Unnecessary taxation is unjust taxation.—Cleveland's Letter of Acceptance.

How this made the matter clear: Strudwick and Burn. They deservedly rank among true orators and are superb in their championship of Democracy.

Donner's goose is cooked. And who did the cooking? Judge Fowle has kept the Radical demagogue frying and spitting and turning and twisting and strutting up under the power of his righteous indignation ever since the joint canvass began.

The American manufacturer says, "I pay my men five times as much money as the European manufacturer does." That is very true. But the American laborer does not receive the same amount for his pay. The reason he does this is that the American today is the most intelligent man in the world; our people are the quickest, the brightest, the most energetic, the most energetic of all modern nations; that this world ever saw, and all this is due to our institutions. If we can get the materials as cheap as manufacturers in other countries do, we will be able to compete with the best of them.

The Parliamentary Commission appointed to investigate the London Times' charges of incitement to murder, &c., against Parnell and other leading Irish members adjourned without going into the merits of the case before them but it gave very clear intimations that it proposes to go to the bottom of the matter when it does get to work upon it earnestly. The public may therefore expect to have the charges thoroughly sifted sooner or later.

According to the report of Commissioner Black, the pension business cost the country for the fiscal year just ended $82,088,886. The pensioners live at the north, and assuming that North Carolina pays one dollar out of forty, she pays $2,000,000 towards supporting these people. While we can stand that, we cannot stand any more of it, yet Mr. Nichols petitioned to open the flood gates and let this pension business swamp us. Down with unnecessary taxation, and with "Southern men with Northern principles," as Judge Russell calls them.

It appears on investigation by an expert member of the State Board of Health that the supposed case of yellow fever at Burgaw was not yellow fever at all but hemorrhagic fever, that the victim lived twelve miles from the railroad and that he had not been near any possible sources of infection. This being so, it appears further that this physician who does not know yellow fever from hemorrhagic fever ought to hesitate about reporting officially as president of a county board of health for publication in the newspapers that the symptoms of any given case are those of yellow fever without doubt.

THE PROTECTION GOLD IS TO BE

Today the joint canvass between Judge Fowle and Col. Dockery comes to an end with the speaking at Mooreville, Iredell county. It has been all the Democrats could have desired. As we predicted would be the case, Judge Fowle has proven his mastery superiority over his opponent on every stump. He has the advantage in every way personally while "having his quarrel just" he has been "thrice armed" throughout the contest. He is a man of a very high order of ability, learned in the law, skilled in debate, gifted with rare eloquence, and with a high degree of thoroughness and with a true patriot and a Democrat of the strictest sect. He has, moreover, been a life-long student of the philosophy of government and his convictions are founded on the results of pure reason and the sincerest search after the truth. He is as "Hyperion to a satyr" when compared to his demagogic opponent.

The joint canvass could not, therefore, have been other than a prolonged triumph for him; but it has in addition to this the means of materially strengthening the Democratic party throughout the State. Of doubtful utility in the minds of some party leaders in the outset, it has proven of unmistakable and great benefit to the elucidation of truth as to what is best for our people. Judge Fowle has largely drawn the crowds for Dockery, he has attracted the white men almost exclusively; but he has presented his message with such great power, with such force of logic, such clearness, such wealth of quotation that he has carried conviction to every mind not steeped in prejudice and capable otherwise of forming an opinion as to what is best in the way of government for our people, and has thus made voters. He has dealt sledgehammer blows for Democracy and at the same time when occasion required has wielded the most delicate instrument of argumentative discourse with a skill in the highest degree admirable. He has made voters everywhere, sometimes by the dross within the actual knowledge of Democratic lookers-on, as we have it from those lookers-on themselves. He has had Dockery under hack from the very first, and as the Wilmington Star puts it, that hero's goose is now about cooked for good and all.

The Radical candidate's efforts have been so lame and impotent that they would have been pitiable had they not been exerted in so vile a cause—a cause that seeks to fasten negro domination on this white man's land. Col. Dockery has flourished from the first in a mass of misstatements and misrepresentations which it has taken much of Judge Fowle's time to correct and confining himself to this species of warfare, as base as it is silly, he has found himself in a veritable slough of despond under the bold and vigorous treatment of Judge Fowle and from this slough he will never be able to rescue himself—never, never! He will there have to stay with the book negroes he has voted for against respectable white men, with the negro lawyer he has sought to put in office over a one-legged Confederate soldier, with the odious principles of social equality he advocates by his position if not otherwise, with his slanders of respectable white women, his vote against stopping the collection of the special tax bonds, his record as a demagogue pure and simple ever since he entered public life, his failure as a farmer, as a lawyer and as everything else he ever put his hand to. His goose is cooked, and on the 22nd of November the people of the State will again formally repudiate him with all the injurious and degrading principles he represents.

On the 23rd inst., at Oxford, Judge Fowle and Col. Davidson will enter on a series of appointments arranged for the two by Chairman Whitaker that will last till November 3d and include the latter date and that will be devoted for the most part to the east. Elsewhere in the News and Observer this list will be found published.

The State Board of Health is without doubt wise in the action it has taken disapproving of the wholesale influx of Florida people into the State and advising Gov. Seales that in the light of recent events it is extremely ill-advised to permit it. The Wilmington Messenger, referring to this action of the Board, says:

"It was learned in this connection that it was contemplated to run another train load of people from Jacksonville and other points in Florida into this State, so Dr. Thomas F. Wood, as executive officer of the State Board of Health, has communicated with Surgeon General Hamilton notifying him not to send them to any point in North Carolina unless they can be sent into camp and a most rigid sanitary supervision be exercised around the camp. Dr. Wood calls General Hamilton's attention to Hendersonville as a point in view and an illustrative of the danger of sending people by the train load into the State. A great many of them broke their parole and immediately scattered to various points, menacing Wilmington, Charleston and Norfolk, and in view of this fact the Board has taken the action stated."

The Messenger says further: "The towns of Hickory and Newton, having invited the refugees to come into those places as a haven of safety, Dr. Wood has also communicated with the authorities of those places interdicting such a step, unless a camp can be established and a strict quarantine be maintained." Certainly every precaution should be taken to keep the scowge beyond our doors. The monster is too terrible to be trifled with in any way. We may have the deepest sympathy for those of our brethren who are smitten with the presence of the fever, and we should in every practical way contribute to the alleviation of the sufferings of those brethren and to the stoppage of the plague, but any invitation to the scowge to enter our doors would not tend to increase our ability to help. Let us, while lending every aid in our power, take every possible precaution to keep our towns and other communities liable to infection free from the presence of the dread destroyer.

THE SHAKESPEARE CLUB.

AT THE UNIVERSITY OF THE STATE. Cor. of the News and Observer. CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Sept. 19, 1888.

Work in all the departments of the State University has begun promptly and is pushed forward with hopeful results. The meetings of the Mitchell Scientific Society and of the Shakespeare Club have already taken place. I attended the latter and found the members alert and interested and an unusually large "company" to greet them. This is the third year of the Shakespeare Club and it has gone on "prospering and prospering." The opening address of the President, Prof. Thos. Hume, stated the reasons for such a society and the relations to literary culture. There is no doubt that the literary and spontaneous character of much of the work gives a needed stimulus to investigation and composition and our students have responded warmly to the happy inspiration. The popular nature of the historical and aesthetic side of Shakespearean study and the scientific research required in examining sources of the drama and chronological and metrical questions, must both be taken into account in considering the success of such a movement. It supplements well the thorough classroom study, now so important a part of the literature course. The regular programme as announced in the catalogue was carried out. "The Two Gentlemen of Verona" was discussed with thoughtful literary skill by Mr. Logan D. Howell in the sources and materials and in its composition. Mr. Wm. J. Battle, A. B., who is now taking a post-graduate course, presented a critical paper marked by acute observation and sprightly humor on the characters and some of the features of the plot. Mr. St. Clair Hester, A. B., who is lingering still at his Alma Mater in the prosecution of special work, gave a characteristically witty and spirited commentary on the dialogue and on some of the "persons" of the comedy, especially Launce and his dog. Dr. Hume closed the discussion by a careful and instructive review of the diction and figures of this early play, showing the similar characters in other plays and Shakespeare's progress.

The club elected its officers for the new session. Prof. Hume, of the chair of English Language and Literature, was re-elected president. Prof. W. D. Toy, of Modern Languages, was re-elected vice president. Mr. St. C. Hester having completed his course here vacates the secretaryship he has so admirably filled, and is succeeded by the scholarly Mr. W. J. Battle. We miss the culture and the enthusiasm of Mr. Hayne Davis, A. B., but have a competent treasurer to succeed him in Mr. H. G. Wood, while Prof. G. T. Winston, of the chair of Latin, Mr. L. D. Howell and Mr. John S. Hill add character and weight to the executive committee. Many new members were introduced. On the second Wednesday night in October Richard the Third, with the wealth of historical, critical, metrical questions and the character studies suggested by it, will be the subject. We hope to have the presence of some alumni members at that time.

Kinston Notes. Cor. of the News and Observer. KINSTON, N. C., Sept. 20, 1888.

We, too, have had an excessive amount of rain. Neuse river is now within three feet of the great flood of November, '87. A very great amount of damage has been done to growing crops in the flooded districts. The continued rains have rotted the seed of the cotton, and a large number of the open bolls show sprouts. The cotton season is one month behind last year. By the 18th of September, 1887, there had been weighed by our cotton weighers in Kinston, one thousand bales. Up to the same date this year not more than a dozen bales have been weighed. If "three moves are equal to a fire," then five successive bad crop years are equal to a war. But our prospects are prepared for a lively fall season. Our schools do not show that hard times are expected. Kinston College has 122 pupils and more to come.

Mr. William Griswold, of Durham and Miss Laura Bryan of this place, were married here this morning in the Church of St. Mary's, Rev. Israel Harding officiating. The bridal party left at once on the 10:20 train for the West.

The embankment on the new road leading to the iron bridge was damaged by the high water. This is the road for the working of which a bill was passed at the General Assembly nearly two years ago, allowing convicts to the county. The convicts have not arrived yet. Will they Echo answers, "Never."

What part of our State furnishes most of the convicts? What does Echo answer to this?

The cessation of the rain last week was of short duration. It began again Saturday morning, and from 4 p. m. that day to 12:30 p. m. of the 17th the fall was 5.41 inches. This resulted, of course, in another freshet. The river and creek bottoms were overflowed and a great deal of damage was done to corn. Upland corn was not injured, because there was no wind to blow it down, but cotton was hurt and is said to be rotting in the bolls. A conservative estimate of the loss of the two heavy crops of the last two weeks, and the continuous cloudy, wet weather between them, places it at 25 per cent. Other estimates are as high as 50 per cent. The floods and wet weather will undoubtedly reduce the yield of corn, cotton and tobacco very materially. In the last rain the heavy damage was on the larger streams. The Carolina was again on its banks and much of the corn in its bottom was destroyed. Bad news also comes from the Yadon valley, in Wilkes. The Yadon, too, got out of its banks and overflowed the corn, much of which is a total loss. Pretty much everywhere throughout this section the fodder and tops are destroyed, and this of itself is a serious loss.

The writer says that all the members, but one will vote for Cleveland and Thurman, including the five by names mentioned by the Press as being Republicans.
