Speaking at Leesville. Hon. B. H. Bunn, Democratic candidate for Congress, Fourth district, will speak at Leesville, Wake county, on Saturday, August 11th, 1888. A grand barbecue will be served and a general good time is expected. Everybody invited.

The Asheville Sun has passed into the hands of Messrs. W. F. Randolph and J. P. Kerr, sole owners and editors, who say: "In politics we shall always advocate unmitigated Democracy." We wish the new proprietors every success.

Gen. Rufus Barringer says he is going to vote for Cleveland and Judge Russell says he won't run for the Supreme Court because his party is doomed to disastrous defeat. Is the Democratic victory going to be a tidal wave? Let Democrats stand to their guns. Let them never relax their efforts by reason of any prospect of victory. Let us not feel sure of success until success has been won by hard work. Then the greater that succeeds the more glorious the victory will be. But let no soldier rest on his arms until the battle is over.

From all parts of the State come tidings of more thorough organization than ever before in the Democratic ranks, of greater enthusiasm and of more earnest entrance upon the work of the campaign to the end that Democratic principles may continue to prevail. So may it be until election day; so may we roll up a majority of 30,000, but so only may we hope to win. Lukewarmness, too great confidence in our strength, may cause us to fall in our endeavor, and there is altogether too much at stake, so far as the real interests of the State are concerned, for us to allow our calculations at all. We all know what Radicalism means. We all know what the result of a return to Radicalism would be. We must place the success of the Democracy beyond peradventure, and every where we must undertake the serious and sustained work necessary to this end.

FINANCIALS.

The U. S. Treasury statement made at the close of the fiscal year, June 30th, showed a greater surplus than ever and a still increasing excess of receipts over expenditures. The net cash balance in the hands of the Treasury, July 1st, was $109,230,464.71, as against $40,853,369.28 on July 1, 1887, or an increase in twelve months of $68,377,095.43. The receipts from customs for the year just closed were $219,397,070.84, while in 1886-7 they were $217,286,893.13, an increase of $2,110,183.71. The difference between the receipts and the expenditures in 1886-7 was $103,471,097.69, while the receipts for the fiscal year 1887-8 were $110,239,846.81. The internal revenue receipts were $6,000,581.84 greater than in 1886-7, and the miscellaneous receipts were $184,317.36 less than in 1886-7. For ordinary expenditures there was expended in 1886-7 $10,707,913.70 more than during the fiscal year just closed, but the expenditures on account of pensions, which were $75,029,101.79 on July 1, 1887, were $81,575,937.92 from that time until July 1, 1888, or an increase of $6,546,836.43. The interest expenditures in 1886-7 were $2,952,005.12 more than they were during the last year, but there were during the year just closed expenditures of $8,270,642.46 in premiums on bonds - more even than we have heretofore placed this sum at - whereas there were no such expenditures during the previous year.

It is clear that the Treasury will be pointed out, unless the Democrats shall soon succeed in their earnest effort to reduce the revenue, the surplus in the Treasury will amount by the end of the present fiscal year to $170,000,000 at least. The increase now shown, notwithstanding the purchases of bonds, is $21,513,726.15 more than the whole surplus was at the close of the fiscal year 1886-7.

The question before the people is as to whether this enormous increase of surplus money, this collection of excessive revenues from the pockets of the people shall be stopped or not. The Democracy say it must be stopped; that it is robbery under the forms of law to take from the people more than is necessary for the maintenance of the government economically administered and that above all it is little if at all less than criminal to pay out the hard earnings of the people in bonuses to bondholders and to the monopolistic manufacturers of the country. The Republicans on the contrary propose to continue the existing system of taxation, of "protection" in enormous profits of special pet enterprises at the expense of the whole people, and to spend the excess of revenue thus taken from the channels of legitimate trade and industry, from the pockets of the people where alone it belongs, in the advancement of all sorts of extravagant schemes and of jingo enterprises unopposed either by good policy or good sense.

The main question is as to the stoppage of this surplus and of the misapplication and waste of the people's means necessary by the Republican system we have not yet been able to get rid of, and the reduction of the tariff to a revenue basis. The people will have to make up their minds with respect to it now, and speedily. It is inconceivable how any thinking man, without one of the few special interests "protected" by the Republicans in the enjoyment of enormous profits though not in the ability to pay particularly good wages; can hesitate to take his place under the Democratic banner in the fight. It is difficult to see how any unselfish, really patriotic citizen can stand upon the platform of the Republican party.

Judge Russell gives it up. He proposes to decline the empty honor of the Republican nomination for Supreme Court judge. The Wilmington Star of yesterday says:

"Hon. D. L. Russell, in conversation yesterday with a representative of the Star, said that he had no hesitation in saying that he would decline to accept the nomination for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court on the Republican State ticket, and furthermore, that in his letter of declination he will advise the withdrawal of the entire State ticket, and that a coalition will be formed with the prohibitionists."

"He gave it as his opinion that it would be futile for the Republican party to make a campaign in this State, and that the approaching election will be a walk over for the Democrats. 'In the first place,' he said, 'the (Republicans) cannot win; and in the second, if they could they would be counted out.'"

What Judge Russell says about counting out is all both, and he knows it. He knows that elections are no longer fair in any respect than in North Carolina. Hence he is ridiculous to talk about counting out in North Carolina. His expression to this effect is simply to make excuse for him in the eyes of his party followers. He evidently has a stomach for the fight before his party and that is the whole story of his position.

"He thinks," continues the Star, "that if a coalition is formed with the prohibitionists it will break the color line, and in this way, perhaps, lead to Republican success hereafter. 'But,' he added, 'if a Chinese good campaign is inaugurated, with joint discussions between Fowle and Dockery, it will result, probably, in a majority of 40,000 for the Democratic ticket.'"

As the Star concludes, "Judge Russell is an astute and sagacious politician and one of the most influential members of the Republican party in this State, and there can be no question that the stand he has taken in this matter will have a great weight with his party."

In connection with what he says of the determination of Gen. Rufus Barringer, of Charlotte, a Republican leader of twenty years standing to vote for Cleveland as reported by the Charlotte Chronicle and reproduced elsewhere in this issue. Is the Democracy to have nobody to beat in November?

So candidate Dockery is expected to speak in Raleigh tonight. Will he tell his hearers why Judge Russell declines to run on the Republican ticket and why Gen. Rufus Barringer, for twenty years or more a leader of the Republican party in the State, is going to vote for Cleveland?

YESTERDAY WAS A "GLORIOUS FOURTH"

indeed at Apex and Holly Springs. The Democracy at those pleasant places was mightily refreshed and encouraged by the patriotic speeches of Capt. Bunn, Mr. Battle and other eloquent and distinguished gentlemen, and gave evidence, moreover, of a determination to do work that will tell in securing the election of Cleveland, Thurman, Fowle and Holt.

It is said that Senator Sherman has an interesting little list of some fifty original Southern Sherman delegates who were bought up in the interest of Alger, though they came high, the spot-cash price in each instance having been from $300 to $500. It is said further that the Malignant is disposed to publish his interesting little list to the world. Possibly his opinion of the colored man and brother has undergone a change.

WINSTON seems to have celebrated pretty much for the whole State yesterday and she did it in style. She never does anything otherwise. She is as progressive, live and patriotic a town as the State has within its borders. The warm welcome she gave to the gallant Wade Hampton is appreciated by every citizen of the State from the western most mountains to the sea shore.

CINCINNATI'S Centennial opened yesterday and is to continue 100 days.

The colored man seems to be doing some thinking for himself, after all. We have the New York Age before us - T. Thomas Fortune's paper, probably the leading negro organ of the country and heretofore supposed to be straight Republican. Of the Republican platform it makes bold to say "it is one of the most iron-clad affairs of the kind ever adopted by any party in this country."

"By reference to the tariff plank it will be seen that the party is committed to the theory of protection for the sake of protection, and that in such reduction as must be made the duties on imports must not be touched, but the taxes on tobacco and whiskey must be abolished. Then, if there still remain a troublesome surplus in the public treasury, it must be disposed of by liberal appropriations for pensions, river and harbor improvements, for coastwise defenses, for public education, and the like. This we call liberality upon a broad and comprehensive scale."

"In the very next breath after committing the party to the foregoing policy, trusts and monopolies of all kinds are roughly denounced by the platform. 'We have all along labored under the impression that the existing tariff system was directly and indirectly responsible for the development and expansion of all forms of trusts and monopolies, and the surest way to enlarge and perpetuate them was to enlarge the existing impost rates, or to enlarge the beyond the unprecedented standard to which they are attained.'"

"Then the Age proceeds to say: 'We give the Republican managers credit for remarkable courage in making their tariff plank. It requires remarkable courage to commit a party to free rum and free tobacco instead of free wool and free sugar, to a tariff system of protection for the sake of protection, to declare that the present oppressive, and in some instances unnecessary, impost duties shall stand as they are, that the admitted irregularities in the tariff laws shall not be remedied for fear of doing some damage to the interests affected - we say it requires great courage to go to the country upon a tariff declaration such as we have indicated. How the voters of the country will regard it remains to be seen.'"

This sounds like very treason to the G(ood) O(ut) P(arty) coming from a colored organ hitherto within the bosom of the party, or supposed to be. And the Age is not less startling when it speaks of the Republican candidates, for it says on this point:

"Whether Mr. Harrison can carry Indiana and whether Mr. Morton can carry New York are questions which few well informed Republicans will venture to affirm. Certain it is that they will not have a walk over. Neither of them possesses those brilliant qualities which fire the enthusiasm of the masses of the men who do the voting, and it is painfully significant that the nominations have not been received with that degree of approval and approval which presage an aggressive campaign and an overwhelming victory."

Having thus delivered itself, the colored organ proceeds to read Fred Douglass, the professional color man, out of the Republican party as a "mugwump." This is treason beyond question. It is clear that the "brother in black" is beginning to do some thinking on his own account.

Another Conversation. Charlotte Chronicle. Gen. Rufus Barringer, the old Republican war horse, is for Cleveland and Thurman, and we intend to put him on his old white charger and make him lead the procession. There's no joke about it. General Barringer is a Cleveland man. Rumors to this effect were heard on the streets yesterday and a Chronicle reporter kept a sharp lookout for the General, in the hope of interviewing him. The reporter finally got an opportunity to have a word with the old veteran, and drawing him into a shady spot, opened the ball without any beating around the bush. "Well, General," the reporter said, "I hear that you have become a Democrat in good standing."

"Not quite that," was the reply. General Barringer then faintly stated that he expected to vote for the Democratic candidates for President and Vice-President. He admired Cleveland's course and said that he was on the right track. If this course was pursued, Cleveland would get his vote. "The General promised us his views more at length at some other time and rather expressed the desire that we would say nothing about it just now, but we do not believe that our readers, or the General himself, will blame us for giving the substance of our talk with him. It is mighty good news to hear that General Barringer is for Cleveland, and it speaks volumes for the power of the Democratic platform. It isn't every day that we reach down and help such a party man as Gen. Barringer on board." - Charlotte Chronicle.

THE ORIGIN OF BEER. In a jolly field of barley good King Gambrinus slept, and drowsy and his thirsty realm the merry monarch wept.

"In all my land of Netherland there grows no madder wine, And water I could never coax down this throat of mine."

"Now list to me, ye heathen gods, and eke ye Christian, too, Both Zernobok and Jupiter, and Mary, ead blue; And mist Thor, the Thunderer, and any else that be; The one who aids me in my need his servant I will be."

And as the stufal' heathen all in the barley lay, There came in dreams an angel bright, who softly these words did say: "Arise, thou poor Gambrinus, for even all around In the barley where thou sleepest a nectar hides a nectar clear."

"In the barley where thou sleepest there hides a nectar clear; Which men shall know in later times as porter, ale or beer."

Then in terms the most explicit he "put the monarch through." And gave him ere the dream was out the recipe to brew.

Uprose King Gambrinus and shook him in the sun; Ye've left me with my subjects in error and in thirst; Till in our dreadful dryness we scarce know which is worse."

It was the good Gambrinus unto his palace went, And messengers through all the land unto his lords were sent. "Lead out under pain of death" His orders were severe, Whie touched with mildness - for he sent the recipe to brew.
