LECEIVES AN OVATION AT MONT-GOMERY, ALABAMA.

He Speaks to an Immense Assemblage on the Spot Where he took the Oath as President of the Confederate States.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 27.-Today will ever be memorable in the history of Alabama. Every locality was represented and many adjacent towns and villages poured their entire population into the streets of Montgomery. At an early hour the sidewalks were so densely packed that locomotion was difficult. It had rained all night and poured down until 10 o'clock. The hour for delivering addresses by Mr. Davis and Gen. Gordon was changed to 2 p. m. Instead of going to the park it was decided to go to the capitol grounds, the speeches o be made from the very spot where Hon. Jefferson Davis took the oath of office as President of the Confederate States. This change was made because of the muddy condition of the park. The entire city is gaily decorated and the city hall has United States flags fluttering out of every window. Pictures of Confederate generals are fastened to the ontside walls, while the names of Robert E. Lee, Stonewall Jackson, Albert Sidney Johnston and many other Confederate generals flutter to the breeze on streamers. The capitol was beatifully decorated. From the topmast point on the high dome, towering far above everything in the city, floated the "stars and stripes." The entire front was covered with streamers and devices, while there was suspended slong the front columns immense federal flags, reaching down almost to the heads of the speakers. More federal flags float in Montgomery today than at any time since 1880. Private houses and business houses all have a liberal supply of decorations and devices and words of welcome to Mr. Davis. The scenes around Mr. Davis this morning and the desire to see and shake him by

JEFFERSON DAVIS in their majesty; gray-haired sires and beardless boys eagerly rushed to the front. It was that war which Christianity alone approved-a holy war for defense. Well do I remember seeing your gentle boys, so small, to use a farmers' phrase, they might have been called 'seed corn', moving on with eager step and fearless brow to the carvival of desth. I have also looked upon them when their knapsacks and muskets seemed heavier than boys should use, and my eyes, partaking of a mother's weakness, filled with tears. Those days have passed. Many of them have found nameless graves, but they are not dead. They live in memory and their spirits stand out, the grand reserve of that column which is marching on with unfaltering steps toward the goal of constitutional liberty. (Applause.) It were in vain if I should attempt, as I have already said, to express my gratitude to you. I am standing now very nearly on the spot where I stood when I took the oath of office in 1861. Your demonstration now exceeds that which welcomed me then. This shows that the spirit of Southern liberty is not dead. (Long and continued applause.) Then you were full of joyous hopes. You had every prospect of achieving all you desired, and now you are wrapped in the mantle of regret-and yet that regret only manifests more profoundly and does not obliterate the expression of your sentiments. I felt last night as I approached the Exchange hotel, from the gallery of which your peerless orator, William L. Yancey, introduced me to the citizens of Montgomery and commended me in language which only his eloquence could yield and which far exceeded my merit; I felt, I say again, that I was coming to my home; coming to a land where liberty dies not and serious senti-ments will live forever. (Applause). I have been promised, my friends, that should not be called upon to make a speech, and therefore I will only extend to you my heartfelt thanks. God bless you all. At the conclusion of this brief speech there was another burst of applause. The address was delivered by Gen. John B. Gordon. He received a grand welcome, as many soldiers whom he had commanded were present.

THE BLAIR BILL. REPRESENTATIVE REID GETS IT ON THE CALENDAR.

The Enemies of the Measure Learns Thing or Two From Our Youngest Congressman.

Special Cor. NEWS AND OBSERVER. WASHINGTON, April 38.

It is a source of pleasure to me to be able to inform the readers of THE NEWS AND OBSERVER that the Blair bill is rapidly on the mend and its convalescence is an event early expected.

Yesterday the committee on labor reported back a substitute for the Blair bill. The request was made, as usual, that the original bill referred to it be laid on the table. Just here Hon. J. W. Reid, who had been on the alert all day, arose and demanded, as a matter of privilege, that the Blair bill be put on the calendar as an adverse report to the substitute reported by the committee. This order was promptly made by the presiding officer, Mr. Springer, of Illinois, and Representative Reid now wears the honor of having succeeded in his efforts-untiring and effective, at lastto get the unaltered Blair bill on the calendar. And I say hurrah for Hon. James W. Reid, and thousands of throats in North Carolina will voice the same sentiment. His resolution in the conference of the friends of the bill has borne its fruit-and it is good fruit. The substitute reported by the committee provides that the receipts from the sale of public lands and the other revenues of the general land office shall be divided among the several States and Territories in proportion to their school population for educational purposes for the next ten years. Twenty-five per cent of the sum is to be used for industrial and technical instruction, and the remainder for the common schools. The committee agreed that the individual members should not be bound by their vote in committee, either in support of or against the measure when it comes up for consideration in the House.

The money is to be divided among the States according to the number of school children between the ages of eight and fourteen years. Not more than $7,500,000 are to be distributed in What is said about it. There is no medicine which has been offered to the people for the past forty years that has attained the popu-larity of Pond's Extract. The reason is plain. It is a medicine that relieves at once the sprains, bruises, burns and all common ills that are sure to come, which do not need a doc-tor, but must be attended to; and it is so simple and harm'ess that anybody, old or young, can use it. As a uarantee of its worth physicians everywhere recommend it, and in many in-stances they use it in their own practice. It is an indispensable household remedy, and no family should be without it .- It dianapolis Journal.

Mr., McAdoo, of New Jersey, moved to strike out the appropriation for the improvement of Gasconade river, Missouri. It was a stream that was simply an obseure creek which should be macadamized and a country road made of it. The motion was lost. The paragraph making an appropriation for the improvement of the Yellowstone river having been reached, Mr. Beach, of New York, said that three years ago he had tried to catch fish in that river and his efforts had been as fruitless as this appropriation would be to improve its navigation. Mr. Hepburn, of Iowa, offered an amendment to the Missouri river surtion, providing for the expenditure of the appropriation by the secretary of war without the intervention of the Missouri commission. He attacked the commission, charging that their salaries, amounting to $19,200 per annum, were more than one-third of the entire appropriation made in the section under consideration. The House got no fur-ther than this with the bill.
