THE HEAD CENTRE OF CHICAGO AN-ARCHIS'S ON THE STAND,

He Tells Lie upon Lie but Gives Himself Away at Last.

Circago, August 9 - August Spies and Michael Schwab were both on the witness stand today. Rumors had been cur rent that Spies would take the stand and that served to attract the largest crowd that has thus far visited judge Gray's court. Out of doors the crowd was as large as the one within the court room. Women in two or threes were there with their escorts, but there was no room for them, and they were turned away. All windows in the court-room were hermetically seated, the doors were tightly closed and the atmosphere was was ruled out. as horrid as the neighborhood of a blast furpace.

"Well, proceed, gentlemen," said the sourt to the counsel for the defense.

The anarchists' consel were holding a close consultation. Their heads rested tegether over the table and they whispered long and earnestly. Finally they retired to discuss an important matter A quarter of an hour clapsed and then the counsel for the defense entered and defendant Schawb was put on the stand.

"Where do you live?" asked Foster. "In cell 107 in the county jail." Laughter.)

"Now, if this is repeated," said the court, very angry at this exhibition of levity, "I'll clear the room."

Schwab went on with his story. Hi family lives in Florimond street. He left home the evening of May 4th, at 7:40. He looked at the clock before departing from the house, and is sure of the time. Then he went to the Arbeiter Zeitung office. Here a communication was received over the telephone, requesting that a speaker be sent to Deering's. Spies was the speaker wanted, but he was at the Haymarket and Schwab hastened there to find him, but failed, and saw his brother-in-law, Randolph Schnaubel. They took a car east to Clark's and there boarded another going up Clybourne avenue to Deering's.

Schwab does not know what time he reached the factory, but he spoke to the strikers for about twenty minutes, then stepped in a saloon and had a glass of beer and some lunch, and got back home about 11 o'clock.

"Were you ever in the alley at Cron Brothers that night with the spies?

"No. sir." "Did you walk west on Randolph street with Spies two blocks, then re-

"No, sir." "Did you see Spies that night?"

"No, sir." "Did you see Spies hand your brother-in-law a package that night in an alley at Crane Brothers, and did you say anything like this: 'If that won't be enough, shall we get another one ?' ''

"Did you see Spies at all that night ?"

"No, sir." "When did you see him at all for the last time that day ?" "In the afternoon. I did not see him again until the next morning." Before Schwab left the stand State's attorney Grinnell asked: "Do you know where Schnaubel is?" He replied that he had been in jail a long time and knew very little news of the outside world. "He is in Cincinnati, isn't he?"

The cross-examination of Schwab was onducted by State's attorney Grinnell.

"Yes."

Schwab said he had been a member of he international society since its organzation. "Are you an anarchist?" "It depends on what you mean

There are several definitions of that.'

"I can't answer that." May 4, which appeared in the Arbeiter-

The court ruled that the State is confined in its cross-examination to the specific questions brought out on the examination in chief. Immediately after Schwab had been excused, Spies took the stand. He appeared to be thoroughly self possessed. He spoke with a strong accent. He said his name was August Vincent Theodore Spies; that he was 31 years old, and come to th's country in 1872. He had been a member of the socialistic publishing society which controlled the Arbeiter Zeitung. He had been the editor of that paper for six years and received a salary of $18 per week. He was at the "Black road" meeting May 3, at the invitation on the commission from the lumber shovers union. There was a crowd of 3,000 present. Balthazar Rau was at the meeting and introduced Spies to the chairman of the meeting Spiessaid "My speech was commonplace. I told the men to stand by the union. While speaking some one cried out in an unknown language and three or four bun dred men detached themselve; from the meeting and made an attack on McCormick's." Spies said he kept on speaking for a short time, when he too went were firing at them. "The sight of District of Columbia.

He saw the police on Raudolph street and heard Capt. Ward give orders to disperse. He said that he was helped off the wagon by his brother Henry and another man. When he had reached the sidewalk he heard an explosion, "and I thought," said the witness, "that the police were firing cannon to frighten the people." He said he went to Zepf's hall when the firing

"Did you light the bomb?" the witness was asked.

Spies smiled, showed his teeth and replied: "I never did."

He said he did not see Schnaubel in an alley and denied Gilmer's story. He said that the interview which Wilkinson, a reporter, had with him last Jannary was substially true.

Spies said he had had two dynamite shells in his office for three years. They were given to him by a man who sailed for New Zealand. He had told a reporter in January, as printed, that there were 3,000 armed socialists in Chicago and described to him how the police and soldiers could be fought. He had told a reporter, as stated on the trial, that dynamite was the "child of the future," and would prove "a great leveler." Spies next made what the prosecution claims was a fatal admission fully corroborating their claim that the "armed section" had a secret caucus and had prepared for an attack on the police. Spies said he wrote the word "Ruhe," which had ap-"Answer my question. Are you an peared in the Arbeiter Zeitung May 4. He said the night before he received the following letter: "Please insert in "Do you remember that article of today's letter-box the word 'Rinhe.' in prominent letters." He said he did not know it had any import, but next day Ran said it was decided by the armed section to have that word as a sign of warning that they should keep their powder dry for use against the police. He told Rau that that was foolish and asked Fischer to inform the armed section that it was a mistake. Spies described his arrest by the police. He declared that the superintendent of police called him "a Dutch dog, 'hound' and "whelp" and made an attack on him. Spies said he kept dynamite in his office to experiment with and carried a revolver, thinking it was a good thing to be armed. He declared that on the night of the Haymarket riot, however, he had left his revolver with ex-alderman Stauffer.

He also spoke of depots, and said that there had been talk of the location of depots in rear of the department of agriculture and near the Centennial graded school. WAHHINGTON, D. C., August 9 .- The President is now engaged in the consideration of matters which he wishes to dispose of before he leaves the city on his summer vacation. The principal question occupying his attention at prerent is in regard to filling vacancies existing in the civil service, many of which are due to the failure of the Senate to act upon the nominations submitted to it. It is believed that in all such cases the persons nominated will be commissioned to serve during the recers of Congress.
