WEDNESDAY, APRIL 7, 1886.

A new and alarming form of the boycott is reported by our Belton, Texas, correspondent.

The resolutions reported by Mr. Phelps in the House yesterday from the committee on foreign affairs look to retaliatory measures in favor of the American hog, we suppose. We should save our own bacon by all means.

The colored folks who have been thinking of going to Kansas will do well to note the fact that the colored citizens of that State are anxious to get away from the inhospitable region in which they live, preferring even Africa as a place of residence, and are asking Congress to help them carry out their scheme of emigration.

WILMINGTON has taken a decided step forward in adopting the electric light for general street illuminating purposes. We may as well make up our minds to the fact that our commercial metropolis is going to rise from its ashes in new beauty and with greater energy than it has ever possessed.

The naval drill at Pensacola began Monday and will continue through this week and the next. It is the most important affair of the kind that has ever taken place in Southern waters and will of course be an imposing illustration of naval warfare. Our navy is not very effective but it makes a brave show on occasion. Then there are few finer harbors than that of Pensacola. The bay is capacious and there is plenty of water for the vessels to manoeuvre in. The spectacle of the drill will be well worth witnessing.

The people of the State will be gratified to learn that the Oxford orphan asylum is prospering in the noble work it is doing. The number of beneficiaries within its walls is large, and these are comfortably supported and carefully trained in the way of usefulness. The industrial department of the asylum is accomplishing fine results, and this is a particularly pleasing feature of the work that is being done. The asylum is a living and splendid monument to the beneficence of the Masonic order in the State and to the charity of North Carolinians generally.

Easter falls this year on a day on which no living person ever celebrated it and on which comparatively few alive will celebrate it again, to-wit, April 25th. This has not occurred since 1734 and will not occur again until 1943. The coming of Easter is regulated by the rule adopted by the Council of Nice to the effect that Easter day should be always the first Sunday after the full moon which happens upon or next after, the twenty first day of March, "and if the full moon happen upon a Sunday, Easter Day is the Sunday after." From this it is evident that the festival cannot come earlier than the 22d of March and the date on which it falls this year is the latest on which it can occur.

The government very properly handles pirates of the public lands with gloves off. It is just now reported that eight prominent citizens of California have been indicted for subornation of perjury in procuring fraudulent entries of 96,000 acres of red wood timber land in Humboldt county, that State. These men are members of a company the capital of which was mainly subscribed in Scotland and are all wealthy. They induced some six hundred Americans to take up 160 acres each of the 96,000 and caused each to be paid $50 for doing so. The entries were in all cases then immediately conveyed to one of the indicted persons and the company afterward sent an agent to Scotland to form a syndicate and sell the lands. The agent carried out instructions and the syndicate paid the company $20 an acre for the land which had been fraudulently purchased from the government at two dollars and a half per acre. Testimony has been secured from over a hundred of those who accepted the bribe, it is said, and the government will institute suit forthwith to set aside all the entries as well as the patents already issued.

We are glad to note that the old Confederates of Raleigh and its neighborhood are to meet this evening for the purpose of organizing themselves into a permanent body, whose objects shall be social enjoyment, the preservation of war memorials and the keeping green the memories of those who perished that their land might live. Such an organization can result only in pleasure to those who form it. This pleasure will oftentimes be sad—it cannot fail to be saddened by the recollection of those sacrificed that were made twenty years and more ago—but it will be great notwithstanding, and will become greater as time passes and the renewed friendships of today are cemented into bonds of everlasting brotherhood. The association will increase in interest too as the years come and go, to those who compose it and to all others. Its work will be that of "Old Mortality"—removing the moss from the headstones of those who have died and obelising into distinctness from time to time the inscriptions which tell of heroic deeds and patriotic laying down of all but honor. It will be noble work and will enable those who undertake it. It has been left thus far to the devoted women of the land almost exclusively, and it has been done with a tender care, a thoroughness, a self-abnegation and a beauty which could only have sprung from the heart of the highest type of womanhood. It is not too late however and it is certainly most appropriate that organized assistance should be rendered by the men who wore the gray and who survived to live in the troublous times that have followed, and such assistance the proposed association will render. Then there will be the pleasant reunions, the talk over the rough experiences of the war, the edge of which has been worn away by time, and the reproduction of the forgotten saws and quips and cracks of the march and of the camp. There is everything to commend the new association of old comrades and we therefore rejoice in its formation. We trust it will comprise all Confederates now living in this neighborhood, for even at the best alas! they are none too numerous and are dropping off with startling rapidity.

The floods in the South, particularly in Alabama, have been most disastrous. The rivers have been bigger than they have ever before been known to be and the damage to crops and loss of stock have been enormous. The loss of life has been great also. The rains have been followed by wintry weather and this has added much to the suffering which has prevailed. There seems to be widespread distress and the prompt measures of relief came none too soon. We like the course of the Governor of Alabama, who prefers not to seek assistance until the ability of the Alabamians themselves to succor their stricken brethren shall be exhausted. The growing disposition to ignore the power and majesty and independence of the State governments is an evil which should be discouraged by all proper means. It is in conflict with the spirit of the system on which we pride ourselves. The whole country would be glad to aid the Alabamians in their trouble, but the self-reliance displayed by Gov. O'Neal is refreshing in the existing dread of such sentiment and is highly to be commended. North Carolina has been fortunate in the matter of the floods. No such calamities have befallen us as have been visited on our sister States and for such exemption we should be duly thankful to the Providence which makes ours at all times a land of pleasantness. There has been some serious damage to railroad property in the western part of the State in consequence of the heavy rains and the work of the farmers has been retarded considerably by reason of the same visitation, but we have suffered in no degree to compare with the States to the southward of us. And for this, as we have said, we should be thankful.

The Governor of Indiana has a difficult case upon his hands. They are getting ready in Indianapolis to hang a man who cut his wife's throat last July and immediately afterward tried to cut his own. He succeeded in the latter case only in so far that he has been living ever since with a metal air tube in his throat and the question is now as to hanging a man in such condition. A petition signed by hundreds of persons has been presented to the Governor praying a commutation of sentence on the ground that "if the man is executed by hanging, the sentence and the law require, the noose necessarily encircling his neck above the opening of the tube will in no wise produce strangulation, or in any way interfere with his respiration, and thus his death must necessarily ensue from sheer physical exhaustion, not otherwise unless from decapitation. Such an execution would be an outrage on civilization and, simply barbarous," say the petitioners, "and in the interest of humanity and enlightened civilization they therefore pray the commutation of sentence to imprisonment for life." The case is unprecedented and the Governor is not unnaturally at a loss as to what his duty is in the premises.

The centre of the labor disturbances has shifted from St. Louis to northern Texas, but even at the latter point reason has apparently resumed its throne and is bringing order again out of what at one time threatened to become the veriest chaos. The Knights of Labor do not approve the violent action of the extreme men in their ranks, and violence, being thus condemned in all quarters, disappears as it does inevitably under the frown of public opinion. We trust we have heard the last of violence, at least in connection with the strikes. Whatever claim may be advanced in support of strikes or the boycott, no excuse at all can be made for initial violence at any time or under any circumstances.

This week the real test of Mr. Edmunds' resolutions will be made in the Senate. The nominations on which the point against the President has been made will come up for confirmation or rejection, and it remains to be seen whether or not the Vermont Senator's late followers will stand to the risk when there is nothing therein but brings. Many of them have openly said they would not, and Mr. Edmunds is reported very sad in consequence. They will doubtless not be quick to change their minds when the time for action comes. Mr. Edmunds will well wonder, since his movement is so soon done for what on earth it was begun for.

Stricken Key West asks help of the citizens of the United States. Its appeal sets forth that "a large portion of the city was swept away by the late fire, the industrial occupations entirely ruined and thousands of the people left in utter destitution and distress." The subject is therefore a most fitting one for the consideration of the benevolent, and in accordance with the request made in the appeal the NEWS AND OBSERVER will take pleasure in receiving, forwarding and accounting for any subscriptions which it may be desired to make through the channel it offers to the cause mentioned.

A RESUMPTION of the strike has been ordered by the executive board of the Knights of Labor, but it does not appear that it will have any very serious effect. The railroads seem to have gotten on their feet again and to be able to act independently of the Knights. The places of the strikers have been filled by new men and trains are running with something of their old-time regularity. The railroads seem to have won the fight indeed and the Knights, though ordered to strike, have now for the most part nothing to strike against.

North Carolina Teachers Abroad. The N. C. Teacher. We have told our readers many times that the educational progress which North Carolina was making was equal to that of any other State in the Union, and was much greater than was to be seen in many sister States. This is not to the discredit of any other State, for all are doing well, but especially to the honor of North Carolina schools and North Carolina teachers. One of the strongest evidences of the educational advancement of a State is seen in the character of her schools and the standing of her teachers in the estimation of other States. Our progressive, faithful teachers occupy positions at the very front of the profession, and that our people may see to what extent North Carolina has been drawn on for teachers by her sister States, we note down from memory the names of a few North Carolinians who are teaching beyond our borders:

Rev. D. A. Long, president of Antioch college, Ohio; Gen. Daniel H. Hill, president of industrial college, Milledgeville, Georgia; Wilbur F. Tillet, professor Vanderbilt university, Tennessee; Professor Eugene C. Branson, just elected superintendent of city schools, Athens, Georgia; Prof. D. Harvey Hill, of university of Georgia; Rev. Johnston, superintendent of city schools, Columbia, S. C.; M. F. Egerton and wife, principals of female college, Franklin, Tennessee; Prof. S. Simpson, formerly president of Yakin college, professor of natural sciences, Westminster college, Maryland; Prof. Wm. Yeates, of Hertford county, professor of mineralogy, Columbia university, Washington, D. C.; Prof. M. L. Venable, Bethesda, Maryland; Prof. George W. Sparger, principal of female seminary, Griffin, Georgia; J. C. Ellis, Mars Bluff, South Carolina; Prof. J. S. Midgett, principal of female school, Wheatley, Arkansas; Prof. A. S. Vaughan, principal of school, Vineland, New Jersey; H. B. Folk (Wake Forest), in public schools, New Orleans, Louisiana; Will K. Brown, (University of North Carolina), principal male academy, Jasper, Alabama; W. F. Stevenson (Davidson college), principal high school at Cheraw, South Carolina; Charles C. Holden, of Raleigh, master of Languages in university school, Elliott City, Maryland; Prof. H. W. Beal, professor of Anglo-Saxon in Stephens' institute, Hoboken, New Jersey; John W. McLeod, teaching at Hutonville, Virginia; W. S. Allen, of Franklin county, principal of academy at Union, Missouri; A. C. Munroe, of Cumberland county, at McColl, South Carolina; Miss P. E. Macon, Corinth, Mississippi; Miss Jane Long, Minneapolis, Minnesota; Miss Bettie V. Seig, Staunton, Virginia; Miss E. A. Draughan, Indian Territory; Miss Alice Thompson, Newark, New Jersey; Miss Florence Bandy, Franklin, Tennessee; Miss S. E. Giles, Franklin, Tennessee; Miss Nora King, Laurensville, South Carolina; Miss Eva Price, East Macon, Georgia; John C. Webb & Bro., of Culleoka, Tennessee; Rev. A. A. Benton, in Delaware college; Rev. Thomas W. Jones, D. D., president of Jackson female college, Jackson, Tennessee; S. G. Neville, principal of academy, Henning, Tennessee; Miss Dell K. Moore, at Clarksville, Tennessee; A. Q. Moody, Georgia; J. C. Laprade, Meadville, Virginia; Rev. W. W. Staley, Suffolk, Virginia; J. W. Coltrane, Iowa; P. J. Kernodle, Suffolk, Virginia; C. W. White, Missouri; Persis P. Giles, Virginia; J. W. Lucas, Tennessee; R. B. Clarke, Adamsville, South Carolina; W. A. Jones, Texas; C. A. Plyler, Wild Cat, South Carolina; Isaac Sutton, Providence, Rhode Island; T. L. White, Independence, Virginia; Miss Mollie Giles, Greenwood, South Carolina; Miss Lucy Tigue, of Raleigh, at Fair Haven, Connecticut; Miss Nannie Hill, Washington City; Miss Lelia Lawrence, at Bennettsville, South Carolina; Miss Mattie Dowd, Washington, D. C.; Miss Nannie Sexton, of Dallas, at Lancaster, South Carolina; David C. Dudley Jr., principal of the deaf and dumb institution, Colorado Springs, Colorado; Daniel Coleman, Belleville, Canada; Miss Rosa A. Penick, Galveston, Texas; Miss Annie M. Litchford, California.

This list, though very incomplete, represents twenty-three States, and a careful examination would no doubt greatly extend the list. We often hear from these teachers and of the excellent work which they are doing. They are honoring themselves, their profession, the grand old State which gave them birth, and likewise honoring the great number of our faithful and conscientious teachers who are now training North Carolina children.

Medalists at "The Hill." CHARLIE HILL, April 6, 1886. The Philanthropic society held its election for medalists Saturday morning, April 3, with the following result: Debater's medal, G. L. Patrick; essayist's, H. W. Lewis; declaimer's, F. D. Thomas. Your correspondent congratulates the gentlemen.

CURRENCY. The learned say we must not think one swallow makes a summer; Nor can you say of those who drink, One swallow makes a bumper. —TUM TIT. Insurance Agent—"You want to get a thousand dollars on your furniture. Where in the thunder is it?" Mr. Murphy—"Faix, must I find the furniture and the customer too?"—Puck. Progressive Town: Eastern gentleman visiting in the West—"Is your beautiful little city a progressive place at all, Mrs. Breezy?" Mrs. Breezy—"Oh, yes, sir. We have progressive euchre parties almost every night in the week."—Harper's Bazar.

Getting Her Wind—"So your sister will be down in a minute, Miss Dollie." "Yes." "And I suppose she is making herself prettier than ever to get me, eh?" "Oh, no she isn't. She told me she'd have to take a minute's rest to get her wind and brace up before she'd have the nerve to try a shy at you." Blobson did not propose.—Town Topics.

Bright weather is the one thing needed. Business Men. wearied from the labors of the day, on going home find that they cannot have the desired and necessary rest, for the little darlings still suffering, and slowly and pitifully wasting away by the drainage upon its system from the effects of teething. If they would think to use Dr. Bigger's Huckleberry Cordial, the Great Southern Remedy, loss of sleep and howl complaints would be unknown in that home. For sale by all druggists at 50 cents a bottle.
