A GENERAL OF THE BLACK FLAGS DEAD.

THE PREPARATIONS FOR HIS FUNERAL-THE CEREMONEES -A STRANGE SCENE -OTHER NEWS.

By Telegraph to the News and Observer NEW YORK, Oct. 29-In the rear of the undertaking establishment No. 35 Mott street this morning was presented a strange scene. Chinamen, musicians and inquisitive persons of all nationalities and creeds moved about the dimity lighted place and were kept in ordering half a dozen policemen. The wooden ceiling was hung in black and white, and curiously cut draperies of plain black ornamented the walls. At the farther end of the room on a black covered deak of the room on a black covered deak was a easket which contained the embalmed remains of Li Yu Doo, a general of the Black Flags. The receptacle was of red cedar covered with broadcloth and the trimmings were broadcloth and the trimmings were of solid silver. A plate on the top read "Li Yu Doo, died Oct. 19, 1888, aged 56 years. We meet on the level, we part on the square." By the side of the casket was a long stick covered with yellow cloth bearing cabalistic characters. This was to serve as a ladder upon which the dead general is to mount to the chies.

dead general is to mount to the skies. The lid of the coffin was frequently removed to permit friends to gaze upon the features of the deceased. The face of General Doo was composed and the body was dressed in ordinary garments worn by him in bearing hieroglyphics were scattered about the dead man's head and shoulders. There were also playing cards there that the departed might pass away the time pleasantly on his journey heavenward. Two feet spart from each other and in front of the sasket were three pains tables. casket were three pine tables. On the first were dishes of candied fruit and piles of oranges. The second table almost grouned under the weight of roasted pig. On either side of the porker were pillows of chrysanthemums and peonies, one of which bore the words "My cousin at rest." On the third table were several bowls of rice, in which stood burning joss sticks and several ordinary wax candles. Chop sticks and diminutive tea eups were laid donned surplices with black belts. These were relatives of the dead man and the peculiar costumes were meant to indicate their great sorrow. These chief mourners ranged themselves along the side of the room and soon siong the side of the room and soon began to chant the words of a song. Suddenly the band started the Dead March from Saul and sontinued playing for ten minutes. Meanwhile additional joss-sticks were placed in the rise bowls and the Chinamen bowed low and chanted a dirge. Great crowds congregated and Mott street for a considerable distance was lined with people. Every window in the neighborhood was open and heads were thrust from them. When the "Mellican" music had ceased a Chinese band played a funeral march which was almost desf-ening. This was continued without interruption to allow the chief mourners time to make their devotions until sion proceeded to Hvergreen Cemetery where the interment took place.

in the rear, the unknown schooner urday. Notwithstanding this law, the registration offices were kept open no doubt that all on board went last Saturday all day, and over thirtythree thousand persons registered. As it is impossible to separate those who registered before noon from those who registered later, the Sun states that the entire list may have to be thrown out. The Sun interviewed fifty of the leading lawyers in the city, and states that they all hold that a registration office is a "public office," and within the scope of the Saturday half-holiday law.

Referring to the public statements to the effect that 33,021 persons who registered after midday last Saturday will lose their votes because under the State law that portion of Saturday is a half holiday Assistant U. S. District Attorney Rase said today 'There is nothing in the story. The State law was simply made to cover banks and other fiscal institutions. I contend that boards of registration are not public officers within the mcauing of the law. The same ques-tion was raised in Brooklyn and it was then decided, or at least it was agreed that the State law did not affect the votes registered on Saturday half holiday."
