Sal-Muscattelle

A NATURAL
Sick Headache and Dyspepsia Cure
IN AMERICA.

The crystallized salts, as extracted from grapes and fruit, a most wonderful product from Nature's laboratory. Have it in your homes and travel—a specific for the fagged, weary or worn-out. It cures headache, dyspepsia, stomach and bowel complaints, removes biliousness, stimulates the liver to a healthy action, counteracts the effects of impure water and the excessive use of alcoholic beverages and prevents the absorption of malaria germs. Has to the system the sound, ripe fruit.

GUINN'S PIONEER

BLOOD REGENERATOR

"LIFE!"

Forty years a sufferer from CATARRH.

"FOR FORTY YEARS I have been a victim to CATARRH—three-fourths of the time a sufferer from EXCRUCIATING PAINS ACROSS MY FOREHEAD AND MY NOSE. The discharge was so offensive that I hate to mention it, except for the good it may do some other sufferer. I have spent a young fortune from my earnings during my forty years of suffering to obtain relief from the doctor. I have tried patent medicines—every one I could learn of—from the four corners of the earth, with no relief. And AT LAST (at 70 years of age) have met with the GUINN'S PIONEER BLOOD REGENERATOR. It has cured me entirely—made me a new man. I weighed 128 pounds and now weigh 148. I used thirteen bottles of the medicine, and the only regret I have is that being in the humble walks of life I may not have influence to prevail on all catarrh sufferers to use what has cured me. GUINN'S PIONEER BLOOD REGENERATOR. HENRY CHEVY, No. 307 Second St., Macon, Ga."

"Mr. Henry Chevy, the writer of the above, formerly of Crawford county, now of Macon, Georgia, merits the confidence of all treated in catarrh."
W. A. HUFF, Ex-Mayor of Macon.

Sam Egul.

BY H. D., JR.

Just tall enough to be graceful;
Just dainty enough to be neat;
Just dressy enough to be tasteful;
Just modest enough to be sweet.

Just tears enough to be tender;
Just sighs enough to be sad;
Just tones soft enough to remember
Your heart through the cadence made glad.

A tongue that speaks without harming,
Yet mischievous enough to tease,
Manner so pleasant and charming
That put you at once on your ease.

Just smiles enough to be happy;
Just slight enough to be coy;
Bright as a morning sunbeam,
All frankness and naive.

Generous, true and kind-hearted;
Pure as the angels above,
From her may I never be parted,
For such is the woman I love.

NORTH CAROLINA NEWS.

WILMINGTON IS TO BE LIGHTED ENTIRELY BY ELECTRICITY.

Two negroes, brothers, fought at Mt. Olive Monday and one killed the other.

Charlotte is soon to have a tobacco warehouse, of which Carson Bros. are the owners.

J. B. Whitaker has been elected stockholder of the "Eastern Carolina Stock Association," of Goldsboro.

The Charlotte Chronicle says farmers report that wheat and oats are taking a good stand and looking well.

At Atkinson's landing, on the Cape Fear, a negro man named Rhodes was drowned by the capsizing of his canoe by the swollen river.

One of Mecklenburg's progressive little rural towns is Matthews, on the Carolina Central railroad. With a population of about 350, it has fourteen stores, six churches and seven doctors.

No mail from Tennessee has been received at Asheville for four or five days. It is said that it will be eight or ten days yet before the railroad will be in such condition as to enable trains to make connection at the northern end of the road.

The new telegraph line being constructed by the Western North Carolina railroad company between Asheville junction and Hendersonville is nearing completion, and will be opened for the transaction of business in a few days.

The water-works at Concord were formally opened Saturday and the result was a success. The pressure is found to be fully equal to the calculations of the engineer, and the water supply is abundant.

The Charlotte Observer says the success of the system is established beyond a doubt, and the people of the town are now congratulating themselves in the possession of water facilities equal to that of any city.

Rev. Wm. R. Atkinson, principal of the Charlotte female institute, a few nights ago went down into the basement of that building to see what was the matter with the gas machine. There was an explosion, the Observer says, by which his clothes were ruined, his whiskers and hair singed and his face slightly disfigured. His injuries were slight.

FOUR GIRLS SUFFOCATED.

THE PLANTERS' HOTEL, ST. LOUIS, THE SCENE OF A SHOCKING TRAGEDY.

Four lives were lost during a fire in the Planters' hotel Saturday morning and the hotel had a narrow escape from total destruction. The fire started in some unaccountable way a few minutes before 4 o'clock, in the laundry, which, through the servants' quarters, made up a wing of the hotel.

Rosie Sloan, one of the scrub-girls, discovered the fire and immediately gave the alarm to the night watchman. Mr. Girardi, the proprietor, was at once aroused and he and the watchman ran through the hallways and awakened the guests. The hotel was rapidly filling with smoke and there was no time to escape suffocation. The guests dressed themselves as quickly as possible, and many of them only half-clad and a few in their night garments rushed downstairs. The night rotunda was crowded with people in a great variety of costumes.

When the guests were hastening through the carpeted corridors of the front of the hotel the servant girls were struggling with smoke and fire in their dingy quarters in the rear. They were all asleep when the fire broke out. Carrie Robertson, a chambermaid who slept on the top floor, was awakened by the smoke in her room and applied a towel to her forehead. She then hastily dressed herself, and going out opened the doors of the rooms of the other girls and awakened them.

There were twenty-five or thirty girls in the quarters and she awakened all she could, but the fire had already made such progress that she could not arouse all the girls. Flames broke through the floor, and ten of the eighteen rooms on the floor were cut off from her. The girls when awakened rushed about wildly. The smoke was thick and stifling, and the poor unfortunates rushed blindly about, scarcely knowing where they went or what they did. Most of it stepped to dress themselves, and this delay probably cost some of them their lives. There is a fire escape at both sides of the servants' quarters leading down into the alley, but in their terror none of the women thought of it, but rushed through the narrow hallway, which was already filled with stifling smoke, and through the floor of which the flames were already bursting.

Some of the women clambered out on the low roof which leads from the servants' quarters to the hotel proper and others ran downstairs to the third floor and through the dish-room into the hotel proper. Four girls lost their lives.

Maggie Reardon was found in her room, in the south end of the structure, on her knees, her head leaning on the bed. She had been suffocated. Mary

ANOTHER HOBBY DEAD.

Quinine in Disfavor

Four Baltimore Boatmen.

In the Kharako region of Russia, quinine is considered of no account for the cure of chills and fever. The Kharako doctor catches a mess of live crabs, pours whiskey over them and they become hilariously drunk, and then puts them in a hot oven. After being well dried, they are pulverized, shells and all, and administered in drinking doses. When the crabs most abound in this country, in the waters of the Eastern shore of Maryland and the Eastern shore of Virginia, the inhabitants have long since abandoned the use of quinine and sensibly resort to prevention in the use of pure whiskey. In the malarial districts of the great West, Southwest and South, this once famed remedy is now looked upon as worse than the disease. In territories where the virgin soil is first broken, the malarial poison extending therefrom spreads resistance far and near. Years ago in the homes of the first settlers, an admixture of whiskey and quinine was the favorite dose for the chills, but after years of dosing in this crude manner, quinine has long since been given up and whiskey only remains in the flask, for family or medicinal use. Experience taught these settlers long ago, that the amount of quinine required to drive out the malarial poison in the blood, left in its place, if not a worse poison, a condition of the system made worse instead of better. The effects of the quinine were clearly defined in long continued headaches, disordered stomachs, clouded mental faculties, disturbed sleep, and morbid appetites, and the only virtue discovered in its use they thought attributable to the whiskey in the mixture. The medical profession has very gratefully modified its belief in quinine as a specific. Galton's Medical Journal, October, 1868, containing an article by L. B. Anderson, M. D., Norfolk, Va., in which the learned doctor uses the emphatic language: "I hope I may be pardoned for saying that the present empirical use of quinine in the worst of the darkest period of the dark ages. It is a blighting shame and disgrace to our profession." The people exposed to malaria now fortify their systems against the approach and invade of the disease preceding from it, and by the use of pure unmedicated stimulant ward off attack. Now that Duffy's pure malt whiskey is the only absolutely pure whiskey, free from fusel oil, as has been tested by chemists, it is the recognized cure in malarial attacks and so recognized by the people and the medical profession.
