

DEMOCRATIC DISTRICT CONVENTION

A convention of the Democratic party of the fourth Congressional district will be held at Raleigh on May 20th, next, to nominate a candidate for Congress, a candidate for district clerk, to elect two delegates to the National Democratic Convention and for other purposes.

E. J. FARRER, Chairman executive committee. (District papers will please copy.)

We have the N. C. Medical Journal in interest and value. It is issued from Wilmington and its editors are Doctors Thos. F. Wood and Geo. G. Thomas.

This racehorse Grover Cleveland is naturally expected to beat anything on the turf this season. There is not a little prestige in the name it bears, even under the circumstances indicated.

Mr. Stephens, London's famous preacher, says he is worn out, that he is hardly able to keep on at all. He is taking a holiday at an English health resort. He has certainly done his best work.

We have an accumulation of communications which we have been unable to print. Our friends, their authors will understand, we are sure, that news better has always to take precedence.

The lynching in Georgia of a negro, under sentence of death for an outrageous assault, because of his having been several times respited by the Governor, is an indication of public feeling in the South with respect to such matters.

It was Mr. Fuller, the new Chief Justice, who spoke for Chicago as the place for the meeting of the national convention at the meeting of the general executive committee in February.

Congressman RAYNER was moved to explain in the course of a discussion Monday that he had never even seen the President; that he was the only man on the Democratic side who had not seen him.

The causes of our quarrel with the Sultan of Morocco, which, it seems from today's dispatches, has broken out afresh, were as follows, to adopt the statement of the New York Times Washington correspondent:

A United States citizen engaged in export trade from Morocco had in his employ a Moor, who, under the Madrid treaty of 1880, was entitled to American protection. There was an insignificant civil suit against this man that had been brought to trial in four years, and was almost forgotten.

Another American protégé had his home ransacked and burned by the Sultan's soldiers, his cattle dogged in the open streets, his cattle confiscated, and his crops destroyed.

In consequence of these outrages Consul Lewis made demands upon the Sultan which in detail would fill one of our columns and while the reply of his Majesty was at first doggingly diplomatic it was understood that he had finally agreed to an arbitration of differences and had asked the German consul at Tangier to act as his representative on the tribunal.

The last number of the Baltimore Manufacturers' Record gives a most flattering picture of the prosperity of the South. It is made up chiefly of letters from a number of the government and agricultural commissioners of this section, all of whom agree that the farmers are steadily improving their finances, that debts are being rapidly decreased, that labor-saving implements are annually becoming more generally used and that the condition of the farmer is better now than it has been for many years, with a prospect for the future exceedingly bright.

It is the agricultural interests of North Carolina are most decidedly improving. Our farmers are gradually getting out of debt, improving their farms, and are fast increasing the number of labor-saving implements and machinery in use.

The agricultural interests of North Carolina are improving. The latest statistical advice reaching the Department of Agriculture is matter for congratulation.

These are cheering statements indeed, made as they are after careful study, and they are duplicated more or less in the case of each of the other Southern States.

Ingalls' attack in the Senate on Voorhees was but an altogether vile charge the Republican party was in the habit of making against its political opponents during the period of the war.

It is clear that he is equal to the ablest of those who have gone before him in abuse of gentlemen, the reviling of this section and the utter lack of the finer feelings which characterizes his kind of human cattle.

He became generally known before the war as one of the most eloquent of the younger men of the great northwest.

It is to be regretted that such a some as that which has been reported should have been witnessed in the Senate chamber, the place of the meeting of our highest legislative body.
