SATURDAY, JANUARY 2, 1886

SAM RANDALL is a fine fellow after all, and a true democrat, notwithstanding the difference of his views from those of some of us. His defeat in the House in the contest over the rules must have been bitter to him, yet he has the manliness to say of the new departure: "The change of rules makes no difference with me. I will continue to do what I conceive to be my duty just as I have hitherto. Because the rules are changed is no reason why I should change my convictions as to what should be done. Do I expect to continue as chairman of the appropriations committee? Really, I have no expectations as to the committee. I will serve in whatever position I may be assigned. The speaker can be relied upon to construct the committees as to direct legislation in the interest of the people, and whatever may be done with me in regard to the committee; I will not complain."

YESTERDAY Gen. Fitzhugh Lee was inaugurated Governor of Virginia. The legislature has been in session nearly a month and having already received a message from Governor Cameron, touching the various interests of the commonwealth, will not probably be called upon to hear another from Gov. Lee. There was yesterday too, in accordance with Virginia custom, no inaugural address. The new Governor simply took the oath of office in the presence of the two houses of the assembly, and the only event of importance which marked the inauguration was the grand ball given last night in honor of the distinguished gentleman who is to occupy for four years the gubernatorial chair of the Old Dominion. This fact is significant and appropriate, for the Virginia ladies have shown as warm an interest in the disenfranchisement of their State as the men who have accomplished that liberation. We rejoice heartily with our brethren across the line—the whole South indeed rejoices—in the event of yesterday at Richmond, since its importance, to the best people of Virginia cannot be over-estimated.

The Boston Post said recently—and rashly—that "every month $2,000,000 of gold in the public treasury is paid out for $2,000,000 of silver to lie idle in the public treasury." Whereupon the San Francisco Call responds in the following vigorous style: "When the editor of a leading Boston journal makes such blunders as this there should be no surprise at the ignorance the Eastern people generally display in the discussion of the silver question. In this benighted portion of the country everybody knows that the government buys silver bullion at the market price. Whatever profit there may be in the coining of silver bullion into dollars is made by the government. But why to lie idle in the public treasury? There is not a silver dollar in the public treasury which may not be honorably paid out in the discharge of any obligation of the United States. If the silver dollars lie idle in the public treasury it is because the treasury department has set up the gold standard in defiance of law. But the gold man says that the silver dollar is not an honest dollar. The facts are, however, that the silver dollar is the only dollar which is the same now as in 1792, and has never been changed. The dollar of our fathers is ninety-three years old, and is precisely the same as ever. The gold dollar has been changed in weight from time to time, but the silver is the same age with another; if there is any dishonest money around it is gold. Through the appreciation of this metal caused by legislation unfriendly to silver, the value of debts has been increased."

The Baltimore Manufacturers' Record, in referring to the fact that Birmingham, Chattanooga and other Southern points possess wonderful advantages for the manufacture of pig iron at a very low cost, asks the pertinent question: "Of what advantage is the continued and increasing production of that raw material at this low cost, when to put it where it can be sold and used a tax called freight is absolutely necessary? The producer of any raw material is seldom the receiver of any large profits. It is the man who takes an article worth one cent or less per pound and puts it into another article which sells for five or ten cents per pound who makes the great profit and amasses wealth. The need of Alabama and the South, then, is such an increase of her manufactures that the conversion of the raw material into the various implements, machines and articles of agriculture, manufacture and commerce will consume at home a large part of that raw material." There is the lesson for us to learn—to turn to profitable advantage the materials we have in such abundance all about us, instead of selling these materials and buying them back again in the shape of the thousands and articles we need daily and hourly in business, in the field and in the household, the profit involved in their manufacture going meantime and wholly into the pockets of people other (and smarter?) than ourselves. The smaller industries are what we want, and every encouragement should be given to their establishment by every community in the State.

WHY NOT CATCH SOME OF THE FLYING DOLLARS?

We submit to the business men and capitalists of the city the idea that Raleigh should have a hotel of such character as would arrest many of the Northern people who for the purpose of pleasure or in the pursuit of health annually seek the far South. The idea cannot be novel to many Raleigh people, for our delightful winter climate, with our situation, must have suggested it often to thinking men. But why cannot it be carried into effect? The success of the hotel at our neighboring town Kirtrell, which is exclusively a winter resort, is familiar to all of us, yet Kirtrell is an obscure railway station, whose place on any map has to be sought carefully, if it has a place at all. There is literally nothing there to attract visitors from the North but the climate and the hotel. The latter, however, is so well advertised, so skillfully managed, that it is full all winter, its guests paying the highest rates of board and cheerfully because so far as the hotel is concerned, they get what they pay for. Raleigh has all the advantages possessed by Kirtrell as a winter resort, but the difference between the two is that Raleigh is the capital of the State and the winter of Florida and many others besides. While not too large a town to deprive the dweller in great cities of the change he desires from city life, it affords all the town comforts and conveniences of modern times which are desirable all ways and are out of the question in Kirtrell, and as the capital of the State it has peculiar interest. The winter climate as we have said is delightful, eliciting the most enthusiastic encomiums from all northern people who happen to experience it. Here it is, for instance, the 2nd of January and so far we have had no real winter weather at all. A few mild frosts and one or two cold rains make the sum of the disagreeable weather which has thus far characterized the season, and the same conditions have marked every season of the large number we have known here. The place is an ideal one for a midway stoppage between the extreme North and the extreme South. An abrupt change from the bleak winter of New England or the North to the absolute summer in winter, as we have called it, of Florida, is too violent, not only for the taste but for the constitution of the average Northern seeker after balminess. He desires a break in the journey he makes southward, and he therefore stops a few days on his way at Kirtrell and Wilmington, at Charleston and Columbia. Had we a hotel in Raleigh that would afford him such accommodations as he demands, and that would cater to his tastes in other respects he would be glad to stop here. He is generally wealthy and is willing as he is abundantly able to pay for all that he gets. His temporary residence in the city would be of benefit to the whole community and would, we are satisfied, be a pleasure and advantage to himself. Let us endeavor to attract his attention and to bring him here to live while each winter for his own good as well as for our own. In order to accomplish this purpose we have only to establish a hotel of the right sort and advertise it judiciously. The prominence of Raleigh, its charming winter climate, equally free from the severity of the northern blasts and the too great warmth of the extreme south, its many natural beauties and its attractive society will do whatever else may be necessary.

THE CONTINUED PROSPERITY OF RALEIGH.

The advance Raleigh has made during the past year, as shown by the record we printed yesterday of the additional enterprises established, the new houses built, the improvements made, should be a source of pride and pleasure to every citizen. It is certainly very gratifying to the News and Observer and is encouraging to us all. It shows that while we are not probably forging ahead with the rapidity which characterized the city a few years ago, we are still maintaining a reasonable degree of progressiveness, which in view of the prevailing general business depression amounts to a maintenance of the boom. It enables us to say with confidence that as soon as the revival which must now be near at hand shall have begun, the city will be in condition to advance with giant strides toward the destiny which manifestly awaits it, a destiny which will make it the industrial centre of the State as preeminently as it is now the political and social centre. We have every advantage to this end—a central location, abundant railway facilities, present or prospective, for rapid distribution, cheap labor, cheap houses, etc. We have also made a very fair beginning. All the industries which have been established are prospering and many of the manufacturing establishments are enlarging, some doubling, their capacities. A system of smaller industries has been begun and we venture the opinion that this will be expended rapidly, and that it will eventually be found Raleigh's chief financial strength and the greatest good for the masses of her people. The outlook seems to us fair, notwithstanding the present period of depression. Let us take courage from the evidences of progress the last year has afforded, and, maintaining our hold firmly on the business we have, prepare to do our utmost when the better times coming shall have arrived for the further advancement of our own interests and those of the city as well. To strangers looking about for places in which to locate we would say that no city in the South offers greater inducements to men of means and industry than Raleigh. The time is now auspicious for the establishment here of smaller industries of almost every kind. Such things are conspicuous by their absence in North Carolina, and they must become more and more necessary, and therefore profitable as time passes, under the changed economical conditions which we have not yet fully realized. There is certainly no better point in the State for their location than this, for the reasons we have given, and those which are first established are therefore almost certainly bound to succeed.

Opinion of the Supreme Court, OCTOBER TERM, 1885.

From Advance Sheets of Attorney General F. Davidson's 98d N. C. Reports.
Mode vs. Penland.
1. Partners are individually responsible for the negligence of the servants and agents of the partnership, and when one of the partners does an act in the course of the partnership business, he is considered in this respect as the agent of the partnership, and the other partners are liable, even if they did not assent to the act.
2. All torts are joint and several, and where one partner commits a tort in the prosecution of the partnership business, the injured party may, at his election, sue all the partners, or any one or more of them.
3. Evidence should never be rejected on the ground of variance unless it has misled the adverse party in making his defence. So when the complaint alleged that the plaintiff had been injured by the negligence of the defendant's agent, and the evidence was that it was by the negligence of his partner, the variance was immaterial.
Wright vs. Cain.
1. Only such issues as are raised by the pleadings should be submitted to the jury, and it is not error for the court to refuse to submit an issue which the pleadings do not present.
2. The question whether a claim is barred by the statute, is never exclusively for the court, unless the facts raising the question are alleged in the complaint.
3. Where there is an express trust, the statute only begins to run from a demand.
When parties are in pari delicto, and one obtains an advantage over the other, courts of equity will not grant relief; but it is otherwise when they are not equally in fault.
5. The claimants of a tract of land agree with a third party who was their near kinsman and adviser, and who had great influence over them, to pay him a consideration if he would recover the land for them; and in pursuance of the bargain at his instance conveyed the land to him without consideration, so that he might bring the action in his own name, which he did and recovered the land. He refused to convey the land. In an action against him by the claimants it was held that the contract was not ex-empt.
Carleton vs. Byers.
1. Creditors are not proper parties to a proceeding brought by an administrator against the next of kin of his intestate for a settlement of the estate.
2. If an administrator should file a petition against the parties interested for a settlement before he has paid the debts, the remedy of the creditor is by a creditor's bill in accordance with section 1448 of the Code, or a creditor may bring an action on the administration bond.
Creditors are proper parties to a special proceeding by a legatee or distributee against an executor or administrator for an account and settlement of the estate, for in such case the legatee or distributee has a right to have an account taken, to ascertain the balance after providing for all the debts.

A short time ago Frank Barrett, of Norfolk, Va., bet John Gillen, of New York, $100 that he could allow him 200 oysters and then beat him in shucking 2,500 of the bivalves. The contest came off in New York Tuesday evening last, and Gillen won. He opened 2,800 oysters in 2h. 18m. 19s., and Barrett opened 2,600 in 2h. 23 m. 30s. Barrett claimed there was not a fair count, and at the close of the match he said he still believed he could give Gillen 2,500 oysters and beat him in a week or ten days. Gillen said he would accept the offer. The betting had been in Barrett's favor at $100 to $75.

ATLANTIC HOTEL,
MOREHEAD, N. C.
Consisting of a thoroughly equipped hotel, Ten-pin Alley, Bar Room, Billiard Room, Club Room and all other adjuncts, which make it the most complete, largest and most popular SUMMER RESORT IN THE SOUTH.
This hotel, with improvements, costing more than $75,000, is in thorough repair, is elegantly and simply furnished, and has been since its construction in 1880, extensively re-furbished and popularly managed. Of the thousands who have visited Morehead, not one has left without expressing a desire to return.
With all these advantages and the attractions of the climate, the bathing and the fishing and the gunning, it is bound to become, if not already, the foremost Southern Health and Summer Resort.
And presents a better opportunity for successful and profitable management than any hotel in America.
The hotel, with cottages, will accommodate 750 guests, has about 250 sleeping apartments, mostly EX SUTRE, and all handsomely furnished in ash or cherry, with water, gas and electric bells in each room.
The bill room, one hundred feet square, is the finest in the South, and the dining room 150 square grand.
The average number of guests during the season is at least three thousand from all the Southern States.
