of my revered father, and my lamented and beloved brother; and I rely with confidence upon the advice and assistance of Parliament, and upon its zealous co-operation in my anxious endeavors, under the blessing of Divine Providence, to maintain the Reformed Religion established by law, to protect the rights and liberties, and to promote the prosperity and happiness of all classes of my people."

Whereupon the Lords of the Council made it their humble request to his Majesty that this his Majesty's most gracious declaration to their Lordships might be made public, which his Majesty was pleased to order accordingly.

While reading this Address his Majesty was deeply affected.

The Members of the Royal Family—viz. the Duke of Cumberland, the Duke of Sussex, the Duke of Gloucester, and Prince Leopold, knelt before the King, and took the oath of Allegiance.—Their Royal Highnesses then rose, and were sworn in Members of his Majesty's Privy Council. The Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lord Chancellor, and the Archbishop of York went through the same ceremony; the other Members of his late Majesty's Privy Council severally knelt before the King, took the Oaths of Allegiance, and then rose, and were re-sworn Members of the Privy Council.

The Lord Chancellor administered to the King three oaths, the first to govern this kingdom according to its laws and customs; the King then took the oath for the security of the Church of Scotland, and subscribed two instruments, which were witnessed by some of the Privy Councillors.

His Majesty, in Council, then ordered the two stamps, the one containing George R. and the other, the initials G. R. which had been, under the authority of an Act of Parliament, applied to official papers, as the King's signature, to be destroyed; they were accordingly broken in the presence.

His Majesty in Council was pleased to order that the coinage should continue in the same state until further orders.

The Privy Council gave orders for proclaiming his present Majesty, with the usual ceremonies, and at the accustomed places, King of these Realms, by the style and title of King William the Fourth.—The ceremony to take place on Monday.

Mr. Buller was the Clerk of the Privy Council in attendance.

After the rest of the Privy Councillors had retired, the Lord Chancellor, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Archbishop of York and the Bishop of London remained, and altered the Prayer in the church service for King William and Queen Adelaide.

The Lord Mayor arrived at the Palace about 12 o'clock, accompanied by the Aldermen Sir P. Laurie, Sir C. Flower, Winchester, Brown, Shaw, Copland, Key Venables, Thompson, Scholey, Wood; the Recorder; Sheriff's Richardson and Ward; Under Sheriff's Richardson and Young, and the Common-Sergeant.

The Rev. Dr. Cary, late Bishop of Exeter, was introduced to his Majesty, and did homage on being translated to the See of St. Asaph; as did also the Rev. Dr. Bethel, late Bishop of Gloucester, on being translated to the See of Exeter.

The Proclamation acknowledging the new King, having been signed by the Privy Councillors was signed by numbers of the Nobility and Gentry, and by the Lord Mayor and Cooperation of London, and by all who attended the Court.

The King gave an audience to the Duke of Wellington, when his Grace kissed hands as First Lord of the Treasury. The other Ministers and Officers, and also the Members of the late King's Household, who attended the Court, kissed hands, on their re-appointment to office.

The Court broke up at half past 4 o'clock. The King left the Palace about half past 5 o'clock, on his return to Bushy Park, escorted by a detachment of the Life Guards.

After the breaking-up of the King's Court the Cabinet Ministers re-assembled at the Foreign office; there were present the Lord Chancellor, the Duke of Wellington, Earls Balthurst, Rosslyn, and Aberdeen, Viscount Melville, Lord Ellenborough, Sir Robert Peel, Sir George Murray, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Mr. Herries.

The Ministers remained in deliberation about two hours and a half, and broke up about 7 o'clock in the evening.

PROCLAMATION.

His Majesty, accompanied by the Duke of Gloucester and the Earl of Errol, arrived at his Palace in St. James's about twenty minutes before 10 o'clock on Monday morning, June 28th, from his residence in Bushy Park.

At ten o'clock the firing of a double royal salute announced the commencement of the ceremony of proclaiming his Majesty King William IV. Sir George Naylor, King of Arms, with the Heralds and Pursuivants in their robes of office, and eight officers of Arms, on horseback, bearing massive silver maces, were in attendance in the court yard at the west end of the palace. A detachment of the Life Guards were drawn up opposite to the palace. The public were admitted into the court yard to witness the ceremony.

A few minutes after ten o'clock the window of the presence Chamber was thrown open, and the King came forward alone, habited in a suit of mourning, and wearing the riband of the Order of the Garter. His Majesty bowed gracefully three times to the numerous assemblage in the Court below by whom he was greeted with the loudest acclamations.

A band of fifteen trumpeters, who appeared in their splendid state dresses, immediately struck up "God Save the King." All the assemblage uncovered on the appearance of his Majesty. The Duke of Cumberland, the Duke of Sussex, the Duke of Gloucester, Prince Leopold, the Cabinet Ministers, and the great officers of State formed themselves in a semi-circle round the window at which his majesty appeared.

Sir George Naylor, as King of Arms from his station in the Court yard, exactly underneath the window where the King stood, then read the proclamation, announcing the decease of the late King and the accession of his present Majesty. Sir George was more than once interrupted by the
