DURHAM NOMINATIONS Her County Convention yesterday and the Ticket She Proposed in the Field.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 7.—Counterfeit five dollar silver certificates of the new issue made their appearance in this city today.

A STATE OF THINGS A Washington dispatch to the New York Herald of June 28th said: "Senator Sherman lays his defeat directly at Governor Alger's door."

Now comes a Herald interview with Col. Dufiled, who conducted Gen. Alger's campaign and who, on being shown the above statement and asked what he had to say, replied: "I will make no statement as to what I heard from John Sherman."

Three hours later, when the Herald's correspondent returned, Colonel Dufiled is reported as saying, among many other things: "I have demanded of Mr. Sherman that he should not make these charges on the authority of persons unknown to us."

Now the question is, What is the North Carolina case? It would be interesting to know. We know what the Alabama case is, for a Birmingham special of the 30th ult. to the Cincinnati Enquirer told this story:

"Yesterday, and today abundant evidence has cropped out here that many of the Southern delegates to the recent Chicago Convention made a nice thing out of it. Yesterday one of the most prominent colored delegates from this State was going around town feeling pretty 'how come you so,' and as he freely declared, 'spending his little boodle money.'"

"He went into a bookstore and purchased fifty cents worth of writing paper. He reached into his pants-pocket and drew forth a roll, handed the clerk a ten dollar bill, and with a knowing wink remarked softly: 'This pocket contains Alger's money, and that ten is the smallest change I have.'"

"We also know what the Alabama case is and the Stewart will case, but what is this North Carolina case we read about? Can it have anything to do with the fact that certain at least of the delegates to Chicago from this vicinity came back from Chicago with their pockets full of money and with brand new cloths on from head to foot? It would be interesting to know, very interesting indeed."

Chairman Spier Whitaker yesterday received the following telegram: D. H. HARRIS, Esq., Durham, N. C., July 7. Spier Whitaker, Esq. Dockery speaks tonight. Send Fowler or another speaker. Answer. J. S. LOCKHART.

Chairman Whitaker sent the following reply: HARRIS, N. C., July 7. J. S. Lockhart, Esq. Unless Dockery improves on Raleigh speech reply unnecessary. Spier Whitaker.

CONGRESS.

PROCEEDINGS YESTERDAY IN THE HOUSE.

THE TARIFF BILL.—MR. CANNON'S AMENDMENT TO THE TARIFF SCHEDULE.—OTHER NEWS.

By Telegraph to the News and Observer. WASHINGTON, July 7.—The House went into committee on the whole Mr. Springer, of Illinois, on the chair on the tariff bill, proposing an amendment by which that bill should be referred to the committee on the tariff.

The discussion lasted throughout the entire session and the committee rose without reaching a vote. Mr. Cannon's amendment, Mr. C. G. and Mr. Brockington, of Kentucky, were the only speakers on the Democratic side, but a dozen or more Republicans participated in the debate.

Mr. Kelley opened it by expressing surprise to hear the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Cannon) make an assault on the platform recently adopted by the Republican party.

He then quoted from the Chicago platform the protection plank and regretted that the doctrine there enunciated had been assailed from the seats of the Republican members.

From the Republican ranks, Mr. Springer, of Illinois, was the only speaker on the Democratic side, but a dozen or more Republicans participated in the debate.

A Destructive Windstorm.

By Telegraph to the News and Observer. CHICAGO, July 7.—A destructive wind-storm struck the town of Edwardsburg, Indiana, about 11 o'clock last night, creating a havoc throughout the village. The town consists of about 700 inhabitants, and contains between 250 and 300 buildings. It is located on the Grand Trunk railroad, 113 miles from Chicago, on the shores of Diamond Lake. The wind struck the village with terrific force, overturning and carrying away many of the houses. There is not a business house in the place but that is damaged to more or less extent, and the town itself is almost a complete wreck.

A large and handsome hotel had just been completed and had not yet been furnished was moved about fifteen feet from its foundation and completely wrecked. Several dwelling houses were unroofed and a number of barns were destroyed, leaving the horses and cattle unhurt. No one was injured. The little lake was turned into a veritable sea and the pleasure boats that were upon it were lifted bodily out of the water and thrown up high and dry on land.

A Train Bombarded with Stones.

By Telegraph to the News and Observer. CHICAGO, July 7.—A passenger train No. 17 on the Burlington road was leaving Chicago last evening a rock was thrown through the cab window of the engine, narrowly missing Engineer Farnsworth and Fireman Corkery. The windows on both sides of the cab were broken. At Riverside and again at Naperville the engine was bombarded. At the former place a perfect storm of stones was thrown, battering the side of the engine and breaking more glass. At Naperville Fireman Corkery was struck on the head with a flying missile which inflicted a slight scalp wound, but he was not injured so badly that he could not continue his work.

The Schooner "Seabird."

Through the efforts of Congressman John S. Henderson and others the schooner "Seabird" has been secured for the service of the Fish and Oyster Survey. By request of the Board of Agriculture, Mr. T. K. Bruner, secretary of the board, wrote to the North Carolina Representatives in Congress, requesting them to use their influence to secure the schooner. A few days ago Mr. Bruner received a letter from F. M. Thompson, superintendent of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, saying he had received a letter from Congressman Henderson about the matter and would use all his efforts to secure the schooner. These efforts have since resulted successfully.

The members of the committee were Messrs. George H. Lambert, of New Jersey; R. G. Monroe, of New York; L. C. Vandenberg, of C. J. Campbell, W. M. Bryan and Wm. F. Carmichael, of Delaware; A. J. A HOLOCAUST.

FOUR PERSONS BURNED TO DEATH.

IN A FARM-HOUSE DESTROYED BY FIRE—SEVEN MEN AND TWO CHILDREN—OTHER NEWS.

By Telegraph to the News and Observer. SABLE STE. MARIE, Mich., July 7.—The farm house belonging to George Dobbs, located about seven miles from here on the Canadian side of the river, was destroyed by fire early yesterday morning. Four of the inmates, Geo. Dobbs, aged 72 years; David Merrick, aged 21; Alice Thomson, aged 9, and another child perished in the flames. The fire started from a smudge and when discovered by Mrs. Dobbs, who is 70 years of age, was beyond control. Mrs. Dobbs quickly awoke her husband and Mr. Merrick and descended to the lower floor. While groping about in the smoke she stumbled and fell through a trap-door into the cellar and from there made her escape to the open air. Two men, unable to find any means of escape in the smoke, fell back into the flames and were consumed. The children were in another part of the house and perished without a sound, being probably suffocated. The woman, who had no time to put on any clothes, lay exposed to the chilly air until morning, when her cries attracted the attention of neighboring farmers. She is badly burned and there is little hope for her recovery.

Total Viable Supply of Cotton.

By Telegraph to the News and Observer. NEW YORK, July 7.—The total viable supply of cotton for the world is 1,067,680 bales, of which 909,980 bales are American, against 1,744,758 bales and 1,071,558 bales respectively last year. Receipts at all interior towns, 4,103. Receipts at plantations, —. Crop in sight 6,853,840 bales.

Scott, or not Scott.

That is still the question. Is it Scott, or is it not. Mr. Mark Partin, in town yesterday and made a diagnosis of the man. After examination he asserted positively that it was not Partin. He looked at the man's eyes very intently and said he was sure he could recognize him by his eyes. He stated that Partin had a little speck in the disc of the pupil of one eye which he had had all his life, but on examination it was found that this man did not have the speck. The color of his eyes was also different. Mr. Mark Partin also said that Scott Partin had very coarse hair, whereas this man's hair was fine and silky. Scott Partin was constitutionally stoop-shouldered and had always been so, but this man was perfectly erect. His gait was also different.

While Mr. Mark Partin was in the jail the prisoner seemed to be very much incensed at an examination which he had just been subjected to. He spluttered away excitedly for several minutes, much of his jargon being entirely unintelligible. He said that an "old drunken fool" had been talking to him and had accused him of committing a crime of which he was not guilty. He said the man was drunk and had insulted him and that he had a "crimes-beating face" and was doubtless a criminal himself.

One has conflicting convictions when listening to the prisoner talk. Sometimes his conversation, his manner, his intonation, his expression of countenance carry undoubted conviction of their sincerity, and at other times the prisoner's constant and strenuous protestations that he is not Partin awaken suspicion.

It is stated that when Partin was at work at the Insane Asylum here that Dr. Fuller lanced a boil under his arm and observed several moles at the time and it is said that on examination of the prisoner the moles were found as described.

Dear Mrs. Gibson: Pray what will do when week after week I can count all the letters on the fingers of one hand and not require all of them then? Two letters, my infants only two, and I like to know you but a wizard could elaborate them over the ten pages Mr. Mellee has allotted to us."

Mrs. Gibson will probably be vexed at seeing so much of her charming letter in print, for somewhere in the dim recesses of my much stored memory I have a ghost of an idea that she said her letters were to be limited to an audience of one. I pray those merry, fair jame, if I transcribe, but it is a clear case of "needs must be." For if you have an audience of one my audience will have none! And I stand committed to so much "copy" per week. So here goes the letter straight to printer's ink:

"Dear Miss Cameron: I have come into the country for a few weeks with the children, and send their money from here to the Cot. As the last named is the baby, fourteen months old, I must give her a little more than the other little ones, who always give their own money. Even little Jenny has never sent any but that which was her own. Elizabeth's loyalty and devotion to you and the Cot. "Aunt Beckie's Cot" she always calls it—continue unabated. When it was proposed to organize a Children's Guild for the Thompson Orphanage she declared she would have the Cot combined, or have nothing to do with it.

I tried to explain the wrong and unreasonableness of that, and then left her to decide for herself. When the time came she went energetic in her efforts to secure members for the Guild, but still avows her preference for "Aunt Beckie's Cot," and says the best she can do is to divide her small funds between the two.

I wish very much that I could see your little flock of chicks, my dear Madam. They are such faithful little mites.

Elizabeth's fidelity is very beautiful. Children generally are so apt to turn to the least interest. But I dare Orphanage to conflict. To be sure it is necessary for the children's own sakes that they shall be faithful to the end in the endowment of the Cot, because they have pledged themselves hereto, and must realize the inexorable nature of an obligation, even if it runs counter to inclination, and they desire to help an equally worthy object, but they can adopt Elizabeth's wise method and divide their pennies between the two.

I am so heartily interested in the Orphanage, both for its own work's sake and for that of Col. Osborne, upon whom the burden of it rests as upon no one else. Surely that gallant gentleman has borne enough for others. We might sacrifice a little now for him and see that we do all that we possibly can to give him food and clothes for those other people's children for whom he must provide. He is too brave a man not to be pitiful over children, a helpless ones.

Tell my Elizabeth that I repay her love with compound interest, and delight to see a generation of North Carolinians growing up who know how to give, for indeed, to our shame be it said, it is a grace that North Carolinians have never learned. Their parsimony is as conspicuous as their honesty.

The other letter came from Raleigh and a trio of new ones: "Dear Aunt Beckie: I send you 50 cents. My oldest brother, Richard, sends 25 cents, made by working in papa's office. Philip's ten cents was given to him, and I made my 15 cents by trying to break myself of a bad habit. I will send more soon. Your friend."

I am very glad to have you three little ones help us, Elise, and it will help you, too, little Missie, if you learn to break off a bad habit. They are much easier to form than to cure. The end of the month requires a few words. But little was done in June, either in enlistments or contributions, there being but nine new members added to the roll, and only ten dollars and seventy-four cents contributed. We are climbing very slowly to the altitude of that fourth fifty, having been more than two months in making three-fifths of it. Is it possible that Fayetteville isn't going to send one standard-bearer for the honor of old Cumberland?

There were so many Messengers there in the "China baby" days. But I must not open a recruiting office at the end of my letter. Those who give in charity must give free will offerings, or else there is no value in them in his eyes who scans our work and weighs our gifts in the balance.

May He in His own good time teach each one of us that "it is more blessed to give than to receive." Lovingly,

All contributions for the "Bishop Atkinson Memorial Cot" to St. John's Hospital, Raleigh, should be sent to Miss Rebecca Cameron, care Dr. William Cameron, Hillsboro, N. C.
