SPIES WHITEHEAD, Ch'm'n Dem. State Ex. Com.

If the Mills bill is a free trade measure, what is the proposed Republican bill?

H. G. EWART, of Henderson, has been nominated by the Republicans to be beaten for Congress in the 9th district.

A new project is to build a town at Ashby, N. C., and there is no reason why it should not be successful, and a very pleasant, easily reached suburb of Raleigh established at the point named.

Recent experiments at Coney Island with chlorine rockets, designed to lessen the dangerous effects of heavy seas during gales of wind, have been successful in a high degree. Under the new plan, the chlorine gas can be spread just where it is needed and it seemed to act very effectively on the surf.

THE LABOR VOTE.

The high protectionists of the country have been diligent in vociferating over the country "Free trade" as the Democratic policy. They have taken this course with a view to driving out of the Democratic party their scarecrow members of that party who are laboring men, adding to their Chinese method of warfare the threat of loss of employment in case Cleveland should be elected. They have proceeded on the supposition that the laboring men are lacking in intelligence and are therefore unable to judge for themselves as to the hollowness of their pretence. Hence it is not surprising that their scheme has proven a flat failure, as any number of evidences appear daily to attest. It has not been very long since the passage, through the House of the Mills bill, and a striking feature of the vote on the occasion of its passage was the fact that the one member of Congress who was elected distinctly as a labor man—Heurt Smith, of Milwaukee, a wheelwright by occupation—heartily supported the measure of tariff reform. The New York Star asked Mr. Smith to give its reasons for the course he adopted, and he has replied in a forcible letter which appears in the Star of Tuesday.

He says, in the first place, he voted for the Mills bill because it would stop the accumulation of a large surplus in the Treasury, which he considers "fraught with danger to the business interests of the country." In the second place, he did so because the bill proposes to place several articles on the free list that enter into the necessities of life, such as lumber, salt, tin, wool, and several others, and to make a slight reduction, not exceeding on an average 5 per cent, on articles entering largely into home consumption. He holds that free and cheap lumber "franks next to bread to the person who seeks to make a home on our great Western prairies," and as for salt—"that bountiful gift of nature"—he asks: "Why tax that?" Tin plate, he continues, is not made in this country, but it enters largely into our domestic uses and in commerce the products of our country, and of wool, we do not produce half enough for home consumption, even with all the so-called tariff stimulation. Mr. Smith thinks that by permitting this last article to enter our ports free, our manufacturers would be given a chance to provide us with home made goods, and thereby give twice the amount of employment to wage-workers. He adds that his personal experience has taught him that cheap raw material never reduced wages in a manufacturing plant, on the contrary, it had the tendency to raise them. In the third place, Mr. Smith says he does "act because that a nation can be made prosperous or happy by taxation, nor should a republican form of government like ours exact from the people by taxation more than is actually required for an economical administration of public affairs," since a large accumulation of money in the Treasury breeds extravagance and becomes a factor of demoralization in many ways. Furthermore, he says he finds that "in those States that are supposed to receive the benefits of a protective tariff there is more dissatisfaction, strikes, and loss of property than in the common observation of all of us."

Thus he places his action on the ground of common sense, and shows that the Democratic position with respect to the tariff is the only logical and proper one if the interests of the whole people, as opposed to the aristocracy of monopoly, are to be regarded. It is very clear that Mr. Smith does his own thinking, and that he is a very "level-headed" man. It is also very significant that a man occupying the representative position with respect to true labor that he does should have condemned the high tariff of the Republicans so emphatically as he did when he voted for the Democratic measure of tariff reduction. That other congressmen who were elected largely if not wholly by labor votes—men like Weaver of Iowa, for example—should have taken the same stand heartily only goes to strengthen the position that the false Republican cry of "Free trade" can no more frighten laboring men than it can a her thinking man of the land, while it leads to examination and so serves to make clear to all who will see the justice of the Democratic attitude.

COL. HOLT. We are glad to be able to state that Hon. Thomas M. Holt, our candidate for Lieutenant Governor, is still—surely though slowly—recovering from his recent severe attack of acute rheumatism. He is still confined to his bed but we hope soon to see him out again.

The farmers of the South are, not without reason, worried a good deal about that bagging trust. The Albany, Ga. News suggests that "the Southern cotton mills would confer a lasting benefit on the planters if they would manufacture a coarse cotton cloth for wrapping cotton bales. It is eminently practical and is an expedient that the exigencies of the times demand. The little additional cost of the cloth over the bagging can be more than recovered. A change in the American package is imperative, anyway. And about twice as much cotton put in one bale, which would require only a little over half as much wrapping as is now used."

It will move the regret of many fun loving people, old and young, hereabouts to learn that John Robinson, the veteran showman is dead at his home in Cincinnati. He was eighty two years of age.

Says poor Dan Russell in bewailing the fate of himself and Dockery and others of that ilk: "We are Southern men with Northern principles." Very true, Judge Russell. An honest confession is good for the soul.

The South is not prosperous. The farmers of our country are greatly oppressed by the iniquitous tariff. They are also drained of their money by the payment of pensions at the North. How does Col. Dockery stand on these matters?

Nobody should be deceived by the action of the Republicans in the Senate in framing a tariff bill. They mean nothing by it. Let's recall a few facts. Years ago the Republican leaders insisted that raw materials should be free, and that protection should be only afforded the manufacturers of the finished product. President Grant, in his message of 1875, gave expression to the correct principle when he declared that a tax on the raw material was protection to the foreign manufacturer who competed with ours.

President Arthur insisted strongly on tax reduction, and on those very lines. In 1881 the Republican Senate appointed a commission composed exclusively of Republicans to examine and report what changes should be made in the tariff. This Republican commission recommended sweeping tariff reduction much on the line of the Mills bill. But the Republican politicians did not mean anything by it, and no bill was introduced. In 1884 the Republicans, in their platform, promised to do something practical, but failed to take any action. President Cleveland, in 1885, pointed out that if the revenues were not reduced the Treasury would amass a great surplus, but the Radicals voted down the Morrison bill. Again Cleveland made the same recommendation in 1887, and again the Republicans fought the measure. But it passed the House and the Senate did not propose to do anything until it was stated that the House would not agree to adjourn until the tariff bill was considered in the Senate, and that Cleveland would immediately call a special session.

So this stress being on the Republican Senators they have made a show of preparing a bill. But they do not intend it to pass. They will frame such a bill as will lead to a disagreement between the two houses. They are not in earnest. But yet we may learn what they think of the bill if we reduce the tariff taxes to 42 per cent. That is the same figure as the Mills bill! Thus they admit the necessity of a measure similar to the Mills bill. No longer need the Republican brethren roll their angry eyes at Brer Brower, for he did on that line. Both the Democratic and Republican bills propose the substantial repeal of the tobacco tax.

But the Mills bill, for which Brer Brower voted, contains provisions wiping out the odious feature of the Internal Revenue system. They were prepared by Mr. Henderson and cover the business. This Brer Brower voted for—but we predict that the Radical Senate bill will contain no such provisions. Mark that. Note the difference. We "Jare" the Republican press to print these two bills side by side.

But note another thing; the Radical Senators propose to take the tax off alcohol used in the arts, but leave it on whisky and beer just as now. The system is not to be interfered with. But they take the tax off alcohol used "in the arts." That is a trap for the folks. The Internal Revenue system is to continue in all its odium under their bill. This shows how NEWS AND OBSERVER has always said about the matter. They do not propose that the taxes on whisky shall ever be wiped out. But while these are the features of their bill, they do not propose that it shall be enacted into a law. They are only going one step farther than when they accepted their report, but would not then stir a step farther. They are a only trifling. While by their action, they admit the necessity of action, they will not act so as to give the country relief. They are insincere.

In a Memphis paper we find the following circular with reference to one of the results already accomplished of the recently formed bagging trust: St. Louis, Mo., July 30, 1888. To our Patrons: The pool advanced 12 pound bagging Saturday to 10 cents a yard, versus 9 cents a year ago. This same pool was in Washington a short time ago, on their knees to Congress, bagging that the tariff of 3 cents a yard should not be reduced to 2 cents, that it would destroy the manufacturers and the 1,500 poor laboring people employed in mills in St. Louis. They have advanced prices 60 per cent, and are reliably informed that their poor laborers have not had their wages raised one mill; but the 5,000-600 poor people South, who have advanced prices 60 per cent, are forced to pay this $2,000,000 advance to the manufacturers.

HILL, FONTAINE & CO. This shows the fullness of the trust in the clearest aspect possible. It shows how the bagging manufacturers deliberately levy a tax of $2,000,000 on the cotton planters and cotton laborers of the South. Suppose such a tax were laid directly by any number of the States or by the general government. Would there not be a protest that would sound ominous indeed of a condition of the public mind not to be trifled with? It is, how long will the great bulk of the people, the laborers, farmers, workmen and merchants of the country, submit to the rapacity of monopolistic combines? How long will they permit such combines of capital the monstrous privilege afforded them by the Republican high protective system of pillaging the public to their hearts' content? What becomes of the American principle of individual sovereignty under such circumstances of personal freedom? Is every worker in the land to be made the slave of an aristocracy of monopoly? It will be so if the Republican Chinese-wall system is continued, barring out by the benefits of competition Hence the Democracy demands a change, calling for a stoppage of the surplus revenue pouring into the Treasury and a reduction of taxation to the point of the actual needs of the government. It holds that the people's money, over and above what is not necessary for public purposes, should be left with the people for the purpose of legitimate trade and industry; it holds that the surplus already collected should by no means be expended, as the Republicans propose, for the advancement of extravagant schemes of doubtful or no utility; it objects to such legislation as has made the obligations of the government worth 25 per cent more than their face value for the sole and exclusive benefit of the Northern bondholders and its policy should be sustained in the interest of the welfare of the people as a whole and as a result of common sense.

While the Southern people are far from prosperous, because their pockets are drained to fill Northern coffers, Col. Dockery advocates that they shall be taxed to give thirty millions of dollars a year to the Northern bondholders. His party also advocates the payment of many more millions each year to Northern soldiers. Col. Dockery and his party believe in draining the South to enrich the North. And so it is proved that he is a Southern man with Northern principles.

This is the regular quadrennial time when the Republicans carry certain States, including North Carolina, in July to lose them in November.

MESSENGERS OF HOPE

Estimates and Contributions for the Week Ending Aug. 31. In Memoriam, John Gibbons. Heurt Smith, who was shot on the 24th of July, 1877. Uniontown, Pa. $ 2 50 A. M. Lewis, Mount Blanco, Crosby county, Texas. 50 St. Matthew's Sunday School, Hillsboro, N. C., 9th offering. 1 20

Amount required to meet endowment, $1,300. Amount paid in, 150. Amount on hand, 46 44. Membership, 216.

THE CHURCHMAN: The first of this week's letters came from Uniontown, Pennsylvania, where our very faithful ex-North Carolinians, the Humberts, live. The old Messengers will remember that the first money paid in on the Cot Endowment was from the Humbert children as a memorial of their father.

"My Dear Aunt Beckie:—In memory of my dear Johnnie (who was shot on July 24th, 1877) I send you the enclosed $2.50.

"Don't think we have forgotten you or your work. I hope you are progressing rapidly, or mayhap you are done, as it has been a very long time since I heard from you.

If you have finished the endowment you can use the money as you see best. Any work of charity will answer. Love from the children to you. I see a compliment paid to you Hillsboro ladies in 'The Church Year.' Lovingly your friend and admirer.

Thank you very much, dear madam, for your unfailing kindness in so often remembering our work. Surely you have forgotten, though, how long ago you gave into our hands one of our part of the world when you imagine that $1,300 has been given by North Carolina children in eight months. If the endowment is completed in three years I will have realized the expectations with which I tion based upon an experience of three years and a half in the Chinese scholarship endowment.

Since then the disease has been divided, and the Thompson Orphanage established, so now we have only half as much territory to work in and two objects to divide the pennies which are never very plentiful with little Tar heels.

I have no doubt of the ultimate success of our work, but we must take for our motto the old scrap of Latin, "Festina lente"—"Make haste slowly" as it would read in English. I sent your letter by last night's mail. Give my love to the children and tell them I've plenty of room in the bag for their spare pennies. The next letter came as far the other way, and further too. A little boy from the Lone Star State sends it: "Dear Aunt Beckie. I am 9 years old, and I have been working for the Cot. I send 50 cents which I made picking off bugs from grandpa's potatoes. It is the first contribution I have made, but I am not going to let it be my last if I am so far from you as I am. Your affectionate nephew, J. H. Zettie, Jr."

That is a brave resolve, my little nine-year-old, and I shall be very glad to hear from you very often. You see "far off" makes no difference with railroads and postal cars. I hope your next money can be made by pleasant work than picking horrid bugs off of things. I am afraid I could not make 50 cents that way for anything. I can't bear to touch a bug. But then boys are different, fortunately for the potatoes and the Cot!

St. Matthews, Sunday school sent its ninth offering by a chance Messenger, so there is nothing to report about it except that I am very much obliged to Mr. Murphy and his small fry.

The last letter, which really was the first in point of arrival, has very good news for you all. You remember last week I told you I had written to ask room for the letter in another paper. Well, as soon as possible thereafter, I received this reply: "Miss Cameron: Your letter, which I favor received and contents noted. I will cheerfully place a column or so in Sunday's issue of the Messenger for your 'Messenger' letter." Please send it on Thursday if possible so as to guard against missing the mail. Respectfully yours, J. H. ZETTIE, A. BONITZ."

So you see, children, your letter will go on as usual, only it will be printed in future in the Sunday issue of the "Wilmington Messenger." And I am sure you will thank Mr. Bonitz very much for his kindness in giving us a Council Chamber in his paper, and most heartily wish with me in thanking the gentlemen of the News and Observer for all their kindness during the past eight months, without which we would have had no need for anybody's kindness in future. I wish you had finished that fourth fifty dollars while with them. I hoped you would so much!

and less vacation. I fancy, before we pick up the old average of $50 every two months.

It is only due to Mr. Ashe to say that after I received Mr. Bonitz' letter giving the space asked for on the same day in fact—he wrote to say that he had not "meant" the word to stop at once." But as the change would have to be made before long, I think it best to close with Mr. Bonitz' offer at once, since the matter has been made public that a change was to take place. And now, thanking the News and Observer most heartily for its kind and generous kindness to us, and wishing it all possible success in everything it advocates or attempts in the future, I say good-bye to you all here, until I say howdy next week in the Wilmington Messenger. See to it, little folks, that you make a creditable bow in the new quarters. "A good beginning is half the battle."

Lovingly, "AUNT BECKIE." All contributions for the Bishop Atkinson Memorial Cot in St. John's Hospital, Raleigh, N. C., should be sent to Miss Rebecca Cameron, care of Dr. William Cameron, Hillsboro, North Carolina, and in future will be acknowledged in the Sunday issue of the Wilmington Messenger.

Let Tobacco Alone.

Dr. Van Hook in Harper's Young People. These are the days when the features about smoking that render it an unpleasant habit. The smell on the breath is disagreeable to many persons, and the habit, when formed, is enslaving. A person who is accustomed to using tobacco is unhappy when deprived of it, and cannot enjoy many things on account of the uncontrollable desire to gratify his perverted taste. In this respect the habit is nearly as bad as that of using strong drink. Then, last of all, it is a useless expense. Think of the money that could be saved and applied to the purchase of books or pictures, or even a bicycle or microscope, or some valuable instrument or means of amusement that would improve mind as well as body. Why, five cents a day would be over $18 a year, which would buy eighteen $1 books, or a library in itself. So, everything considered, a boy who avoids the use of tobacco will save in many ways—in health, in morals, in standing among well thinking people, and in pocket. So, boys, make a resolution at once never to begin the use of tobacco.

The Newest Duchess Creates Interest.

London Court Journal. The greatest interest was shown on Monday night by all assembled at Mrs. Oppenheim's ball to witness the debut of the new Duchess of Marlborough in London society. The report as to her personal appearance led all to expect a beautiful woman of dignified bearing and showing excellent taste in dress. In all these items she did not disappoint expectation, while she added pleasant manners, which caused her to be liked at once on this evening and will make her many friends. The Duchess appeared again in society on Wednesday evening, and has ridden several times in the Row. Among the gifts presented to her bride by the Duke of Marlborough is a very massive bracelet of diamonds, in hoop form and closely set, having an enormous cat's eye in the center, measuring 1.5 inches in diameter, said to be the largest specimen in the world, which is also encircled with diamonds.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting their teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once, it produces natural quietness and sleep, soothes the inflamed membrane, and relieves the child, soothes the gums, always all pains, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best remedy for colic, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

The Emperors of Germany, Russia and Austria are to meet in the autumn on the Austrian frontier.

is caused by a torpid liver—not enough bile is secreted, and the bowels are not cleansed of their own catarrh. The treatment of constipation does not consist merely in unloading the bowels, but in restoring the liver to its normal condition, so that it may act as a purgative, but be a tonic as well, and not produce the usual effects of a cathartic, such as a regular habit of body without changing the diet or disorganizing the system.

My attention, after suffering with Constipation for two or three years, was called to Simmons' Liver Regulator, and, having tried almost everything else, concluded to try it. I first took a single dose, and, to my surprise, it relieved me so completely, as per directions, after each meal. I found that it had done me so much good, that I continued it until I took two bottles. Since then I have not experienced any difficulty. I keep it in my medicine chest, and do not know how to use for it, if I have cured me. GEORGE W. WATSON, ASSISTANT CLERK, SUPERIOR COURT, BILBO CO., LA.
