-The Brooklyn bridge does not meet the cost of maintenance and interest on the bonds by shout $750,000 a year.

-Fast mails are epidemic. It is now proposed to run a train over the Illinois Central railroad that will make the connection between Chicago and New Orleans in thirty-two hours.

-There is a pensive cast about the political meanderings of Senator Mahone that is not like the pomp and dash of his

-The Maryland Legislature has passed a bill reducing the marriage license fees in that State from $4.50 to 60 cents. If the Governor signs the bill every unmated pair in the State will be $3 90 nearer wedded bliss than before.

-In a recent lecture before a New York audience, John B. Gough illustrated his remarks on "The Tongue as one of the Mighty Powers that Be," as follows: "Wife, where in thunder are my slippers?" She replied quietly, "That's a conundrum."

-Fifty thousand visitors, according to the estimate of a prominent railroad man. are in Florida at this time. Not only are the hotels at Jacksonville, St. Augustine and Fernandina crowded to overflowing, out all the little hotels and boardinghouses throughout the State are full of Northern and Western tourists.

-Mgr. Capel has come to the conclusion that he has seen as much of the country as he cares to. He is tired of travel, and proposes to rest quietly till he goes home next July. But early in' the at Newport, R. I., where his popularity is uabounded.

-A Cincinnati merchant, who was compelled to ride to his country home in a smoking car, fell dead the other day on the train, killed by dense and villainous tobacco smoke. The Indian weed has much to answer for, but this is probably the first time that the direct charge of murder has been brought against it.

-Mrs. Wilcox, a sister of ex-United States Treasurer Spinner, is the victim of a curious hallucination. She thinks that bly, alleging that she paid $18,000 for it through her agent, Governor Cleveland. She has broken into the house on more than one occasion, and on Monday Mr. Sheard found it necessary to have her sent to the asylum at Binghamton. Her brother, now eighty-two years old, lives on his plantation in Florida.

-Representative Budd, of California, thinks that as 50 per cent of the Chinese in this country are the slaves of the opium pipe, the best way to get rid of them is to prohibit and punish the importation and sale of this energetic narcotic. This is the purport of the bill that he has just introduced in the House. A bill that provides so easy a solution to the Chinese question, and promises a reduction of opium imports that have alarmingly increased within two years from 85,075 pounds to 298,152 pounds, ought to be inviting.

-The recent hearing before the New York Senate committee on public health seems to indicate that the manufacturers of oleomargarine are so pleased with the success of their production, that in order to ensure its genuineness-which must consist in a proper admixture of cotton seed or suet oil, lard, nitric acid and coloring matter-they would have the packages marked "artificial butter." It is the only way to convince the public of the cheapness and exceptional quality of their arti-cle. If then the people persist in buying the dairy product, it will be their own

-Perhaps the most striking feature of the summer hats is that they all have high crowns. The high, square-crowned walking hat of this winter is being reproduced in straw with very slight differences. There are those with the rolling brim, those with the flat and those with but little brim of any kind. Some have the straw edge so arranged as to form a sort of second story at the back, to be covered of course by the trimming. Another noticeable fact is that all the straw goods displayed as yet are very fine, much more so than has been the case for several years past. Some of these too, are shaded, showing the light and dark tints. Gray is to be a fashionable and much used color. A hat that is entirely new is the helmet, the high crown of which is exactly the shape of the head-covering of ancient warriors. It has a brim, but not a very wide one, and it is said to be particularly becoming. The bonnets show some slight changes in the little capote shape so long popular. The crown is slightly higher and many of them have flattened sides. Some of them are ornamented by a row of sized straws which makes an edging. Others have scalloped pieces going around the crown and forming a neat and pretty finish. The long popular poke-bonnet is no longer seen. Feathers will be very little used this year. One of the only children's hate shown yet it truly extraordinary, being more like the roof of a Chinese pagoda than anything else. However, they will probably look very differ-

The passage of this bill would lead to an overwhelming demand for the repeal of the whole tax on whisky.

Mr. Clay, of Kentucky, said that the whisky industry was made legitimate by the government and demanded the same protection from Congress which was granted to any other business or avocation. He denied that the pending measure embodied special legislation, and maintained that on the contrary its object was to make the general law put whisky, beer and tebacco on the same footing in regard to taxation. It was a measure of relief which would prevent a crisis in the west. When Congress could do this without detriment to the public interest it should

Mr. Thompson, of Kentucky, supported the bill, which he said presented the question whether the government would bankrupt one class of its citizens when it did not require for any purpose the money which would fall due for taxes. He was not in favor of demanding the "pound of flesh," and he expressed his surprise that his friends from the South (Messrs. Mr. Benjamin Gratz, whose death was announced last Monday, was the oldest living graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and the oldest member of the Philadelphia bar. Of his sister Rebecca, who was known as the model of Scott's heroine in 'Ivanhoe,' the Philadelphia Tel:graph says:

"Rebecca Gratz died many year ago. In her younger days she resided with her parents in Philadelphia. She had a warm friend, Miss Hoffman, of New York, and the two girls were in the habit of paying periodical visits to each other in their respective cities. Miss Hoffman was the betrothed of Washington Irving; but of the law we demand the bankruptcy of before the marriage could take place conthese people." The question of temper- sumption claimed the fair New York girl, ance was not involved in this measure, and she succumbed to the disease, tenderly nursed on her death-bed by her friend Rebecca Gratz. Irving, who never re-covered from the loss of his first and only love, naturally formed a warm friendship for his late sweetheart's other self, Rebecca. > Among the illustrated articles are: An interesting account by E. V. Smalley, of the memories which cluster about "The White House," and the life of the Chief Magistrate's domicile, and an important and very entertaining paper, by Fred. Mather, on "Progress in Fish Culture," in which the pisciculturists of the United States have had the largest share. An interesting travel article, without pictures, is Miss Gordon Cumming's description of 'New Zealand in Blooming December." In point of general interest, Townsend's account of "How Wilkes Booth crossed the Potomac," is the best. His information was derived from the man who gave succor to the fugitive and his companion Herold. and who provided them with the boat which took them across. Between the disappearance of Booth in the scrub pines of lower Maryland and his appearance in Virginia, where he was shot, there has always been a historical gap which this paper fills with a very full and, as it is believed, an authentic narrative. The other striking essays of the number are "Uncle Tom without a Cabin," by Walter B. Hill, a consideration from the Southern point of view, of the present status of the negroes of the South; and "An Average Man" are continued. The inal justice, under the title of "Mob or Magistrate," and "The Open Letters" are more than usually interesting.

State Guard Notes. The Charleston "News and Courier" says: 'The adoption of a regular uniform for the State Volunteer troops of South Carolina works well in divers ways. It puts the cost of the standard uniform at a low rate, which will check rivalry between the different commands and prevent one company from outshining another by length of purse. Then, too, when the companies are formed in regiments and the regiments are brigaded we have a body of troops that look like the soldiers that they are one in appearance and equipment as in drill and purpose. A regiment which is made up like 'Jacob's coat' is not soldierly in appearance and necessarily lacks unity."

The Haywood Grays, of Waynesville are now said to be showing more life.

The Wilmington Light Infantry and the Pasquotank Rifles (of Elizabeth City) are the largest companies in the State Guard. The Salisbury Rifles, disbanded some time since, will it is said, be reorganized. Most of the eastern companies will probably take part in the Roanoke Island celebration. It is said that one company of the Guard will accompany Gov. Jarvis to New Orleans next winter.
