Remarkable Sagacity. The late Mrs. Bingham, who lived near Mebaneville, and died about a year ago, had a pet fox which used to go into her room and climb on the bed, where he always felt entirely at home. When Mrs. Bingham died her two nieces who were at her house decided to take the fox with them to their home in Alabama, and did get as far as Tennessee with him, but when they were within a few miles of Chattanooga the fox jumped off the train and a few days later arrived at the home of his late mistress. He went in the window and took up his position on the bed, and when some one entered the room Mr. Fox was there in his accustomed place.

WASHINGTON, April 10. - The official statistical investigation for April makes a reduction of winter wheat of 3,500,-000 acres from the breadth seeded two years ago, and five per cent reduction from the area seeded a year ago. The city has been in a state of panic during the entire night, owing to the numerous incendiary fires, but with the presence of the military, which is guarding all the main lines of track diverging from the relay depot, something like order appears to promise for the day. It is impossible at this hour to more than approximate the damage done by the fires. They were all confined to railroad property, and the officers sent with the troops report that about twenty to thirty cars were destroyed, loaded with merchandise and coal. The greatest damage occurred at the Cairo Short Line yards about one mile from the relay depot where probably fifteen cars were destroyed and the flames for the time threatened the destruction of one or two hundred cars in the immediate visinity. The yards were unprotected by the presence of active deputiesor officers of any kind until company D, of Champaign, arrived Illinois & St. Louis road all were loaded the scene of the fire, and it was permitted to barn at its will. St. Louis, Mo., April 9 .- The scenes after the firing by the deputy marshals on the mob are as follows: About half an hour after the shooting an excited and angry mob gathered in the square between the city hall and the police station. A man named Dwyer, a gambler, in no way connected with the strike. became a centre of a crowd, who cheered the incendiary statements which he uttered. He urged the men to 'hang and kill," and was in the midst of an appeal to the mob to follow him to the Ohio and Mississippi depot to "hunt for deputy sheriffs," when John W. torce of his carnestness riveted the attention of the crowd, but only for a few minutes at a time, for they would break away from the spell of his eloquence and take up their revolutionary yells.

Mr. Brown said: 'Men and Brothers -The fires are now under control. At this point Dwyer broke in: "Yes, why don't you talk for Jay Gould and is running high. Firemen and engines be done with it. They shot our men down, and you ask us to be quiet. I say, hang them." The crowd took up the words, crying,

'Burn, kill and shoot." Brown pointed his finger at Dwver. and asked him, "Are you a Knight of Labor?" "No," answered Dwyer, "but I'm with them on everything, you can

All men who incite you to strike are not true Knights of Labor. They are worse than the detectives of the railroads who are trying to hunt you down. Shun them; shun them as you would a murderer."

While Mr. Brown was speaking committeemen Hayes walked excitedly up and down the platform, exclaiming in a despairing manner, 'Oh, my God! My God, I wish this had not happened ! His eyes were watery, he was almost crying, and when he addressed the mob after Brown his voice failed, and he was obliged to pause for utterance.
