Washington, Jan. 17 .- Speaker Carlisle had another chill at 4 o'clock this morning and Dr. Sowers, his physician, was hastily summoned and remained at his bed side some time. At eight the Speaker was sleeping quietly. His symptoms at that hour were rather more favorable. At 11 Dr. Sowers reported the Speaker's condition as much improved. Since 4 o'clock he has had four hours of restful sleep and is now reposing quietly with no signs of a recurrence of chills. Dr. Sower speaks very encouragingly and predicts no alarming consequences of the attack.

Speaker Carlisle was taken suddenly ill with a congestive chill, Monday evening, while at the dinner table in the Riggs House, and had to be asgisted to his room by Mrs. Carlisle. The chill was followed by high fever, and for an hour or more the Speaker was slightly delirious.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 .- At 9 o'clock tonight Dr. Sowers said that Mr. Carlisle was restirg quietly, and on the whole was considerably better than he was this morning. He had, how-ever, another chill during the afternoon, to which the doctor seemed to attach but little importance. The chills, he said, were caused by intestinal disturbances which were primarily the result of overwork and disordered digestion. The question was asked, "Is he dangerously or even seriously ill ?" "I do not so regard him," was the reply. "He is quite weak, as I said, overwork and anxiety, and it may be some time before he is able to be about, but he sits up in his bed, has never for a moment lost consciousness and has had several hours of refreshing sleep, and I think without repeated and violent recurrence of the chills he will get along without any serious trouble. On the whole, he is certainly improving."

Refused to Wed Her once Intended. Winston Sentinel.

During the holidays a number of matrimonial events took place in Forsyth and adjoining counties, several of which might be termed somewhat romantic. In a neighboring town, a few days since, an event of this kind was about to take place. The legal document had been purchased and the prospective bride stood in readiness to be led to Hymen's altar. The intended groom arrived, but to his surprise he was met at the door by indignant relatives of his intended, who informed him that he could not marry any one at his house. Uncomplimentary remarks passed and the opposer of the marriage emphasized his remarks by knocking the wouldbe groom down. The confusion was quieted by the young lady appearing and declaring that she would not marry the fellow. The disappointed man could do nothing but take his departure, which he did in a staggering manner. The affair is said to have caused a considerable sensation as some of the parties are highly con-
