In a little pamphlet which we circulate freely in this section, called Isome Help, we give a few of the local certificates of cares received from persons well known to you in business and social cir-cles. If all were published they would cover such a range of disorders cured that you would exclaim, in surprise, "Truly, Brown's Iron Bitters must be the very elixir of life."

TERFIBLE CRIME

A WONDERFUL ESCAPE FROM JUDGE LYNCH.

MISSED AND THE MURDERER IN JAIL.

HARRISON, Ark., Oct. 30 -Details have just reached this place of the coldblooded murder, at his home in Marion county, the 22d inst, of Jas. Hamilton, late deputy collector of internal revenue in the office of Henry M. Cooper, at L ttle Rock.

About two years ago Hamilton, while acting as deputy collector of internal revenue, made a raid in Johnson county on a number of illieit distillers. among whem was a man named Mulligan, capturing one of the distillers and managing to get here with their "crooked" property. Mulligan was one of those who escaped, and nothing more was heard of him until a short time ago, when he came to the home of Hamilton, who was residing on a farm in Marion county, and applied for work on the farm, giving his name as Page. Hamilton employed him and he worked until last Friday night without attracting any particular attention. That night he left Hamilton's and went to the house of a neighbor, about half a the latter's bed-room and as he lay asleep, placed a pistol to his head, blew out his brains and fled. Mrs. Hamilton gave the alarm, and there being some men about the place, the neighbors were soon aroused and in pursuit of the murderer. A party of citizens caught him placing a rope around his neck, made were in the act of lynching him another | nothing could be learned. party of cit zens came up and the lynchers, supposing them to be officers, left their man and scattered. Mulligan, taking advantage of the excitement escaped, but was recaptured next day and taken to Yellville, where he is now in jail. ST Louis, Oct 30 .- As the days pass the amount stolen from Adams' express company car on the St. Louis and San Francisco road last Monday night grows with alarming rapidity. At first it was said to be $50 000, then $70,000, then $80,000, and today, from facts gleaned from different shippers of money by the Adams company Monday, the amount is estimated to be at least $100,000 and may aggregate $120,000. Manager Weir was seen early vesterday evening and he said to a reporter that the best detectives that could be found were working up the cise, but that there were so many clues as to who perpetrated the robbery that it difficult to select one from among them. mile distant, to spend the night. He supposed that everything was clear below and started his engine just as John Brodda, a floatman, was running a car upon the cage. The sudden hoisting threw Brodda off, and in falling he was caught between the cage and the framework on the side of the shaft and was instantly killed. As soon as engineer Moses was informed of what had happened, he walked to his room, nearby, took a revolver from his coat-pocket and placing it to his forehead, fired, killing himself.

Hygiene of Old Age. Dr. H. C. Wood, in Annals of Hygiene. The teeth in old age are, of course, lost, and they should unless under exceptional circumstances, be replaced by artificial teeth, for the thorough chew ing of food is even more necessary in the old than in the young, because in the old the digestive powers are apt to fail. With the best artificial teeth mastication is apt to be imperfectly performed; hence the food of the aged should be soft and readily comminuted, and especially should it be of easy digestion. Very few old people need stimulating diet; very many are injured by an excess of nitrogenous food. The kidneys, like all other organs, are fecble, and if mests and other rich foods are used in excess, they greatly increase the strain upon these organs. Milk and milk products or preparations of breadstuffs cooked with milk should form a very large proportion of the food of the ordinary aged individual, but individual peculiarities differ so much that porsonal medical counsel should in all cases be taken, so that the diet may be regulated to the needs of the individual case. Very many old people are hurt by the use of food in excessive quantity; but little exercise at Rainsford island, where she was towed can be taken, all growth has ceased, last night from off Boston light, where and the bodily furnaces which heat destroy but very little of food fuel. Some little time since I had occassion to lecture on this subject at the of silver.

Philadelphia hospital, and an assertion that I then made that most old people From the New York Sun. are more comfortable, enjoy better bonish, and probably live languer for the use of wine, has met with every severe disapprobation at the hands of some of the profession, whose strong sympathy nates their judgment. No valid reasons have, however, so far as my judgment goes, been brought forward to lead me to char ge any opinion. In the overfed American people the habitual use of wine during youthful or middle age and vigorous health is, we think, an injury rather than a good; but when the powers of life are failing, when digestion is weak and the multitudinous small ills of feebleness perplex and annoy, one or two glasses of generons wine at dinner aid digestion, quiet for the time being much nervous irritation, and in no way do harm. The sum total of ruin wrought by alcohol in the world is appalling, but it is not lessened by shutting our eyes to the good that wine properly used may achieve. When in the aged there is a distinct failure of vital power, and especially of digestive power, the call for the habitual use of alcoholic liquors is, in my opinion, imperative. The danger of the formation of any evil habits when a man has crossed the line of seventy is so slight that the most conscientious physician steam cars or circuses; where they can need not hesitate in recommending the decorate the walls with pictures and

The Coinage of the World. The whole amount of gold coins issued from the mints af the world in the year 1885 is stated to be, in round numbers, $72,500,000, and of silver coins $77,800,000. Of the gold $37,-500,000 was coined by Great Britain and her colonies and $25,000,000 by the United States, leaving $10,000,000 se the product of all other countries. Of the silver Great Britain. Austria and India coined $33 000,000, the United States $29 000 000 and all other countries $15 800,000. In addition to these amounts stamped ingots of both metals were issued from various mints. This makes the increase of the gold coinage of the world for 1835 about 2 per cent. and of the silver between 2 and 3 per cent. The gold coinage of the world is now estimated at $3,250,000,000, and the silver, including total circulation, $2,-755,000,000. The total value of gold and silver produced throughout the world from the discovery of America to the year 1875 is estimated at $4,600, 000,000 gold and $6,200,000,000 silver, an aggregate of $10,800,000,000. Since 1875 the average annual product of the two metals together has been a little more than $200,000,000 so that the present total for the world would be nearly $13,000,000,-000. The United States have produced in the last forty years $1,675,000,000 worth of gold and $675,000,000 of silver - a total of $2,350,000,000. Up to the year 1879 the annual product of gold exceeded that of silver, but reverse is now true, the figures for 1884 being $30,800,000 of gold $48,800,000

If people knew how much credit cost then they we ald not be seeking it, for it is commonsense that the merchant who buys goods on eredit and sell them on eredit must sell his goods higher to cover his losses. In regular lines of merchandise there are three distinct profits harge | up and on each one there is an aredit. You count ten per cent on each of hem and you have at the 'east estimate 30 per sent which you must pay to cover the lesses by men who never pay. This the consumer has to pay. It all comes out of the hardearned dollars of the laboring people. If you borrow money from the bank at 8 per cent you think it very high, yet you will buy your goods on credit and pay 50 per cent more for from the producers of this goounty one-half they make. Now how dolyou like the system? Come to the Racket Store and buy your goods. The Racket Store has all the advantages, from having buyers always in the New York mar-

these goods. It is the power of the a mighty dollar cutting its way through the centre of time which enables us to offer goods at less than they can be made for in hundreds of cases. The Hack't Store is a tisted with small
