OUR Oxford correspondence of this morning has some striking hints for the business men of Raleigh. It need not be supposed anywhere, though, that this progressive city proposes to let Durham get shead of her.

Wn would direct attention to the address elsewhere printed of Chairman Battle of the democratic State executive committee in behalf of the democratic nominees for the judiciary. It is a timely decument, compact, forcible and in the best taste possible. Read it. fellow-citizens, whatever your political faith may be, and see that you should vote in accordance with its suggestions if you have the interests of the State really at heart.

REFEREING to Blaine's remark in his Philadelphia speech that the average farm hand's house in North Carolina (Mass.) Republican says: 'One would suppose that prior to March 4, 1886. these farm hands lived in palaces. Nobody but Blaine has discovered that the condition of the Southern negro is any less prosperous than formerly; in fact there is abundant testimony that they are accumulating property, buying little farms and paying for them. But this would not suit Mr. Blaine."

"My son Oliver" Dockery writes a letter for his brother Charles R. to pub- in the Alabama iron. We might dislish in which he says he is not a candidate and that "no such course" as issuing tickets for him fer Congress on the eve of the election will be adopted. He says the race is square between Charles R. and Col. Rowland, and that he (Dockery) will certainly vote for the former. So the people of the sixth district can see even more clearly than ever that if they vote for Charles R they will vote for nothing more nor less than a republican. Let all democrate who wish to avoid a return to the horrors and humiliations of radicalism vote solidly against this tool of the republican party who masks as an independent in the hope of gaining whatever stray votes may be unattached by reason of lukewarmness. Having been nominated by himself only, he is patted on the back by republicans, in the hope that in his independent guise he will be able to make inroads upon the democratic organization-a thing that the republican party cannot do. Let very humble homes. Their cabins are him be condemned as the masker among often rudely shapen from unhewn logs, men should always be condemned. He but they are clean and decent. We are ciples of the party he represents will able, however, to compare the way triumph and no single man To this end Southern labor lives with the way some let every democrat in the sixth district men employed by Mr. Blaine's friends see now that his own name and the names and associates in Pennsylvania live. MR. BLAINES PERFORMANCE. Mr. Blaine has been to Philadelphia to whoop up the boys and he was given great demonstration by his republican friends. Certainly he sired his eloquence and he had to tell Pennsylvania how the democrats were bent on the destruction of the industries of that State. The rebel brigadiers were going to grind her to powder between the upper and nether millstones of cheap labor. We quote :

"I repeat here that while you pay $1.75 to men who are making pig iron making pig iron in Alabama and paying seventy-five cents a day, and those two products must meet in the same market. The democratic party is answerable for

it. They wish on the one side to break down the tariff and throw the Northern laboring man into competition with foreign, ill-paid labor, and at the same time, by maintaining the dominance of the Southern democracy, to bring up the 1,500,000 and soon to be 2,000,-000 workers upon not more than half the wages that northern men get-in many cases not one-third of it.'

In truth the irrepressible conflict between Southern industry and Northern industry is beginning, and the South will not be harmed by the survival of the fittest. There is nothing new in all OBSERVER have long since had it laid cated in Blaine's late speech. pefore them. But new statistics only make the point clearer. Mr. Blaine says that the South is about to ruin Pennsylvania because of Southern cheap labor; we say that our advantage in labor is inconsiderable compared with our advantage in locality. Were Mr. Blaine a statesman he would not shut his eyes to the fact that it is Southern cheap material not Southern labor that threatens the destruction of the mislaced furnaces of Pennsylvania and Ohio, but he is not a statesman-only a time-serving politician. Material has no votes, labor has. Therefore he sees only the Pennsylvania laborand overlooks entirely the cost of the material. He is after making votes, and the truth about the iron business is a secondary consideration. Let us understand the facts. On page 117 of the Report of the U 8. Commissioner of Labor, we find that it costs in Alabama to make one ton of furnace foundry pig iron $11.49, of which $1.87 is the cost of the labor, and $6.92 is the cost of the material While to make in Ohio one ton of similar pig-iron costs $14.62, of which $1.25 is the cost of labor and $12.62 is the cost of material; and to make a ton $13,75. Here then are the figures, let us examine them. Labor at the furnace is cheaper in Ohio than in Alabama, where it falls but little short of the cost THEY say Miss Cleveland has struck of labor in Pennsylvania. The labor to make a ton of pig-iron is in Pennsylvania $2.00; in Alabama 13 cents less, and in Ohio it is 75 cents less. The difference in labor is so inconsiderable that Mr. Blaine's frantic shricks remind us of a frenzied mountebank. The real difference is in the material; the material in Pennsylvania costs $6.83 more than in Alabama. In Oaio it costs $5 72 more than in Alabama. The trifle in the difference of labor may disappear the tremendous difference in the cost of material will last forever.

Turning to page 128, we see that the materials to make a ton of pig fron for the Alabama furnace cost as follows: Coke $4 03, limestone 32 cents; native ore $2 57; total $6.92.

In Ohio the materials cost, coke, $4 32; limestone, 80; native ore $3 90 and Lake Superior ore $2.77; total 211 79. In Pennsylvania, the cost is, coke $3.50; limestone 50 cents; Lake Superior ore $9.75; total $13.75. The Pennsylvania people have to transport their ore from Lake Superior at the cost of $7.18 more than Alabama has to pay costs about $9 only, the Springfield for her ore. That tells the tale, The difference in labor is 13 cents; the difference in the cost of ore is $7.18. Time can do wonders, but it cannot wipe out that difference. At the Alabama furnace 80 men receive from $1.40 to $1.10, the lowest wages paid. At the Ohio furnace 62 men receive from $1.40 to 90 cents. These are the laborers who Mr. Blaine declares receive but onehalf or one-third as much at the South as at the North. The pay is about the same. In fact the cost of labor in a ton of Ohio iron is one-third less than miss this radical statement here, but there is another extract that claims attention. We quote: "I was talking with a distinguished southerner from North Carolina not long ago, and speaking of the condition of the southern laborer, he asked me what I thought was the average cost of the house, if you can dignify it with that name, in which the great majority of the field laborers of the South were sheltered, and he gave me the assurance that it was not more than $9-(laughter) -that the house that covers these la borers who, by this nefarious political proceeding, are thrown into direct confliet and direct competition with northern laborers, are sheltered in houses that do not cost for their construction more than $10-not more than the average price of a decent pig pen of a Pennsyl vapis farmer." (Great merriment) *

It is quite true that some of our country people, both white and black, have ought to read his articles in the last three numbers of the North American Review. We make a quotation from page 391 of the October number. They crowd together in the same way (as the Chinese) from eighteen to twenty-four of them, of whom two or three may be women, frequently being found in a single small house, which has been fitted up with rude bunks, one above the other, after the style of an emigrant ship, but with even more economy of space." That is what Henry George says about the way labor lives in Pennsylvania. Nothing like this ever occurs among laborers at the South. in Pennsylvania and Ohio, they are The people of the South ought to resent Mr. Blaine's uncharitable insolence. He had no occasion to tell our Southern people, amid the cheers and jeers of his Yankee friends, that their homes do not cost as much as "pig pens."

THE NORTHERN KNIGHTS' PRO-

It is an extract from the Richmond correspondence of the New York Tribune and bears upon its face evidence of a purthis-the readers of the Naws AND pose to carry out the principles advo-

Let Southern people read it, and being forewarned, let them be forearmed. The North meddled with the negro as a slave, and now proposes to demoralize him as a freedman. Let us prepare to meet the new warfare. The first step thereto will be for the laboring men of the South, white and colored as well, to see that they are not made dupes and tools by Messrs. Powderly and Blaine. Here is the extract:

"The Knights from the Northern and Western parts of the country are studying the negro question in the South and have learned more in the last week of the condition of the colored laborer than they ever knew. One fact, and a serious one it is, has for the first time impressed itself upon them forcibly and that is that the white laborer of the North and West is to come into competition with the colored laborer of the South, and if the latter can live on half the pay that is earned by the former, the tendency will be to decrease the pay of the white man. It has all along been the boast of the Southern press that there were fewer strikes and less trouble with the manufacturers and railway corporations in the South than in other sections, and the Knights of Labor now see that it is because the bulk of the southern laborers are negroes, and having been accustominding process of companies and corporations. This assembly will probably deal with this question for the first time with a view to protect the white laborers everywhere from a ruinous competipaid for their work as they should be, simply because they can live on less in their present condition than the white laborer has been accustomed to, and at the same time are apparently as well contented, if not better, than the white. A colored corpenter of this city, a

It shows that ample and commodious houses can be built not only for few thousand, but for a few hundred dollars, and it gives practical plans for building the house beautifully, which very man desires. Our people in the South should now give more attention to the important matter of making their homes attractive in point of architecture well as otherwise, and Shoppell's "Modern Houses," will be found valuable to all who propose to do so. Immediately the man became a petrified corpse, and so hot and offensive that people couldn't go near him." Talmage's Sermon at the Tabernacle in Brooklyn, October 3, referring to the same circumstance, in connection with the sin of blasphemy, says: But I come later down and give you a fact that is proved by scores of witnesses. This last August of 1886 a man got provoked at the continued drought and the ruin of his crops, and in the presence of his neighbors he cursed God, saying that he would cut His heart out if He would come down, calling Him a liar and a coward, and flashing a knife. And while he was speaking his lower jaw dropped, smoke issued from his meuth and nostrils, and the heat of his body was so intense it drove back those who would come near. Scores of people have visited the scene and saw the blasphemer in the awful process of expiring."
