

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than ordinary kinds and cannot be sold in composition with the substance of low cost.

WOOLCOTT & SON, 14 East Martin Street.

For Early Fall Trade.

We have received direct from France all shades of

HENRIETTA CLOTH.

price 50c. a yard.

2,000 yards double width cashmere

New styles of fall dress prints.

10 pieces black cashmere, 88 inches wide, 20c, worth 35c.

We have added to our stock a new line of crockery, glass and tinware.

Our stock of shoes is complete and cannot be excelled in quality or price.

All goods marked in plain figures and at one price to all.

EDWARD FASNACH, JEWELER AND OPTICIAN.

SOLITAIRE AND CLUSTER DIAMONDS

Gold Jewelry, Gold and Silver Watches

Our stock of shoes is complete and cannot be excelled in quality or price.

Our Optical Department

Embrace an endless variety of lenses

OUR ARTIFICIAL Human Eyes

sets and look like the natural organs

Raleigh Marble Works,

RALEIGH, N. C.

Branch Yard, Lawler's Old Stand.

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C.

Manufacturers of all kinds of Monument

DESIGNS

all descriptions kept on hand and sent

Chas. A. Goodwin, Proprietor

CONGRESS.

PROCEEDINGS YESTERDAY IN SENATE AND HOUSE.

THE AMENDMENT BILL PASSES THE SENATE.

THE HOUSE—OTHER NEWS.

By Telegram to the News and Observer.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—SENATE.—

The resolution heretofore offered by Mr. Vest for inquiry into the case of a Senate official (McKee) publishing a campaign book was taken up, and at the suggestion of Mr. Mitchell was informally laid aside.

Mr. Hoar's resolution, offered yesterday, calling the attention of the President to the previous request of the Senate to be furnished with copies of communications to the British Government in regard to the fisheries, was taken up, and, at the suggestion of Mr. Vest, was laid aside informally. Mr. Vest stating his understanding that a message would be received in about half an hour, and he added significantly "on this subject." The Chinese exclusion bill was then taken up and Mr. Vest, re-iterating his objection to the denial of his statement that seven Chinamen had been naturalized in Indianapolis in 1876 under the superintendence of Mr. Miller, law partner of Mr. Harrison and had voted the Republican ticket, read a letter which he had received giving the particulars of such naturalization and showing that the only mistake he (Vest) had made was in giving the date as 1876 instead of 1880. He also sent to the clerk's desk and had read corroborative affidavits. He had read that instead of its being a fact that no Chinamen had ever been naturalized in the United States, some twenty of them had been naturalized in State courts in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Indiana and had been allowed to vote.

Mr. Dolph made the point that the records and documents were not evidence of naturalization of the Chinamen but only of the declaration of intention. The fact of naturalization was not performed by a court, while the declaration of intention might be made before a clerk or notary.

Mr. Vest admitted as a lawyer that the acts referred to did not constitute naturalization in the legal sense, but he said in Indiana the declaration of intention conferred the right to vote.

Mr. Dolph asked Mr. Vest whether there was anything in the affidavits to sustain the statement that Harrison's law partner had anything to do with the naturalization of the Chinamen in Indiana.

Mr. Vest admitted that he was not. On the contrary, he had learned that neither of the lawyers of Mr. Harrison had anything to do with it.

At this point a message was received from the President of the United States, and laid before the Senate, enclosing (as the only official information at hand in regard to the Chinese treaty) copies of communications from Mr. Denby, minister to Peking, the first, dated September 6th, Garden being five lines in length. His speech soon got the audience listening hunched, and the rest of the order of exercises proceeded without interruption. Many, however, left the Garden as soon as Mr. Thurman got out, but the crowd was so dense outside that their places were quickly filled.

There were four outside meetings around the stands at which the local orators held forth, and had shifting audiences all the evening. Had the Garden been five times as large it could easily have been filled. The enthusiasm was as abundant as it was hearty and sincere. In point of numbers, enthusiasm and sympathy for the Democratic ticket nothing better could be desired.

Another Discom From Dr. Robey's View Correspondence of the News and Observer.

LITTLETON, N. C., Sept. 7, 1888.

As a member of the North Carolina Conference and a prohibitionist I must dissent from Dr. Robey's construction of the report on Temperance made at our last Conference. I did not understand that report as committing the Methodist church and 200 ministers to the "Third party," and I can't understand how Dr. Robey understood said report as committing the Methodist church to "backing" him in his politics.

If Dr. Robey is willing to leave his party and tie to another, and thereby help to fasten negro rule upon the white people of Eastern North Carolina he need not expect 80,000 members and 200 ministers to "back" him. We are prohibitionists and friends of all people and not enemies of the white people of Eastern North Carolina.

Yours, I. J. HOLDERS.

One who's Candidate. (Newton Enterprise.)

The successful competitors in last Saturday's contest for places on the county ticket of the great Democratic party in the banner county, are: For the Senate, Dr. J. Turner, of Mountain Creek township; for the House, Mr. A. M. Hewitt, of Clinch; for sheriff, Mr. J. M. Row, of Newton; for register of deeds, the present incumbent, Mr. George W. Cochran; for treasurer, Bert W. L. C. Killian, of Newton; for coroner, Mr. M. T. Sanders, of Mountain Creek; for surveyor, Mr. Theo. H. Bandy, of Caldwell. All are good men; all will receive a hearty support by the united Democracy of the county, all will be victoriously elected and all will make good officers.

Onslow Nominations.

The Democrats of Onslow county assembled in convention at Jacksonville on the first Monday in September and nominated the following ticket: For the House, Thomas E. Gilman, Esq.; for sheriff, E. Murrill; for register of deeds, Jacob F. Giles; for treasurer, W. N. Marine.

Mr. Sanderlin, the Democratic candidate for State Auditor, made two speeches in this county on Tuesday last—one at Huntersville in the day time and the other in the Court House here at night. He had large audiences on both occasions, and made speeches, very popular with those who heard them.—Charlotte Democrat.

General Master Workman Powderly says that the Republicans will not benefit much by ex-Secretary Litchman's taking the stump for them.

CONGRESS.

PROCEEDINGS YESTERDAY IN SENATE AND HOUSE.

THE AMENDMENT BILL PASSES THE SENATE.

THE HOUSE—OTHER NEWS.

By Telegram to the News and Observer.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—SENATE.—

The resolution heretofore offered by Mr. Vest for inquiry into the case of a Senate official (McKee) publishing a campaign book was taken up, and at the suggestion of Mr. Mitchell was informally laid aside.

Mr. Hoar's resolution, offered yesterday, calling the attention of the President to the previous request of the Senate to be furnished with copies of communications to the British Government in regard to the fisheries, was taken up, and, at the suggestion of Mr. Vest, was laid aside informally. Mr. Vest stating his understanding that a message would be received in about half an hour, and he added significantly "on this subject." The Chinese exclusion bill was then taken up and Mr. Vest, re-iterating his objection to the denial of his statement that seven Chinamen had been naturalized in Indianapolis in 1876 under the superintendence of Mr. Miller, law partner of Mr. Harrison and had voted the Republican ticket, read a letter which he had received giving the particulars of such naturalization and showing that the only mistake he (Vest) had made was in giving the date as 1876 instead of 1880. He also sent to the clerk's desk and had read corroborative affidavits. He had read that instead of its being a fact that no Chinamen had ever been naturalized in the United States, some twenty of them had been naturalized in State courts in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Indiana and had been allowed to vote.

Mr. Dolph made the point that the records and documents were not evidence of naturalization of the Chinamen but only of the declaration of intention. The fact of naturalization was not performed by a court, while the declaration of intention might be made before a clerk or notary.

Mr. Vest admitted as a lawyer that the acts referred to did not constitute naturalization in the legal sense, but he said in Indiana the declaration of intention conferred the right to vote.

Mr. Dolph asked Mr. Vest whether there was anything in the affidavits to sustain the statement that Harrison's law partner had anything to do with the naturalization of the Chinamen in Indiana.

Mr. Vest admitted that he was not. On the contrary, he had learned that neither of the lawyers of Mr. Harrison had anything to do with it.

At this point a message was received from the President of the United States, and laid before the Senate, enclosing (as the only official information at hand in regard to the Chinese treaty) copies of communications from Mr. Denby, minister to Peking, the first, dated September 6th, Garden being five lines in length. His speech soon got the audience listening hunched, and the rest of the order of exercises proceeded without interruption. Many, however, left the Garden as soon as Mr. Thurman got out, but the crowd was so dense outside that their places were quickly filled.

There were four outside meetings around the stands at which the local orators held forth, and had shifting audiences all the evening. Had the Garden been five times as large it could easily have been filled. The enthusiasm was as abundant as it was hearty and sincere. In point of numbers, enthusiasm and sympathy for the Democratic ticket nothing better could be desired.

Another Discom From Dr. Robey's View Correspondence of the News and Observer.

LITTLETON, N. C., Sept. 7, 1888.

As a member of the North Carolina Conference and a prohibitionist I must dissent from Dr. Robey's construction of the report on Temperance made at our last Conference. I did not understand that report as committing the Methodist church and 200 ministers to the "Third party," and I can't understand how Dr. Robey understood said report as committing the Methodist church to "backing" him in his politics.

If Dr. Robey is willing to leave his party and tie to another, and thereby help to fasten negro rule upon the white people of Eastern North Carolina he need not expect 80,000 members and 200 ministers to "back" him. We are prohibitionists and friends of all people and not enemies of the white people of Eastern North Carolina.

Yours, I. J. HOLDERS.

One who's Candidate. (Newton Enterprise.)

The successful competitors in last Saturday's contest for places on the county ticket of the great Democratic party in the banner county, are: For the Senate, Dr. J. Turner, of Mountain Creek township; for the House, Mr. A. M. Hewitt, of Clinch; for sheriff, Mr. J. M. Row, of Newton; for register of deeds, the present incumbent, Mr. George W. Cochran; for treasurer, Bert W. L. C. Killian, of Newton; for coroner, Mr. M. T. Sanders, of Mountain Creek; for surveyor, Mr. Theo. H. Bandy, of Caldwell. All are good men; all will receive a hearty support by the united Democracy of the county, all will be victoriously elected and all will make good officers.

Onslow Nominations.

The Democrats of Onslow county assembled in convention at Jacksonville on the first Monday in September and nominated the following ticket: For the House, Thomas E. Gilman, Esq.; for sheriff, E. Murrill; for register of deeds, Jacob F. Giles; for treasurer, W. N. Marine.

Mr. Sanderlin, the Democratic candidate for State Auditor, made two speeches in this county on Tuesday last—one at Huntersville in the day time and the other in the Court House here at night. He had large audiences on both occasions, and made speeches, very popular with those who heard them.—Charlotte Democrat.

General Master Workman Powderly says that the Republicans will not benefit much by ex-Secretary Litchman's taking the stump for them.

CONGRESS.

PROCEEDINGS YESTERDAY IN SENATE AND HOUSE.

THE AMENDMENT BILL PASSES THE SENATE.

THE HOUSE—OTHER NEWS.

By Telegram to the News and Observer.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—SENATE.—

The resolution heretofore offered by Mr. Vest for inquiry into the case of a Senate official (McKee) publishing a campaign book was taken up, and at the suggestion of Mr. Mitchell was informally laid aside.

Mr. Hoar's resolution, offered yesterday, calling the attention of the President to the previous request of the Senate to be furnished with copies of communications to the British Government in regard to the fisheries, was taken up, and, at the suggestion of Mr. Vest, was laid aside informally. Mr. Vest stating his understanding that a message would be received in about half an hour, and he added significantly "on this subject." The Chinese exclusion bill was then taken up and Mr. Vest, re-iterating his objection to the denial of his statement that seven Chinamen had been naturalized in Indianapolis in 1876 under the superintendence of Mr. Miller, law partner of Mr. Harrison and had voted the Republican ticket, read a letter which he had received giving the particulars of such naturalization and showing that the only mistake he (Vest) had made was in giving the date as 1876 instead of 1880. He also sent to the clerk's desk and had read corroborative affidavits. He had read that instead of its being a fact that no Chinamen had ever been naturalized in the United States, some twenty of them had been naturalized in State courts in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Indiana and had been allowed to vote.

Mr. Dolph made the point that the records and documents were not evidence of naturalization of the Chinamen but only of the declaration of intention. The fact of naturalization was not performed by a court, while the declaration of intention might be made before a clerk or notary.

Mr. Vest admitted as a lawyer that the acts referred to did not constitute naturalization in the legal sense, but he said in Indiana the declaration of intention conferred the right to vote.

Mr. Dolph asked Mr. Vest whether there was anything in the affidavits to sustain the statement that Harrison's law partner had anything to do with the naturalization of the Chinamen in Indiana.

Mr. Vest admitted that he was not. On the contrary, he had learned that neither of the lawyers of Mr. Harrison had anything to do with it.

At this point a message was received from the President of the United States, and laid before the Senate, enclosing (as the only official information at hand in regard to the Chinese treaty) copies of communications from Mr. Denby, minister to Peking, the first, dated September 6th, Garden being five lines in length. His speech soon got the audience listening hunched, and the rest of the order of exercises proceeded without interruption. Many, however, left the Garden as soon as Mr. Thurman got out, but the crowd was so dense outside that their places were quickly filled.

There were four outside meetings around the stands at which the local orators held forth, and had shifting audiences all the evening. Had the Garden been five times as large it could easily have been filled. The enthusiasm was as abundant as it was hearty and sincere. In point of numbers, enthusiasm and sympathy for the Democratic ticket nothing better could be desired.

Another Discom From Dr. Robey's View Correspondence of the News and Observer.

LITTLETON, N. C., Sept. 7, 1888.

As a member of the North Carolina Conference and a prohibitionist I must dissent from Dr. Robey's construction of the report on Temperance made at our last Conference. I did not understand that report as committing the Methodist church and 200 ministers to the "Third party," and I can't understand how Dr. Robey understood said report as committing the Methodist church to "backing" him in his politics.

If Dr. Robey is willing to leave his party and tie to another, and thereby help to fasten negro rule upon the white people of Eastern North Carolina he need not expect 80,000 members and 200 ministers to "back" him. We are prohibitionists and friends of all people and not enemies of the white people of Eastern North Carolina.

Yours, I. J. HOLDERS.

One who's Candidate. (Newton Enterprise.)

The successful competitors in last Saturday's contest for places on the county ticket of the great Democratic party in the banner county, are: For the Senate, Dr. J. Turner, of Mountain Creek township; for the House, Mr. A. M. Hewitt, of Clinch; for sheriff, Mr. J. M. Row, of Newton; for register of deeds, the present incumbent, Mr. George W. Cochran; for treasurer, Bert W. L. C. Killian, of Newton; for coroner, Mr. M. T. Sanders, of Mountain Creek; for surveyor, Mr. Theo. H. Bandy, of Caldwell. All are good men; all will receive a hearty support by the united Democracy of the county, all will be victoriously elected and all will make good officers.

Onslow Nominations.

The Democrats of Onslow county assembled in convention at Jacksonville on the first Monday in September and nominated the following ticket: For the House, Thomas E. Gilman, Esq.; for sheriff, E. Murrill; for register of deeds, Jacob F. Giles; for treasurer, W. N. Marine.

Mr. Sanderlin, the Democratic candidate for State Auditor, made two speeches in this county on Tuesday last—one at Huntersville in the day time and the other in the Court House here at night. He had large audiences on both occasions, and made speeches, very popular with those who heard them.—Charlotte Democrat.

General Master Workman Powderly says that the Republicans will not benefit much by ex-Secretary Litchman's taking the stump for them.

THURMAN.

THE NEXT VICE-PRESIDENT MUCH BETTER.

HE WILL SUFFER NO ILL EFFECTS FROM HIS SLIGHT ILLNESS—OTHER NEWS.

By Telegram to the News and Observer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Judge Thurman awoke shortly after ten o'clock this morning quite refreshed after enjoying a quiet sleep. His physician says he is much better and will suffer no ill effects from his slight illness. Breakfast will be served in his parlor and he will probably spend the day quietly in his room, though he may take a drive about town.

THE JUDGE ALL RIGHT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Judge Thurman is all right and his only regret is that he was unable to speak last night. He arose at noon and expressed himself as feeling well, except for a little weakness. Much anxiety has been felt throughout the country regarding the Judge's condition and he is very grateful to people for their interest in him and wishes it to be explained to them that there is nothing in his condition to excite alarm. He has simply suffered from a slight attack of the stomach, in his life to and is now all right. Dr. Goldthwaite, who is attending him, visited him shortly before 10 o'clock this morning and found him awake. He said the Judge was feeling very well but would not rise for breakfast until noon. After breakfast he expected to be strong enough to receive a few callers. Dr. Goldthwaite says Judge Thurman is a hale and hearty old man, but that his travels have simply tired him out. He expected that he will be able to fulfill his engagement at Newark. No opiates were administered to Judge Thurman last night, his sleep being perfectly natural. Dr. Goldthwaite said he had administered no medicine since he had departed for Madison Square Garden last night. There were many enquiries after Judge Thurman's health at the desk of the Fifth Avenue Hotel today but it was nearly noon before the clerks were in possession of any information on the subject. Allen W. Thurman remained in attendance upon his father, and no one could reach the room until 8.30.

Judge Fowle and Col. Dockery at Roxboro.

Roxboro, Sept. 5, 1888.

Judge Fowle and Col. Dockery spoke at Roxboro today to a large audience—the crowd being estimated at 2,000. The Democratic clubs of the county escorted Judge Fowle into the town, with flags flying and the greatest cheering and the procession was a splendid one. The speaking began at 10 o'clock and continued until 11 o'clock. Judge Fowle introduced Col. Dockery, who spoke for an hour. His chief topic was that the Democrats had not done anything. At the conclusion of his speech Mr. John S. Cunningham introduced Judge Daniel G. Fowle. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which would not pass the bill. I never heard the tariff made as plain. He spoke of him as being an honor to the judicial bench and an ornament to the bar of the State; that he was the candidate of the people, had always been an advocate of civil liberty and had at all times upheld the honor and integrity of the laws of North Carolina. Judge Fowle made a magnificent speech, debating every point clearly, and explaining to the people the issues of the campaign. He showed them that the Democratic party had kept its pledges, that the Mills bill, which was for the repealing of the tobacco tax, had passed the Democratic House and that the President was ready to sign the bill but for the Republican Senate which