THE indications are that the Senate open session resolution will find "the way to dusty death" through indefinite postponement.

Such incidents as that of the establishment of a protectorate over the Samoan isles indicate that considerable vigor has been put into the foreign policy of the government under democratic administration. This country is too great now to fail in the assertion of its dignity when such assertion is demanded by justice or propriety.

A NEW YORK man has thrown a bomb shell into the camp of the Knights of Labor at Cleveland, by showing that designing men have been using the order for their own purposes-that, in other words, a fight for fat positions has been maintained continuously by men who, " in public, pretend to be the sincerest friends of the poor laboring man. 'Twas ever thus.

THE vote yesterday on Mr. Daniel's amendment to abolish the tax on tobacco and fruit brandy should not be construed as a test vote on the tobacco and brandy tax question generally. There are many members desiring the abolition of the tax referred to who voted the other way yesterday because they do not wish such a proposition as Mr. Daniel's incorporated in the oleomargarine bill.

It is now said that Mahone will run for Congress in the Petersburg district, with the view of ultimately getting into the seat of Riddleberger whose term will expire in 1889. It is a great pity the people of Virginia cannot get rid of the traitor once for all but he makes a great mistake, we take it, as it is, if he counts on any further advancement at the hands of the Old Dominion as a whole. Virginia generally puts her foot upon tyrants, real or would-be, and grinds them into the dust.

THE twenty-four o'clock system is still holding a certain degree of atten-

The hearts of the country will turn today to the residence of its chief magistrate and the best wishes will be expressed that the marriage to be solemnized there will be but the beginning of a long period of happiness for both parties to the contract. Our democratic President will receive the heartiest congratulations from all quarters of the land. Never before in the country's the White House. Extraordinary manifestations of interest and regard are therefore to be expected. Mr. Cleveland seems certainly to have been born under a lucky star. Not only has he gained the highest honor within the gift of the American people-the proudest place now in the eyes of the world-but he has won the heart of a young lady who, from all accounts, is well qualified to help him bear the cares of state and to lend such social attractions to the White House as have rarely if ever been surpassed. He will doubtless find the remainder of his term a prolonged honeymoon as compared to what his official life has so far been and he will be able to retire to private life when the time comes for him to do se in such a philosophic frame of mind as he could not hope to attain in crusty bachelorhood He will be thought of in every American household today and with his bonny bride will be blessed over and over again. For ourselves, we say with Rip Van Winkle, "May he live long and prosper, he and his family.

Ir cannot fail to have been observed that the avoidance of notoriety on the part of Mr. Cleveland and the family of the lady he is to marry in all the preparations for the wedding of today has been most careful The gossip which has filled the papers of the last few days has been absolutely impossible of prevention in view of the conspicuous position held by the prospective groom. It has been in nowise encouraged by either Mr. Cleveland or Miss Folsom. The wonder is that it has so long been kept from the public eye. There are not a few Americans of the highest so-

This famous North Carolina seaside hotel has been thoroughly renovated. The inside of the ball room dome has been painted white, which adds much to its brilliancy. The size of this room is one hundred feet by one hundred feet and many hundred tripping feet will shuffle across the measured space, to the 'sweet concord of sounds' during the coming season, for Mr. Cooke tells us that rooms have been engaged to parties from every Southern State, also from the District of Columbia, Maryland, Ohio and other Western States.

We noticed new and improved bath houses among the other improvements. The steam yacht "Emma," from New York, with head-lights, side-lights and light feet, with white winged, safe and commodious "sharpies" will be at the disposal of the guests for the consideration of a light consideration. The chief of the kitchen is a plain Frenchman, whose cooking is superb. No Foster-brother to a Frenchman of the queen's pantry could cook better sheephead, stone crabs, soft crabs, shrimps, clams, escalops, terrapina, macLerel and every sea-given delicacy than this native-born Frenchman.

perty. While in Medina Miss Folsom was a pupil at the High school. Returning to Buffalo in a few years, Mi

Frank entered the Central school, and she and her mother boarded with Mrs. Jonathan Mayhew. One of the Central school teachers has said of her that Frank learned very rapidly, and seen ed to remember equally well, and that she "always put a little of herself into her recitations." While enrolled as a pupil at the Central school hor name used often to get transferred to the boys' lists and so, in order to make it less masculine, she temporarily us creed the initial after Frank, calling herself Frank Clara. This explains why her name new often erroneously appears with the initial in. She was a regular altendant of the Central Presbyterian church, of which she is a member. Her mother occupied Mrs. R. D. Boyd's house, on Franklin street, and from there Miss Folsom went to Wells college, at Aurora. Her Central school certificate admitted her to the sophomore class at Wells college, which she entered without preliminary examinations in the middle of the school year. Miss Folsom was a great favorite at Wells college. Her tail, commanding figure, frankness and sincerity, made her the queen of the school. She was graduated from Wells in June, 1885, her graduating essay taking the form of a story. The hampers of flowers sent her nearly every week, beginning about the second year of her college life, from the executive mansion at Albany, and the particularly abundant supply that came from the White House conservatories when she was graduated, was only one of many little attentions paid her, the knowledge of which her college-mates spread abroad on scattering to their distant homes for the summer vacations. thus exciting public gossip concerning Miss Folsom's relations to the President

Miss Folsom has always been in the habit of spending her summers in Folsomdale, Wyoming county, two miles out of Cowlesville, at the residence of her late graudfather, Col. John B. Folsom. It is the typical homestead-a rambling farmhouse set down amid the lovely scenery of the valley. Sunday newspaper reports have made Mr. Cleveland the benefactor of Miss Folsom in a money sense. Such statements are absolutely untrue. Her mother's income has always been ample for their support, and any extra funds needed were always to be had from the grandfather, or "Papa John," as Miss Folsom called him, whose recent death will make her the heiress of a good property. Miss Folsom's character is that of an unspoiled, ingenuous girl, full of selfpossession, and with too much common sense to be overcome by her sudden elevation. Her chief characteristic is intense loyalty, to her mother, who is a charming women. Miss Folsom's life has had its deeper side. She is old for her years. One of her accomplishmen's is a rare gift for letter writting. In dress her taste is very simple. Miss Folsom, outside a very limited circle of intimate friends, is little acquainted in Buffalo, and has never mingled in society here, because since she was a school girl she has never spent more than a day or two at a time in Buffalo. It is an interesting coincidence that the Rev. Dr. Sunderland, who is to perform the marriage ceremony, frequently occupied while settled in Batavia thepulpit of the Central Presbyterian church, Buffalo, the church of which Miss Folsom is a member, Dr. Sunderland having been an attached friend of the late Dr. Lord, its pastor. The published prints and photographs of Miss Folsom do not resemble her. Her hair is soft and brown, of a shade between light and dark. She wears it combed back from her forehead, and loose, wavy tendrils escape here and there She has violet blue eyes and a rather large nose; her eyebrows are very heavy and nearly meet. The chief and striking beauty f her face is her mouth and chin. Mr. Ammi Farnham, the artist, once said that Miss Folsom had the most beautiful mouth he had ever seen.

tion, and railway men still say it will eventually come into practical and general use. At the recent time convention the subject was introduced, and was referred to a committee to report at a meeting to be held in October, and meanwhile the plan will be tested on the Canadian Pacific and other lines, so that its practical advantages, if any such there be, will appear.

THE statistician of the United States department of agriculture has in his report for the month of May a chapter on legislation with respect to oleomargarine which may tend to shorten the debate new proceeding in Congress ostensibly for the protection of the cow. He shows that the States can take pretty good care of the bogus butter business without the help of members of Congress; that laws designed to compel dealers in spurious or adulterated butter and cheese to sell the goods for what they are are now in force in fourteen States, and that laws forbidding the manufacture and sale of the spurious articles are on the statute books of six other States. Ohio also has a law of the same kind, though it does not apply to oleomargarine made from beef suct and milk. It appears, therefore, that the debate in Congress is rather a work of supererogation. Congressmen had better leave the matter of the people's digestion to the several States, where, under our system of government, it properly belongs.

THE May number of the North Carolina Medical Journal contains a timely article on the relations existing between the public and boards of health. As the Journal says : "No, one will gainsay the assertion that all the acts of the general and local boards of health in the State have been the outcome of honest conviction, and no miscarriage in events which has ensued after the adoption of the course set forth by them as wise will set aside the claim that they should receive that esteem and confidence whigh is the reward of honest and faithful service. When the thinking men in and out of official life carefully study the works of the health organizations now in force under the laws of the State, they will come to the conclusion that the statute providing for this establishment was a wise one, and will urge upon legislators to enlarge the powers of the same boards that they now condemn by faint praise or misapprehension or set aside with neglect. Until this harmony, to grow out of enlarged views of the situation, shall exist between the public and the sanitarians, who are a part of themselves, the usefulness of these much needed organizations will be curtailed, and we might say cease. for they soon will, under the present course of affairs, cease to exist.'

There can be no question that the maintainance of the boards of health in efficiency and authority is of the utm st importance to the people of the State.

and the people of this democratic land will not fail to appreciate the preference. That truest dignity which goes along with the least affectation will characterize the quiet wedding in the White House and thus even in the marriage of a democratic President the purity, simplicity and consequent strength of democratic principles will be illustrated.

THE Washington Capital has a good much valuable information. word for what many papers insist upon as a do-nothing Congress. It prints figures to show that during the six nonths of this session more bills have been passed than during the same length of time at any previous session and that reports from committees in both houses are very much in excess of those of any previous Congress-more than double indeed. It says for example that on May 29, 1882, the first session of the Forty-seventh Congress, the Senate committees had made 658 reports and the House committees 1,273. On May 12, 1884, the first session of the Fortyeight Congress, the Senate had made 594 reports and the House 1,723. On May 29, of the present year, the Senate had made 1,246 reports. This may be, as the Capital says it is, a record that no Congress has surpassed. The trouble is that by far the greater number of the bills passed have been pension bills, many of them transparently fraudulent and the people are rather getting tired of providing funds to meet a pension of fifty dollars each. They own six nice list that lengthens decidedly rather than shortens as the years pass and union veterans as well as other men drop into the grave,

In view of the possibility that Mr. Morrison will call up his tariff bill at an early day, the chances of that measure for consideration become interesting. The democratic majority in the House is 45. Mr. Randall's followers claim that 42 democrats will vote against the bill when the uestion of its passage comes up and his would give the protectionists a majority of 22 proyided all therepublicaus vote that way, as it is said they will The anti-reformers concede that four of their number on the republican side and three on the democratic side will vote for consideration. But it appears that here will still be a majority against consideration. The Morrison men obect to all this showing, however. They hold that the bill will be placed before the House by the 15th inst., that it will give way to all appropriation bills that may demand attention and that it will be pending when Congress adjourns. This is probably the view that will be justified by events.

The regular annual meeting the stockholders of the Neuse Trent river steamboat company was held the 25th of May, at the rooms of the New Berne board of trade, and the following named gentlemen were elected for the ensuing year, viz : Dr. James F. Long, president; Thos. A. Green, vice-president. The board of directors are : D. M. Roberts, W. F. Stanley, F. M. Simmons, Thomas Daniels, L. H. Cutler, C. E. Foy, B. M. Gates, D. N. Kilburn, and S. G. Roberts. The finance committee are: George Allen, B. M. Gates and Lewis Bynum. The reports of general manager J. M. White and secretary Roberts showed that the property of the company was in good condition and that its finances were, on a sound basis, and a dividend of six per cent was ordered to be paid to its stockholders. The Neuse & Trent river steamboat company is a home corporation entirely, having a capital stock of forty thousand dollars, all paid up, divided into eight hundred shares river steamers, which run upon the Neuse and Trent rivers and Contentnea creek. They also own several valuable landings and wareh • uses along its line and furnish convenient and cheap transportation to a large number of citizens iving in the counties of Jones, Onslow, Craven, Lenoir, Pitt and Greene, its natural territory covering some two hundred miles of inlaud water-ways, all of which have been opened up to navigation within the past seven years by the U.S. government, under the immediate superision of Gen. Robert Ransom, U. S. assistant engineer. We regard the Neuse & Trent river steamboat company as one of the most important and successful corporations that has been organized in this section for many years, and it is calculated to be of vast benefit to this entire country.
