CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 22.—The earthquake shocks today appear to have been as severe in Charleston as in the adjoining States of Georgia and North Carolina. Special dispatches have been received from all parts of this and neighboring States, indicating that the seismic disturbances covered a larger area of country than any previous shocks.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 22.—A slight shock of earthquake was felt here at 2:10 o'clock this afternoon. It lasted five seconds, and the vibrations were nearly north and south.

The President at Richmond.

HIS VISIT TO THE HOME OF THE CONFEDERATE VETERANS.

After the address the presidential party repaired to the "Presidents' house," and there had an informal reception, at which it was understood that he desired to meet and shake hands with the people.

The President remarked at one time during the day that he could shake hands with 8,000 persons per hour. If he did his work at that rate yesterday, counting the time that he was at the Booth house, and his like performances elsewhere in the city, he probably grasped the hands of from 8,000 to 10,000 people.

The party then proceeded to the grand stand, where they had an elegant luncheon and witnessed several races, while the people were as eager as ever to see our chief magistrate.

There seemed to be some doubt, after the change of programme, as to whether the President would honor himself by visiting the home of the veterans of the Confederacy, but soon a message came that he would certainly be there at 4 o'clock, and the "Old Vets" were in a state of anxious expectancy for some time before the arrival of the party.

The home and the grounds were in "apple-pie" order, the officers and men were in their best trim, and it was pleasant to spend some time walking through the grounds and buildings and admiring the many improvements which are being constantly made.

At last, at ten minutes to 5, the first gun was heard, and all was at once excited at the home. The veterans bubbled into line, their crutches and empty sleeves and halting gait being more eloquent than any words that could be uttered.

The President also uncovered and bowed to the veterans as he passed. Arriving in front of the main building the carriage containing the President, Gov. Lee, Col. Beverley and Col. Buford paused, and the Governor arose and said: "We can carry here only a very short time, but I have the honor and pleasure of introducing to you, officers and veterans of the Confederate Home, the President of the United States."

This was received with wild cheers, or rather with a regular old Confederate yell, and the veterans crowded around the carriage and Mr. Cleveland took each one by the hand and had a hearty shake and a kind word for each one. As the carriage was about to drive off an "old vet" proposed "three cheers for the President," and "the boys" did their best on them, and made them note the less hearty because they were nearer the "rebel yell" than the "Hip! hip! hurrah!" to which he has been accustomed.

The President expressed himself as highly gratified that these old Confederates have so pleasant a home. As the carriages, headed by a detachment of the Stuart Horse Guards, went out of the grounds the thunder of Major Brander's guns was heard, "speeing the departing guest."

A Treasury Appointment.—WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—The President has selected L. M. Buford, of Mississippi, for appointment as deputy fourth auditor of the treasury, vice Davis, resigned.
