The admirable institution, than which there is certainly not a better in any respect in all the Southern States, begins its next session tomorrow. The indications are that its patronage this year will be fully up to if not beyond that of any year in the history of the school. Already there have been numerous arrivals of young ladies to enter the classes of the school and every incoming train brings a goodly number more. Mr. Smedes fully deserves the ample success that is crowning his efforts.

The Suspension of the Canvass. Judge Fowle arrived in the city yesterday morning. On arriving at Greenaboro it was found impossible to continue the canvass in consequence of the floods, and by mutual agreement it was decided to suspend the canvass till Friday next. The speaking will then be resumed at Winston, and the list of appointments as it follows that date will be carried out. Some provision will have to be made in the future for the points can-

Judge Fowle is suffering from a deep cold which he has contracted, and will spend the time between now and Friday resting at home.

"No Trust." Several establishments on Wilmington and Martin streets yesterday raised the ensign of war against the jute bagging trust. The fronts of several establishments might have been seen decorated with waving festoons of bagging bearing inscriptions of "no trust," "down with the trust," etc. Large quantities of the substitute have just been received by a number of our merchants here and are now offered to the farmers. It is regular flax bagging or sacking and is said to be in every way equal to jute with the exception of being possibly a fraction lighter. It is sold at 12 cents, 3 or 4 cents less than the jute at its present price. The farmers, are united in their determination to use a substitute if it costs them even more.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR JUTE.

Interesting Experiments with Pine Straw Bagging at Charleston. A Charsleston special of Wednesday says: An interesting experiment was made here today with the new pine straw bagging which is offered as a substitute for jute tagging for cotton bales. The pine straw material seems to have stood the test of compressing and the experiment was made to test its imflammability: A piece of the pine straw cloth and one of jute were fired simultaneously. The jute was extinguished in two seconds while the pine straw burned were swept away and trees felled to and smouldered for some fifteen or twenty seconds before it could be ex-On the Western North Carolina tinguished Notwithstanding this, however, attention has been directed Railroad delay was caused in the passage of trains by a slide at Swanto the pine straw industry and the plants for several manufactories have firm; prime city 51 buyers; 51 asked. brother will shortly arrive from Englished to assist him in the management of the land to assist him in the management railroads, however, very little indon-this State. ## BERWANGER BROS.,

BEGINNING MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 10.

For the last four months we have devoted our entire facilities for manufacturing first-class Tailor-made Clothing for Men, Boys and Children, and we have placed upon our counters the largest, finest, best and yet the most moderate priced stock ever offered to the Public. In the quality of material and linings, in excellence of workmanship throughout, in style of cut and finish; in every particular whatsoever these goods are equal to those of the leading merchant tailors, who charge mere than twice our price.

We do not pretend to compete with Cheap John clothing stores. Our only opposition comes from the first-class merchant tailor establishments. The Suits and Overcoats we offer not only 'ook, but in reality are like Merchant Tailor goods.

You are welcome to inspect them and judge for yourselves, and you will find that we will save you dollars and cents on any garment purchased in our house.
